To help revive downtown

Officials are confident they'll build parking lot

by BILL HILL
A news analysis

It's still too early to schedule groundbreaking ceremonies, but Arlington Heights officials are confident the 500-car parking garage proposed for the village's downtown shopping area will become a reality.

The village board voted unanimously last Monday to proceed with the necessary steps for constructing the $1.5 million garage at the northeast corner of Vail and Sigwalt streets.

But many people are still skeptical about the village fathers' plans for the downtown area.

SKEPTICISM IS something that naturally accompanies such talk about rejuvenating the village's central business district. After all, such talk has become commonplace for residents who have watched patiently as the village spent more than $100,000 on 16 other downtown improvement studies since 1959.

None of these studies got much farther than the drawing table.

The village is closer now to making major changes to the downtown business district than they ever have, according to Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, whose career in Arlington Heights spans 18 years.

The village board Monday passed a four-point motion:

- Purchase two parcels at Vail and Sigwalt with the $134,000 received through a federal community development grant.
- Sell or lease the village-owned parking lot which runs between Vail and Dunton avenues, north of the Dunton Court Shopping Center.
- Obtain bids for the 500-car parking garage.
- Arrange for the issue of $1.24 million in revenue bonds to finance the proposed parking garage.

"A MAJOR STEP has been taken. Now comes the follow through," said Village Pres. James T. Ryan.

Ryan and Trustee August Bettman, who headed a special downtown improvements committee the past year, are proud that the parking garage plan was accomplished without the large cost of hiring consultants. All plans were designed by the village's planning department.

Village Planner Joseph Kesler believes the project has a better chance of being implemented "because it was done in-house."

This time we're doing it. The planning is done, and now we will push for implementation," he said.

There only seems to be one possible stumbling block for the parking garage. Before final approval from the village board can be expected, a developer must be found for the shopping plaza-office building that Kesler recommends be built adjacent to the parking garage.

Kesler is the first to admit that the multi-story commercial development is the key to success for a parking garage in the downtown area. But he is confident a developer will be found because of the commitment the village now has made to revitalize the shopping area and because of the interest being shown by Arlington Heights lending institutions.

Three banks have agreed to buy 47 per cent of the revenue bonds to be issued for the parking garage, and the 1st National Bank of Chicago is expected to buy the remaining 53 per cent.

"I WAS CALLING people to see if they would be interested. Now they're calling me. And don't forget, we haven't even advertised this yet," Kesler said.

Village officials are unable to positively identify the reason for a downtown improvement plan being accepted now when so many other plans were left to gather dust.

"The village boards always were concerned with the problem," Hanson said.

However, the only major step taken was in 1965 when the B-5, commercial zoning classification was given to the entire downtown business district.

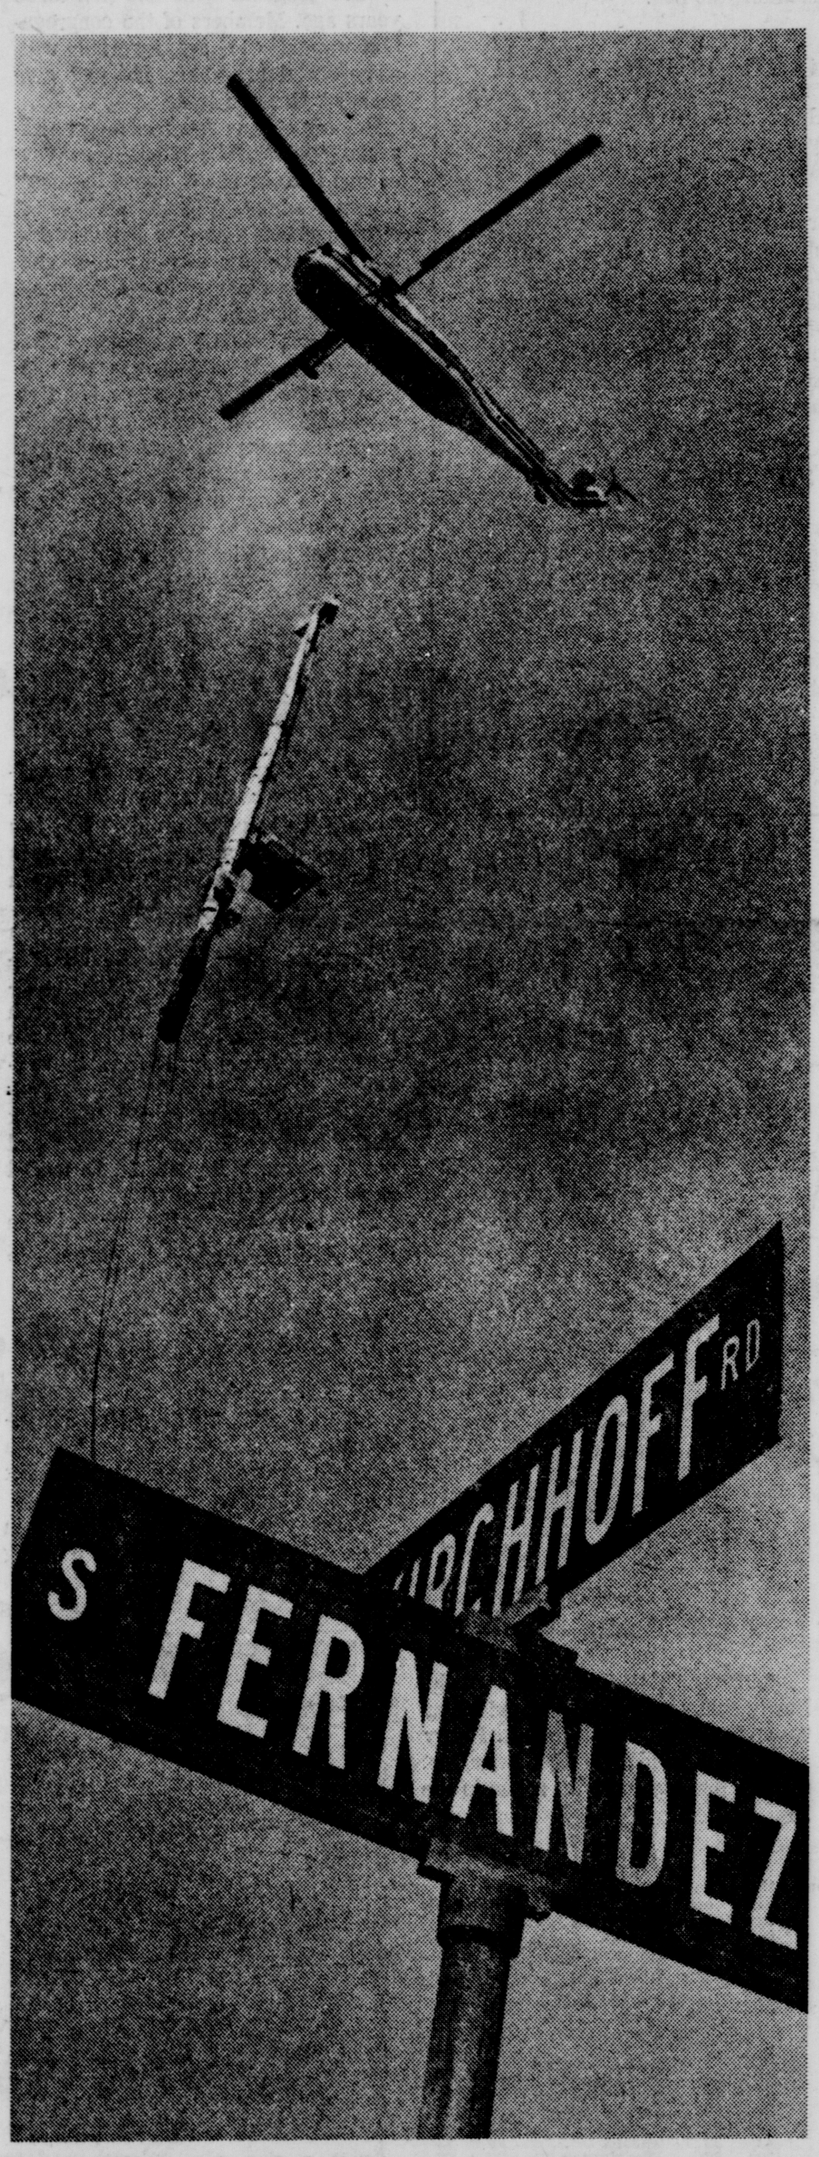
AND THE HIGH PRICE on the land and the stringent parking requirements stood in the way of anticipated development.

One change that has occured downtown because of the creation of the B-5 zoning district was the demolition of 80 to 100 buildings, Hanson said. Unfortunately, most lots were too small for any major development.

The village board's decision last Monday to build a parking garage is the farthest the village has come to actually "rebuilding" the central business district, Hanson said.

The combination of building a parking garage, reducing the parking requirements for new developments and the shopping plaza-office building project are expected to encourage much new development in the downtown area.

"I'm optimistic now. We've shown that we're serious about doing something downtown and that there's a good climate. It's important now to keep our momentum," said Ryan.



THE EASIEST way to move a pole with a Civil Defense siren mounted on its was with a helicopter, Arlington Heights engineers decided. It was more efficient and more economical to rent the whirlybird to move the pole from a residential lot across Kirchoff Road to a site near Northwest Community Hospital, said William Bachem, a village engineer. What would have been a 5-day project was done in just four hours, he said.

Merit pay rejected in Dist. 23

by JUDY JOBBITT

Teachers in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 supported the union negotiators stand to drop the merit pay system by a 55-21 vote Friday.

The teachers' union polled the district's 80 teachers to verify its stand concerning the major money issue on the bargainng table.

The union is demanding that the current merit system for pay increases, which bases salary raises on performance evaluation, be changed to a standard salary schedule. A salary schedule would guarantee teachers a percentage increase each year for an additional year of experience.

ADDITIONAL INCREASES also would be guaranteed for teachers attaining certain levels of graduate course instruction.

Currently, teachers are hired at a salary based on past work experience and educational background. Salary increases are granted according to an evaluation and the amount of money available for pay raises.

Ken Bates, union negotiator, said the vote Friday "reaffirms our stand on this issue. We voted on it in the spring but had a stronger vote this time."

He said the vote is not binding on either the board or the union, which would have required both sides to accept the vote's outcome in contract talks.

"Now it's up to the board to act. We understand they will be meeting in executive session this evening to discuss the vote. They will obviously have to take it into consideration," Bates said.

RON SOWATZKE, board negotiator, said the board will "take the vote into consideration."

Bates said the board has refused to negotiate the salary schedule issue. The board has placed $42,000 on the table for salary increases under the merit plan, he said.

The union's salary demand would cost the district $108,000. The proposed schedule would set a base pay of $9,700 compared to last year's base of $8,950. Top pay in the district would be $23,668 for a teacher with 30 hours of credit beyond a master's degree and at least 20 years of teaching experience.

Board negotiators would not comment on the items being negotiated. Sowatzke said contract talks are progressing. Another negotiating session is scheduled Tuesday.

Man on motorcycle jumps curb, dies

A Rolling Meadows man was killed late Thursday night when he was thrown from the motorcycle he was riding on Algonquin Road.

Killed was Robert W. Babe, 26, of 2312 Algonquin Pkwy., Rolling Meadows. He was pronounced dead at Northwest Community Hospital early Friday morning.

Arlington Heights police reported Babe was riding his motorcycle north on Algonquin Road near New Wilke Road when it suddenly jumped the curb. Babe and the motorcycle were found in a field more than 300 feet from where he left the road, according to police reports.

Police said there were no skid or tire marks where Babe left the pavement.

Man pleads innocent in cop's death

Timothy Draut Friday entered a plea of not guilty to reckless homicide charges stemming from the death of an Arlington Heights policeman in July.

Associate Judge Brian L. Crowe, sitting at the Evanston Branch of the Cook County Circuit Court, set an Oct. 22 trial date for Draut, 746 N. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights.

Draut, 23, is charged with running over Patrolman Alan J. Vargo on July 17 as Vargo directed traffic around the scene of a traffic accident.

Additional charges of failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, driving too fast for conditions, improper lane usage, disobeying a police officer and driving whle intoxicated have been filed against Draut, who remains free on bond.

Vargo's widow has filed a multimillion-dollar civil suit against Draut, his employer, a car leasing company and two taverns in connection with her husband's death.

Viking 2 lands; new search for life begins

by AL ROSSITER JR.

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 2 landed on the Utopia dunes of Mars to press the search for life Friday but communications problems with its orbiting mothercraft blacked out details and delayed receipt of its first pictures.

The information was scanty, but enough to tell engineers that the nation's second Martian explorer was working as planned on the red planet and seemed to be resting on a level spot of what is believed to be rolling sand dune country.

"I am very pleased with what we believe has happened," said project manager James Martin with obvious relief after a tense three hours of not knowing what was happening.

"IT SURE WORKED like a charm," Martin said. "The lander doesn't seem to need us."

The Utopia landing area is a place where fogs and frost suggest there is enough moisture to support possible Martian organisms.

That was a key to the site selection. It was considered the best accessible spot for Viking 2 to expand the search for life started by Viking 1 July 20.

The landing area was 1,500 miles farther north and halfway around the planet from the Chryse Desert where Viking I has given scientists a new perspective of Mars.

"WE'VE EMBARKED on a fantastic scientific expedition," said Dr. Donald Hearth, director of the Langley Research Center which manages the $1 billion project. "It's just incredible."

Martin was confident engineers would be able to correct the communication problems with the orbiter and said the normal operations should be resumed in a few days. The lander was expected to continue operating as programmed, sending its findings to the orbiter which was to record the data for later relay to Earth.

The spacecraft made it down from orbit on its own, following orders stored in its electronic brains earlier by engineers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. The big difference from the Viking 1 landing was that engineers were left in the dark about what was happening because they relied on the orbiter to relay information to Earth.

The informative signal that indicated all was well meant that the lander's radio had changed to a high speed transmit rate to the crippled orbiter as planned after touchdown. There was no direct information from the lander itself but just the orbiter's report that it was receiving data from the lander.

4-step plan to ease botulism revealed

Illinois Dept. of Conservation officials Friday recommended four steps to ease botulism problems which have killed 69 ducks at the Prince Charles Garden apartments, Arlington Heights. Herman Heir of the conservation department told village health officials and the apartment complex management to stop adding fresh water to the two ponds; remove all dead fish and birds from the water; remove all sick ducks from the pond and feed them fresh water and install an aerator to add oxygen to the water. Daniel Tarry, Arlington Heights environmental health officer, said it was recommended that fresh water not be added to the ponds because the chlorine in the water was killing the fish.

Innocent plea told in Vargo death

Timothy Draut, 23, of 746 N. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights, Friday entered a plea of not guilty to reckless homicide charges stemming from the death of an Arlington Heights policeman in July.

An Oct. 22 trial date was set or Draut, charged with running over Patrolman Alan J. Vargo July 7 as Vargo directed traffic around the scene of an accident. Draut also is charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, driving too fast for conditions, improper lane usage, disobeying a police officer and driving while intoxicated. Vargo's widow has filed a multi-million-dollar civil suit against Draut, his employer, a car leasing firm and two taverns in connection with her husband's death.

Funds sought to save prairie

The Lake County Forest Preserve District will submit a grant application to the Illinois Bureau of Outdoor Recreation in hopes of purchasing valuable prairie land north of Wheeling before it is destroyed by bulldozers. The 56-acre site north of the Whippletree Trailer Court along Ill. Rte. 83 contains 12.5 acres of virgin prairie land. About 12 acres of the site has been destroyed by bulldozers which are removing dirt from the site for construction of the Lake Cook Road extension. The district has made several attempts to contact the owner of the prairie land to stop the bulldozers from ripping up the site, officials said.

Tzadak good for givers, recipients

by JUDIE BLACK

The Hebrew notion of "tzadak" is alive and well in the Northwest suburbs.

Tzadak is a feeling of empathy for those Jews less fortunate; not an obligation but rather a feeling that comes from the heart, from the soul, from tradition.

Every month, children from 200 Northwest suburban families who comprise the Buffalo Grove area's Temple Chai bring canned and packaged kosher foods for elderly and poor Jews in Chicago's Albany Park.

THE ELDERLY Jews there have been left stranded by children who have moved to better areas or different states. They are religious, feeling people who need help but feel uneasy asking for it.

Temple Chai works with The Ark, a Chicago social service agency, in trying to offer some concrete reassurance that fellow Jews do care. All food donations and deliveries are made anonymously, one of the most important aspects of tzadak.

"To all the people I'm just a delivery man," said Bill German of Arlington Heights and a member of the temple. German, Temple Chai's Rabbi Floyd Herman and the temple social action committee began the cooperative program with The Ark three years ago. Members of the congregation wanted "to get involved with some social programs, not just give money," German said.

Helping elderly Jews seemed an especially worthwhile effort since "everyone tries to forget about the old," German added. "There are lots of other agencies who give their time to marital problems and juvenile counseling . . . we wanted to get to the old who need basic help."

PROFESSIONALS among Chai members such as lawyers and dentists donated their services but that gradually ended when the temple's emphasis was placed on simply getting enough food.

Food is what many of the people lack who come to The Ark at 3509 W. Lawrence in Chicago. German has delivered groceries to homes whose cupboards and refrigerators were literally bare.

Some of the recipients have been so weak, German has helped them stack and store the food he brings. On one delivery, he brought his three children but decided against a return visit.

"It was a bad emotional scene, the people seemed almost ashamed of having to take charity in front of children," German said. "It was just too much for their pride." Many remained in their rooms and sent friends or neighbors out to accept the food.

THE FOOD GIFTS from the temple's children benefit more than the elderly. German said the children "know they can really help — that just their own small effort can make a big difference in someone else's life."

"We're bridging a gap here of two and three generations," German said. "Children helping the old helps the young ones know where they came from."

During various Jewish holidays including Rosh Hashanah (the new year) and Passover, the children try to give particular holiday treats. And the recipients return the favor.

"You can't describe some of their faces when they get something special at Chanuka (the festival of lights)," German said.

CALL IT TZADAK or the Golden Rule, the meaning is the same for all religions as Renee Bloom, Bill German and Rabbi Floyd Herman can vouch. The three are participants in a joint program sponsored by Buffalo Grove's Temple Chai and The Ark, a Chicago social service agency, to help elderly and poor Jews in Chicago's Albany Park with donations of canned and packaged food.

Steps to ease ponds' botulism told

Illinois Dept. of Conservation officials Friday recommended four steps to ease the botulism problem that has killed 69 ducks at the Prince Charles Garden Apartments, Arlington Heights.

Herman Heir of the conservation department told village health officials and the manager of the apartment complex to stop adding fresh water to the two ponds and to remove all dead fish and birds from the water.

Heir also recommended that sick ducks be taken from the water and put in a pen. Water should be forced down their throats, he said.

Linda Lederer, manager of the apartments at 2407 S. Goebbert Rd., said that an aerator also was to be installed "to add oxygen" to the water.

DANIEL TARRY, environmental health officer for the Village of Arlington Heights, said it was recommended that fresh water not be added to the ponds because the chlorine in the water was killing fish.

When the botulism problem was first noticed at the two ponds Aug. 16, adding fresh water was the initial solution proposed. Since then, ducks at the ponds have continued to die. Only about 30 ducks are still living in the ponds and many are seriously ill, Miss Lederer said.

Botulism also is the suspected cause of death for 16 ducks at Clearwater Lake in Mount Prospect and it has been confirmed as the cause of death of about 1,000 birds at Lake O'Hare near O'Hare Airport.

There is no reason for the general public to be alarmed because it is unlikely anyone would eat anything from the ponds, Tarry said.

Wehrs to mark centennial of life

Albert Wehrs, a resident of the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged in Arlington Heights, will mark his 100th birthday Sunday.

Wehrs was born Sept. 5, 1876, in Lake County, and has been a life-long resident of the North and Northwest suburbs. He moved to the Lutheran Home in 1960.

Residents of the home plan to mark the birthday with apple pie, Wehrs' favorite dessert, at Sunday dinner.

4-step plan to ease botulism revealed

Illinois Dept. of Conservation officials Friday recommended four steps to ease botulism problems which have killed 69 ducks at the Prince Charles Garden apartments, Arlington Heights. Herman Heir of the conservation department told village health officials and the apartment complex management to stop adding fresh water to the two ponds; remove all dead fish and birds from the water; remove all sick ducks from the pond and feed them fresh water and install an aerator to add oxygen to the water. Daniel Tarry, Arlington Heights environmental health officer, said it was recommended that fresh water not be added to the ponds because the chlorine in the water was killing the fish.

Innocent plea told in Vargo death

Timothy Draut, 23, of 746 N. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights, Friday entered a plea of not guilty to reckless homicide charges stemming from the death of an Arlington Heights policeman in July.

An Oct. 22 trial date was set or Draut, charged with running over Patrolman Alan J. Vargo July 7 as Vargo directed traffic around the scene of an accident. Draut also is charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, driving too fast for conditions, improper lane usage, disobeying a police officer and driving while intoxicated. Vargo's widow has filed a multi-million-dollar civil suit against Draut, his employer, a car leasing firm and two taverns in connection with her husband's death.

Funds sought to save prairie

The Lake County Forest Preserve District will submit a grant application to the Illinois Bureau of Outdoor Recreation in hopes of purchasing valuable prairie land north of Wheeling before it is destroyed by bulldozers. The 56-acre site north of the Whippletree Trailer Court along Ill. Rte. 83 contains 12.5 acres of virgin prairie land. About 12 acres of the site has been destroyed by bulldozers which are removing dirt from the site for construction of the Lake Cook Road extension. The district has made several attempts to contact the owner of the prairie land to stop the bulldozers from ripping up the site, officials said.

Tzadak good for givers, recipients

by JUDIE BLACK

The Hebrew notion of "tzadak" is alive and well in the Northwest suburbs.

Tzadak is a feeling of empathy for those Jews less fortunate; not an obligation but rather a feeling that comes from the heart, from the soul, from tradition.

Every month, children from 200 Northwest suburban families who comprise the Buffalo Grove area's Temple Chai bring canned and packaged kosher foods for elderly and poor Jews in Chicago's Albany Park.

THE ELDERLY Jews there have been left stranded by children who have moved to better areas or different states. They are religious, feeling people who need help but feel uneasy asking for it.

Temple Chai works with The Ark, a Chicago social service agency, in trying to offer some concrete reassurance that fellow Jews do care. All food donations and deliveries are made anonymously, one of the most important aspects of tzadak.

"To all the people I'm just a delivery man," said Bill German of Arlington Heights and a member of the temple. German, Temple Chai's Rabbi Floyd Herman and the temple social action committee began the cooperative program with The Ark three years ago. Members of the congregation wanted "to get involved with some social programs, not just give money," German said.

Helping elderly Jews seemed an especially worthwhile effort since "everyone tries to forget about the old," German added. "There are lots of other agencies who give their time to marital problems and juvenile counseling . . . we wanted to get to the old who need basic help."

PROFESSIONALS among Chai members such as lawyers and dentists donated their services but that gradually ended when the temple's emphasis was placed on simply getting enough food.

Food is what many of the people lack who come to The Ark at 3509 W. Lawrence in Chicago. German has delivered groceries to homes whose cupboards and refrigerators were literally bare.

CALL IT TZADAK or the Golden Rule, the meaning is the same for all religions as Renee Bloom, Bill German and Rabbi Floyd Herman can vouch. The three are participants in a joint program sponsored by Buffalo Grove's Temple Chai and The Ark, a Chicago social service agency, to help elderly and poor Jews in Chicago's Albany Park with donations of canned and packaged food.

Some of the recipients have been so weak, German has helped them stack and store the food he brings. On one delivery, he brought his three children but decided against a return visit.

"It was a bad emotional scene, the people seemed almost ashamed of having to take charity in front of children," German said. "It was just too much for their pride." Many remained in their rooms and sent friends or neighbors out to accept the food.

THE FOOD GIFTS from the temple's children benefit more than the elderly. German said the children "know they can really help — that just their own small effort can make a big difference in someone else's life."

"We're bridging a gap here of two and three generations," German said. "Children helping the old helps the young ones know where they came from."

During various Jewish holidays including Rosh Hashanah (the new year) and Passover, the children try to give particular holiday treats. And the recipients return the favor.

"You can't describe some of their faces when they get something special at Chanuka (the festival of lights)," German said.

Steps to ease ponds' botulism told

Illinois Dept. of Conservation officials Friday recommended four steps to ease the botulism problem that has killed 69 ducks at the Prince Charles Garden Apartments, Arlington Heights.

Herman Heir of the conservation department told village health officials and the manager of the apartment complex to stop adding fresh water to the two ponds and to remove all dead fish and birds from the water.

Heir also recommended that sick ducks be taken from the water and put in a pen. Water should be forced down their throats, he said.

Linda Lederer, manager of the apartments at 2407 S. Goebbert Rd., said that an aerator also was to be installed "to add oxygen" to the water.

DANIEL TARRY, environmental health officer for the Village of Arlington Heights, said it was recommended that fresh water not be added to the ponds because the chlorine in the water was killing fish.

When the botulism problem was first noticed at the two ponds Aug. 16, adding fresh water was the initial solution proposed. Since then, ducks at the ponds have continued to die. Only about 30 ducks are still living in the ponds and many are seriously ill, Miss Lederer said.

Botulism also is the suspected cause of death for 16 ducks at Clearwater Lake in Mount Prospect and it has been confirmed as the cause of death of about 1,000 birds at Lake O'Hare near O'Hare Airport.

There is no reason for the general public to be alarmed because it is unlikely anyone would eat anything from the ponds, Tarry said.

Wehrs was born Sept. 5, 1876, in Lake County, and has been a life-long resident of the North and Northwest suburbs. He moved to the Lutheran Home in 1960.

Residents of the home plan to mark the birthday with apple pie, Wehrs' favorite dessert, at Sunday dinner.

Maddox seeks to join Ford-Carter debates

The American Independent Party, in a letter to the television networks and the Federal Communications Commission, Friday demanded that its candidate, Lester Maddox, be allowed to join the Ford-Carter presidential debates. William K. Shearer, national party chairman, said the letter would be sent shortly, and if Maddox is not allowed to participate in the debates the matter would be taken to the courts.

2 get life in Yablonski murders

Convicted triggerman Paul E. Gilly was given three concurrent life sentences and fellow assassin Claude E. Vealey a single life term Friday for killing United Mine Workers reformer Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter on New Year's Eve 1969. Washington, Pa., County Judge Charles G. Sweet accepted the recommendation of special prosecutor Richard Sprague and showed leniency to both men since they cooperated in the conviction of others in the case, notably one-time UMW Pres. W. A. "Tony" Boyle, who ordered his rival Yablonski murdered. Boyle also is serving three concurrent life terms. As with Boyle, Sweet could have sentenced Vealey, 33, and Gilly, 43, to three consecutive life terms with little chance for parole. A third triggerman, Aubran "Buddy" Martin fired his attorney and will be sentenced in November. Judge Sweet could not impose the death penalty in the cases because it was banned when the men were convicted.

'Legion disease' claims 29th victim

A manager of four Philadelphia hotels died Friday as a result of the mysterious "Legionnaires' Disease," health officials reported. The death of J. Bruce Rogers, 60, Moorestown, N.J., brought to 29 the number of persons killed by the baffling malady. An additional 150 persons were made ill. Rogers managed four Holiday Inns in Philadelphia and visited the Bellevue Stratford Hotel during the time a state American Legion convention was headquartered there in late July.

Levi paid $205 for work done by FBI

Edward Levi Friday sent President Ford the report on alleged financial indiscretions that could determine Clarence Kelley's future as FBI director. At the same time, the Justice Dept. announced that Levi himself repaid the government $205 in July for security locks the FBI installed in his home. White House spokesmen said Ford had not yet had a chance to read the report he ordered Levi to prepare on Kelley's acceptance of free FBI services and gifts from subordinantes. The disclosure of Levi's restitution came from department spokesman Robert Havel, who said Levi decided in June he should pay for the security locks because they could not be returned upon his departure without defacing the doors.

Reopen theft probe at Air Force Academy

An Air Force Academy spokesman said Friday a special military investigation team has reopened an inquiry into a cadet theft and forgery ring which was reportedly eradicated in 1975. "A full scale investigation ordered by Academy Supt. James Allen is underway," said Maj. Monte Blews, chief public information officer for the southeast Colorado military academy.

Ford to kick off campaign Sept. 13

The White House announced Friday President Ford will kick off his campaign the week of Sept. 13 at the University of Michigan, his alma mater, suggesting that "You should keep the president you have." Jimmy Carter, pointing to the highest unemployment rate "since the Hoover depression," said if the American people had the president they should, more of them would be working. Although the presidential campaign has not "officially" opened — Carter's begins Labor Day in Warm Springs, Ga. — the candidates have been at it for a while. Friday, Carter belabored Ford for the 7.9 per cent joblessness, saying the Republican President had "no vision of what this country can be."

Uniroyal strike settled

Negotiators for Uniroyal Rubber Co. and the United Rubber Workers union reached tentative agreement on a new labor contract Friday in a dispute that has idled the company's plants for 20 weeks. James F. Scearce, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, announced the agreement upon his return here from marathon talks held in New York City. No details of the agreement were disclosed pending a ratification vote by some 5,000 union members expected to be held Sunday.

Police fire at crowds in South Africa

Police Friday fired buckshot into crowds of "colored" demonstrators, clubbing and chasing rioters back to their ghettoes. Police closed off Cape Town's city center and warned whites to stay off the streets. Police said one "colored," the official government designation for persons of mixed race, was killed by police gunfire at a high school, bringing to 297 the number killed in 10 weeks of nationwide antigovernment rioting. Police fired volley after volley of tear gas after the fleeing demonstrators, turning an exclusively white underground shopping center into what one white security guard said "was like a gas chamber" with both rioters and passers-by vomiting on the sidewalks. The new violence coincided with the start of Premier John Vorster's visit to Zurich, Switzerland, for three days of crisis talks on southern Africa with Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Bodies dumped in river; workers quit

Foreign technicians working at Uganda's giant River Nile power station have quit because President Idi Amin's troops have been dumping their murder victims into the river, diplomatic sources said Friday. The technicians' withdrawal and other major mechanical problems at the Owen Falls power station on the Nile have resulted in severe electricity shortages both in Uganda and neighboring Kenya. Some 30 technicians, most Italians, quit their jobs in recent weeks in disgust at the number of bodies they saw in the Nile River, the sources said. The corpses apparently were murder victims of the Ugandan army, killed during a purge following the Israeli commando attack on Entebbe airport July 3 to rescue more than 100 hijack hostages.

U.S. envoys hit for role in truce talks

A Christian leader Friday blasted two U.S. envoys helping to negotiate a truce of "factfinding while Lebanon is collapsing." Syrian and Moslem forces battled for the port of Sidon in a sharp escalation of the war. New Christian-Moslem fighting swept through the ruins of central Beirut as Syria summoned leaders from both sides for talks in Damascus. Leftists and Palestinian guerrillas defending the approaches to the port city of Sidon, 30 miles south of Beirut, fought running battles with Syrian troops entrenched in the rugged limestone mountains east of the city, reports from both sides said. Syrian reinforcements have moved into the southern mountain region during the past two weeks and the pro-Palestinian newspaper Al Moharrer said a clash between the Syrians and the thinly spread Moslems would be "the most critical confrontation of the war."

Howe refuses to resign

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Rep. Allan Howe, D-Utah, Friday vowed to continue his uphill election battle for a second term despite his conviction on sex charges and his party's rejection of his candidacy.

Howe said he had made his decision after balancing "the pursuit of justice, my duties as a congressman and the realities of being elected." He called it "the most crucial decision of my life."

The freshman Democrat said he carefully considered the absence of support from his party, public opinion polls showing he has no chance of reelection and the possibility of a write-in candidacy backed by his own party.

Nonetheless, Howe said, "I will stand by record of service and my innocence in this unfortunate matter. To withdraw now would go against all that I believe in."

The congressman said, "I will pay my fine in district court" but said he was not ruling out the possibility of an appeal.

Howe said he would welcome public debates with the Republican nominee and said "If I can redirect this campaign to the record . . . we intend to win this election."

He said he would approach Utah Democratic leaders and ask them to reassess their opinions that he was unelectable. Should they not, he said he would still remain a candidate.

"I have suffered some political damage," Howe said. He admitted the incident whch lead to his arrest was a mistake, but added "to err is human . . ."

Howe, a 48-year-old father of five, was convicted twice of a misdemeanor morals charge — trying to buy sex from two police decoy prostitutes.

Since the arrest and conviction, he has been under pressure from Utah Democratic leaders to withdraw from the ticket. At least four persons have offered themselves as replacements for Howe, who was the only Democrat to file for his 2nd District seat, should he withdraw.

Many party leaders, including Gov. Calvin Rampton and Sen. Frank Moss, the senior member of the state's congressional delegation, flatly declared Howe unelectable.

Polls published in Salt Lake City newspapers this week showed more than two-thirds of the electorate in the 2nd District felt Howe had received a fair trial, should drop out of the campaign and would be defeated overwhelmingly by either of his potential Republican opponents should he run again.

Howe was arrested June 12 for offering $20 to two special policewomen posing as prostitutes. He was convicted in City Court, appealed, and was given a new trial in Third District Court.

Howe denied the charge, but an eight-member jury deliberated 22 minutes before finding him guilty Aug. 24.

Volcano erupts; thousands flee

TAAL, The Philippines (UPI) — Mt. Taal spewed flames, clouds of sulphurous gas, ash and burning rocks 5,000 feet into the sky Friday in a series of eruptions that sent thousands of persons fleeing the mountain's slopes.

Volcanologist Gregorio Andal told Pres. Ferdinand Marcos that the volcano's activity was part of the "crustal unrest" that caused the Aug. 17 Philippines earthquake that killed 8,000 persons.

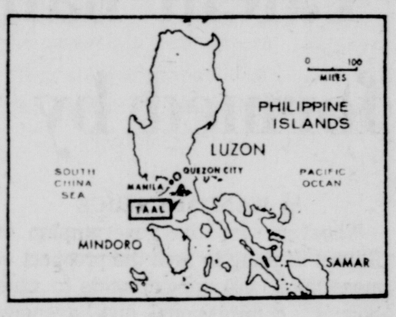
"The crater is approaching a critical stage," Andal said.

Clouds of black-brown smoke intermittently belched from the crater along with rocks and gray, powder fine volcanic ash up to 5,000 feet.

The cone fell quiet for brief periods then spewed new plumes of ash and sulphurous gas skyward.

Residents on the slopes said the ground shook before dawn Friday with the first blasts from the crater. Meliton Landicho, a 45-year-old farmer, said that at one point, yellow flames flickered from the cone in the predawn darkness.

Medardo Cardoso, another volcano expert, said the activity so far had been relatively mild compared to the last major eruption in 1965 that killed 192 persons but said it could intensify.



Taal, one of the world's smallest volcanos in altitude, killed 1,500 persons in a 1911 eruption that blasted ash as far as Manila, 40 miles to the north.

The nearly 1,000-foot-high peak is located on an island in a lake in one of the Philippines' most popula and most picturesque tourist resorts.

On the coconut palm-lined shore of the lake, small boats unloaded a steady stream of women, children, elderly people and an occasional cow from seven small farming villages scattered over Tall's fertile slopes on the island.

Several hundred persons stayed and Maj. Nonilo Realibut, assistant police commander of Batangas province, said no total evacuation order would be given until the situation looked "really dangerous."

TAAL VOLCANO in the Philippines erupted early Friday, spewing ash showers and gases. The 984-foot volcano awoke from a six-year sleep Wednesday.

Fresno, Calif., journalists

4 refuse to tell source, go to jail

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Four Fresno Bee newsmen, calling themselves hostages to "medieval justice," went to jail Friday to begin open-end sentences for refusing to reveal a news source.

All vowed to maintain the confidentiality "come hell or high water."

Managing Editor George Gruner, Ombudsman Jim Bort and reporters William Patterson and Joe Rosato surrendered to sheriff's deputies to begin their sentences 16 hours after the California Supreme Court turned down their bid for a new hearing in the case.

Attorneys for the four newsmen sought a last-minute stay and a new hearing from U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist, but five hours after they went to jail, he denied their application.

Rehnquist said the newsmen's position "seems to boil down to a contention that if they but assure the court of their complete recalcitrance, the court is powerless to commit them for contempt." He noted that the Supreme Cour twice has declined to review the case, and said there is no reason to believe it would now.

Before surrendering to deputies, Gruner read a statement saying the four were "being held hostage under a court rule which seems a relic from the days of medieval justice."

"I hope that when all this is through we will have firmly created the impression in the minds of the public and the judges throughout the country that journalist are going to stick to their principles, come hell or high water," he said.

The four were ordered to jail indefinitely last year after they refused to tell now-retired California Superior Court Judge Denver C. Peckinpah how the newspaper obtained testimony from a grand jury transcript which peckinpah had ordered sealed.

Appeals to both the state and federal courts were denied several times in the case which began in 1974.

The four were searched, fingerprinted and photographed during the booking process at the jail was the second time in California that newsmen had been jailed for refusing to reveal news sources.

William Farr, a Los Angeles Times reporter, was jailed an indefinite sentence in 1972 when he refused to reveal which attorney involved in the Charles Manson case had given him information about the case.

He served 46 days in jail before being released on an order by U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. The Farr case is still being appealed.

Gruner, Bort, Patterson and Rosato steadfastly refused to tell Peckinpah during a court inquiry how the Bee obtained the testimony.

They did testify that it was not received from a court officer and that there were no criminal activities involved.

All four invoked the California "Shield Law" which permits reporters to withhold their sources, but the courts rejected that defense.

FCC asked to delay plan to add 17 CB channels

WASHINGTON UPI) — Declaring that citizens' band radio interference with television reception "is very bad and getting worse," an industry group Friday asked the Federal Communications Commission to delay its order granting 17 new CB frequencies.

The Maximum Service Telecasters Inc., filed petitions asking first that the FCC reconsider its Aug. 4 decision to expand the number of frequencies from 23 to 40; and second, that the increase be delayed past Jan. 1 in anticipation of new studies on the impact of an increase on television reception.

The petitioners said with the current CB frequencies, reception on channels 2 and 5 is "intolerably damaged" nationwide. The increase in frequencies would, they claimed, greatly increase the 100,000 complaints the FCC receives yearly from disgruntled viewers, and add channel 6 to the "poor reception" list.

Two studies are under way to determine the extent of CB interference, one of them being done by the FCC itself. The order should be delayed pending results of those surveys, the telecasters said. "Any need for additional Citizens Radio Service frequencies cannot be so critical that the commission could not wait the few months necessary to obtain a firm basis upon which to act," the petition said. In its request for a delay, the telecasters pointed to the fact that the FCC had delayed implementation of its order for nearly five months to provide for competitive equality among CB manufacturers.

Viking 2 lands; new hunt for life

pense caused by the communications problem.

The landing apparently occurred at 5:58 p.m. Chicago time as planned.

The spacecraft is a duplicate of Viking 1, and it followed the same landing procedures, using a heat shield, then a parachute and finally three landing rockets to ease to the surface.

Dr. Albert Hibbs at the control center said waiting for the landing with no word on what was happening was "a harrowing experience."

"The mission seems to be a success, frustrating as it is because of the lack of high speed data," he said.

Viking was programmed to take two pictures after it landed and they were to be recorded aboard the orbiter, but it appeared they would not be immediately transmitted to Earth as planned.

Reopen theft probe at Air Force Academy

An Air Force Academy spokesman said Friday a special military investigation team has reopened an inquiry into a cadet theft and forgery ring which was reportedly eradicated in 1975. "A full scale investigation ordered by Academy Supt. James Allen is underway," said Maj. Monte Blews, chief public information officer for the southeast Colorado military academy.

Ford to kick off campaign Sept. 13

The White House announced Friday President Ford will kick off his campaign the week of Sept. 13 at the University of Michigan, his alma mater, suggesting that "You should keep the president you have." Jimmy Carter, pointing to the highest unemployment rate "since the Hoover depression," said if the American people had the president they should, more of them would be working. Although the presidential campaign has not "officially" opened — Carter's begins Labor Day in Warm Springs, Ga. — the candidates have been at it for a while. Friday, Carter belabored Ford for the 7.9 per cent joblessness, saying the Republican President had "no vision of what this country can be."

Uniroyal strike settled

Negotiators for Uniroyal Rubber Co. and the United Rubber Workers union reached tentative agreement on a new labor contract Friday in a dispute that has idled the company's plants for 20 weeks. James F. Scearce, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, announced the agreement upon his return here from marathon talks held in New York City. No details of the agreement were disclosed pending a ratification vote by some 5,000 union members expected to be held Sunday.

Police fire at crowds in South Africa

Police Friday fired buckshot into crowds of "colored" demonstrators, clubbing and chasing rioters back to their ghettoes. Police closed off Cape Town's city center and warned whites to stay off the streets. Police said one "colored," the official government designation for persons of mixed race, was killed by police gunfire at a high school, bringing to 297 the number killed in 10 weeks of nationwide antigovernment rioting. Police fired volley after volley of tear gas after the fleeing demonstrators, turning an exclusively white underground shopping center into what one white security guard said "was like a gas chamber" with both rioters and passers-by vomiting on the sidewalks. The new violence coincided with the start of Premier John Vorster's visit to Zurich, Switzerland, for three days of crisis talks on southern Africa with Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Bodies dumped in river; workers quit

Foreign technicians working at Uganda's giant River Nile power station have quit because President Idi Amin's troops have been dumping their murder victims into the river, diplomatic sources said Friday. The technicians' withdrawal and other major mechanical problems at the Owen Falls power station on the Nile have resulted in severe electricity shortages both in Uganda and neighboring Kenya. Some 30 technicians, most Italians, quit their jobs in recent weeks in disgust at the number of bodies they saw in the Nile River, the sources said. The corpses apparently were murder victims of the Ugandan army, killed during a purge following the Israeli commando attack on Entebbe airport July 3 to rescue more than 100 hijack hostages.

U.S. envoys hit for role in truce talks

A Christian leader Friday blasted two U.S. envoys helping to negotiate a truce of "factfinding while Lebanon is collapsing." Syrian and Moslem forces battled for the port of Sidon in a sharp escalation of the war. New Christian-Moslem fighting swept through the ruins of central Beirut as Syria summoned leaders from both sides for talks in Damascus. Leftists and Palestinian guerrillas defending the approaches to the port city of Sidon, 30 miles south of Beirut, fought running battles with Syrian troops entrenched in the rugged limestone mountains east of the city, reports from both sides said. Syrian reinforcements have moved into the southern mountain region during the past two weeks and the pro-Palestinian newspaper Al Moharrer said a clash between the Syrians and the thinly spread Moslems would be "the most critical confrontation of the war."

Howe refuses to resign

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Rep. Allan Howe, D-Utah, Friday vowed to continue his uphill election battle for a second term despite his conviction on sex charges and his party's rejection of his candidacy.

Howe said he had made his decision after balancing "the pursuit of justice, my duties as a congressman and the realities of being elected." He called it "the most crucial decision of my life."

The freshman Democrat said he carefully considered the absence of support from his party, public opinion polls showing he has no chance of reelection and the possibility of a write-in candidacy backed by his own party.

Nonetheless, Howe said, "I will stand by record of service and my innocence in this unfortunate matter. To withdraw now would go against all that I believe in."

The congressman said, "I will pay my fine in district court" but said he was not ruling out the possibility of an appeal.

Howe said he would welcome public debates with the Republican nominee and said "If I can redirect this campaign to the record . . . we intend to win this election."

He said he would approach Utah Democratic leaders and ask them to reassess their opinions that he was unelectable. Should they not, he said he would still remain a candidate.

"I have suffered some political damage," Howe said. He admitted the incident whch lead to his arrest was a mistake, but added "to err is human . . ."

Howe, a 48-year-old father of five, was convicted twice of a misdemeanor morals charge — trying to buy sex from two police decoy prostitutes.

Since the arrest and conviction, he has been under pressure from Utah Democratic leaders to withdraw from the ticket. At least four persons have offered themselves as replacements for Howe, who was the only Democrat to file for his 2nd District seat, should he withdraw.

Many party leaders, including Gov. Calvin Rampton and Sen. Frank Moss, the senior member of the state's congressional delegation, flatly declared Howe unelectable.

Polls published in Salt Lake City newspapers this week showed more than two-thirds of the electorate in the 2nd District felt Howe had received a fair trial, should drop out of the campaign and would be defeated overwhelmingly by either of his potential Republican opponents should he run again.

Howe was arrested June 12 for offering $20 to two special policewomen posing as prostitutes. He was convicted in City Court, appealed, and was given a new trial in Third District Court.

Howe denied the charge, but an eight-member jury deliberated 22 minutes before finding him guilty Aug. 24.

Volcano erupts; thousands flee

TAAL, The Philippines (UPI) — Mt. Taal spewed flames, clouds of sulphurous gas, ash and burning rocks 5,000 feet into the sky Friday in a series of eruptions that sent thousands of persons fleeing the mountain's slopes.

Volcanologist Gregorio Andal told Pres. Ferdinand Marcos that the volcano's activity was part of the "crustal unrest" that caused the Aug. 17 Philippines earthquake that killed 8,000 persons.

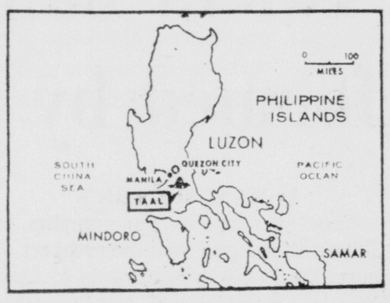
"The crater is approaching a critical stage," Andal said.

Clouds of black-brown smoke intermittently belched from the crater along with rocks and gray, powder fine volcanic ash up to 5,000 feet.

The cone fell quiet for brief periods then spewed new plumes of ash and sulphurous gas skyward.

Residents on the slopes said the ground shook before dawn Friday with the first blasts from the crater. Meliton Landicho, a 45-year-old farmer, said that at one point, yellow flames flickered from the cone in the predawn darkness.

Medardo Cardoso, another volcano expert, said the activity so far had been relatively mild compared to the last major eruption in 1965 that killed 192 persons but said it could intensify.



Taal, one of the world's smallest volcanos in altitude, killed 1,500 persons in a 1911 eruption that blasted ash as far as Manila, 40 miles to the north.

The nearly 1,000-foot-high peak is located on an island in a lake in one of the Philippines' most popula and most picturesque tourist resorts.

On the coconut palm-lined shore of the lake, small boats unloaded a steady stream of women, children, elderly people and an occasional cow from seven small farming villages scattered over Tall's fertile slopes on the island.

Several hundred persons stayed and Maj. Nonilo Realibut, assistant police commander of Batangas province, said no total evacuation order would be given until the situation looked "really dangerous."

TAAL VOLCANO in the Philippines erupted early Friday, spewing ash showers and gases. The 984-foot volcano awoke from a six-year sleep Wednesday.

Fresno, Calif., journalists

4 refuse to tell source, go to jail

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Four Fresno Bee newsmen, calling themselves hostages to "medieval justice," went to jail Friday to begin open-end sentences for refusing to reveal a news source.

All vowed to maintain the confidentiality "come hell or high water."

Managing Editor George Gruner, Ombudsman Jim Bort and reporters William Patterson and Joe Rosato surrendered to sheriff's deputies to begin their sentences 16 hours after the California Supreme Court turned down their bid for a new hearing in the case.

Attorneys for the four newsmen sought a last-minute stay and a new hearing from U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist, but five hours after they went to jail, he denied their application.

Rehnquist said the newsmen's position "seems to boil down to a contention that if they but assure the court of their complete recalcitrance, the court is powerless to commit them for contempt." He noted that the Supreme Cour twice has declined to review the case, and said there is no reason to believe it would now.

Before surrendering to deputies, Gruner read a statement saying the four were "being held hostage under a court rule which seems a relic from the days of medieval justice."

"I hope that when all this is through we will have firmly created the impression in the minds of the public and the judges throughout the country that journalist are going to stick to their principles, come hell or high water," he said.

The four were ordered to jail indefinitely last year after they refused to tell now-retired California Superior Court Judge Denver C. Peckinpah how the newspaper obtained testimony from a grand jury transcript which peckinpah had ordered sealed.

Appeals to both the state and federal courts were denied several times in the case which began in 1974.

The four were searched, fingerprinted and photographed during the booking process at the jail was the second time in California that newsmen had been jailed for refusing to reveal news sources.

William Farr, a Los Angeles Times reporter, was jailed an indefinite sentence in 1972 when he refused to reveal which attorney involved in the Charles Manson case had given him information about the case.

He served 46 days in jail before being released on an order by U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. The Farr case is still being appealed.

Gruner, Bort, Patterson and Rosato steadfastly refused to tell Peckinpah during a court inquiry how the Bee obtained the testimony.

They did testify that it was not received from a court officer and that there were no criminal activities involved.

All four invoked the California "Shield Law" which permits reporters to withhold their sources, but the courts rejected that defense.

FCC asked to delay plan to add 17 CB channels

WASHINGTON UPI) — Declaring that citizens' band radio interference with television reception "is very bad and getting worse," an industry group Friday asked the Federal Communications Commission to delay its order granting 17 new CB frequencies.

The Maximum Service Telecasters Inc., filed petitions asking first that the FCC reconsider its Aug. 4 decision to expand the number of frequencies from 23 to 40; and second, that the increase be delayed past Jan. 1 in anticipation of new studies on the impact of an increase on television reception.

The petitioners said with the current CB frequencies, reception on channels 2 and 5 is "intolerably damaged" nationwide. The increase in frequencies would, they claimed, greatly increase the 100,000 complaints the FCC receives yearly from disgruntled viewers, and add channel 6 to the "poor reception" list.

Two studies are under way to determine the extent of CB interference, one of them being done by the FCC itself. The order should be delayed pending results of those surveys, the telecasters said. "Any need for additional Citizens Radio Service frequencies cannot be so critical that the commission could not wait the few months necessary to obtain a firm basis upon which to act," the petition said. In its request for a delay, the telecasters pointed to the fact that the FCC had delayed implementation of its order for nearly five months to provide for competitive equality among CB manufacturers.

Viking 2 lands; new hunt for life

pense caused by the communications problem.

The landing apparently occurred at 5:58 p.m. Chicago time as planned.

The spacecraft is a duplicate of Viking 1, and it followed the same landing procedures, using a heat shield, then a parachute and finally three landing rockets to ease to the surface.

Dr. Albert Hibbs at the control center said waiting for the landing with no word on what was happening was "a harrowing experience."

"The mission seems to be a success, frustrating as it is because of the lack of high speed data," he said.

Viking was programmed to take two pictures after it landed and they were to be recorded aboard the orbiter, but it appeared they would not be immediately transmitted to Earth as planned.

Walker charged with illegal hunting

Gov. Daniel Walker was cited Friday for violating a federal game law on the opening day of dove hunting season. Ralph von Dane, special agent for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, issued the citation against Walker and six other persons in connection with an incident Wednesday on a farm near Bath, about 50 miles southwest of Peoria. Walker was charged with illegally baiting mourning doves by luring the birds into close range with corn or other feed. "As I understand it, a warden came into the area where they were hunting and uncovered some dirt where there were some seeds," said Mark Clark, an aide to Walker. "The governor had absolutely no knowledge of that and had no knowledge of putting them there." The complaint carries a penalty of up to a $500 fine and six months in jail. Walker can mail in a $100 penalty if he does not request a hearing before a U.S. magistrate, Mackay said. He also could request a trial before a federal district judge and a jury, Mackay said.

Walker tells campaign donors

Nearly six months after he promised to release them, Gov. Daniel Walker Friday finally made public the balance of those who gave to his 1972 primary election campaign. The names released Friday covered last names from G through Z. Exact amounts were not included and, as with earlier donor lists, no home towns were given, the names were not fully alphabetized and in some cases initials instead of first names were used. Many names were repeated, presumably because these people gave more than once. Of the 1,124 names of individuals, labor unions and corporations divulged, 508 gave amounts unknown. Most names reporters recognized are those of Walker aides or appointees. The bulk of the contributions were under $100, said David Green, Walker's chief fund-raiser. Only 74 donations were over that for this group, he said.

Governor vetoes state fair bill

Gov. Daniel Walker Friday vetoed a bill setting up a state fair board to take control of the scandal-marred fair away from the governor. Walker vetoed the bill on grounds it would violate a constitutional proviso that executive appointments be made only by the executive branch, the argument he used successfully in rejecting a similar bill last year. The bill, Walker said, would force him to "appoint" 10 state fair board members who were actually picked by fair district officials throughout the state.

Glade resigns state position

Robert B. Glade, chairman of the Illinois Capital Development Board, Friday resigned after a disagreement with Gov. Daniel Walker. Glade said he and Walker differed over dismissing the board's executive director, Frank Matzke, following reports the agency's flight privileges were abused. Walker, Glade said, thought Matzke should be replaced but Glade wanted him to stay after the board Wednesday gave Matzke a vote of confidence.

Jobless office going to computers

All local offices of the Illinois Unemployment Insurance Division will be fully converted to the new computer benefit information system by Tuesday, the Illinois Dept. of Labor said Friday. Don McLaurin, administrator of the Bureau of Employment, said work will continue during the Labor Day weekend to complete the conversion. He said the system for payment of benefits will be fully operational in 30 to 40 days and most, if not all, of the backlog will be eliminated by then. Benefit check preparation for the last week was delayed as much as five days by the conversion process, McLaurin said. McLaurin urged claimants experiencing difficulty with the new system to call their local unemployment insurance office or the toll-free number, 800-972-5780. In Chicago the number is 793-5280.

Cleveland bishop heads diocese

Auxiliary Bishop William M. Cosgrove of the Cleveland Catholic Diocese has been named by Pope Paul VI to replace retiring Bishop Albert R. Zuroweste as head of the Diocese of Belleville, which has 130 parishes with a membership of 117,000.

Cosgrove, 59, will be installed in late October or early November. Zuroweste is 75.

14 hurt in Lawrenceville crash

Fourteen persons were injured, none critically, Friday on a fog-shrouded highway when an oil company semi-trailer hit the rear of a school bus and then collided with a camper pushing it into a following pickup truck, police said in Lawrenceville. Five persons were hospitalized, among them Robinson Mayor Donald Gubelman, 45, and his wife, Ann, 43, who were in the camper. Witnesses said the northbound Lawrenceville Community Unit School bus with 10 children aboard was slowing to pick up more children about four miles north of town on Illinois Rt. 1 when it was hit in the left rear by the semi-trailer carrying a generator and a load of corrosives. The semi then collided with the southbound camper and pushed it into a pickup truck driven by Daniel Shelby, 24, Flat Rock, who was treated and released.

Official criticizes recall of assembly

Lester W. Brann Jr., president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, in Chicago Friday criticized Gov. Daniel Walker for calling a special session of the legislature in the "superheated" atmosphere of an election year. The governor Thursday called the Illinois General Assembly into session next Wednesday to deal with state aid to schools. "The governor's call for a special session has made public the tip of a complex legal, political and financial iceberg which he, himself, has created," Brann said. "Gov. Walker is trying to force the legislature to accept his solution to a problem in a superheated election year political atmosphere, when reason may not prevail, by enacting school formula changes which are questionable in their effect and may actually penalize many school districts in the state." Brann said the legislation should examine "The whole state school financial picture" rather than using a "patchwork, Christmas Tree" approach as contained in a bill dealing with declining enrollments.

Chicagoan sues Nixon, Liddy

Former President Richard M. Nixon and convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy figure as defendants in a $10 million damage suit filed in U.S. District Court by a Chicago man, who claims he was one of the White House "dirty tricksters." Marshall Zeidman, a convicted gun runner, filed the suit Thursday claiming he was framed in the end by his employers to "deter and silence" him. Zeidman, who was convicted May 7, 1975, for selling a German machine gun to a federal agent, claimed he disrupted and infiltrated anti-Vietnam groups and other radical organizations because he felt it was his "patriotic duty." Nixon and Liddy were named as defendants in the suit along with three other persons, including a Chicago police officer and a Chicago reporter. Zeidman claimed he worked for the Chicago Police Department's so-called "Red Squad," which he said received its orders directly from Liddy in the White House.

Lake water use estimates to be studied Sept. 15

Differing estimates of the future demand for water in the Northwest suburbs and throughout the six-county metropolitan area will be examined at a state hearing Sept. 15.

The conflicting estimates of suburban water needs relates directly to the allocation of Lake Michigan water expected before the end of he year.

Keifer and Associates, consulting engineers for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation's division of water resources, will prepare a table that shows two water-use projections prepared by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission as well as estimates by individual communities, a DOT spokesman said.

The estimates prepared by most Northwest suburban municipalities applying for a lake water allocation are significantly higher than "NIPC's projections.

FOR EXAMPLE, Schaumburg estimates it will need 10.6 million gallons of water a day by 1985, while NIPC puts the figure at 7.33 million gallons a day.

Differences in the figures are a concern to Northwest suburban officials because future demand will be considered by the DOT in allocating the limited amount of water Illinois is permitted to take out of Lake Michigan.

Keifer and Associates has recommended water allocations for the year 2010 that would meet the Northwest suburbs' water needs through 1985, but would be insufficient in several villages by 1990, according to community estimates.

Keifer and Associates will prepare a table that summarizes NIPC's original estimates made in March, "NIPC'S August revised estimates and the communities' estimates.

The Dept. of Transportation is concluding months of hearings on Lake Michigan water requests. Officials are expected to announce allocation of the water before the end of the year.

'Talent bank' of women formed by task force

by WANDALYN RICE

Whoever wins the governorship in Illinois is going to face the prospect of more than 1,000 appointments to state boards, commissions and agencies and a suburban-based task force has been set up to make sure women have a shot at many of these appointments.

The task force, billed as nonpartisan by its Democratic leader, University of Illinois Trustee Nina Shepherd, is developing a women's talent bank to provide the names of qualified women to the governor.

THE TASK force was first set up, Mrs. Shepherd said after she had a conversation with Democratic Gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett about the need to appoint more women to state posts.

Mrs. Shepherd said Howlett "commented that there were so many qualified women in the state if he could just find them when he made his appointments."

The result of the conversation was the formation of the task force, including Mrs. Shepherd and leaders of the League of Women Voters, the American Assn. of University Women, the Assn. of Business and Professional Women, Illinois Bar Assn. and Communication Workers Union. The task force is operating from informal headquarters at Mrs. Shepherd's home, 256 Scott Ln., Winnetka.

Mrs. Shepherd said she has contacted campaign officials with Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson and has received an enthusiastic response. The results of the task force work will be turned over to whoever is elected governor, she said.

TO COMPILE a "talent bank" with the resumes of qualified women, the task force has sent letters to state women's organizations, Mrs. Shepherd said.

"Our first emphasis is on the boards and commissions where women could serve. Because I'm realistic, I think that's a good place for women to transfer their skills they have gotten outside of government," she said.

The talent bank will contain the names of many women who have not been involved in politics in the past, she said. The bank is short of business women, especially those with backgrounds in banking and finance.

TASK FORCE members are trying not to "oversell" the talent bank to women who will be included in it. "We can't promise an appointment to anyone," Mrs. Shepherd said.

She said no one knows how many women are appointed by Illinois governors, but a recent federal study showed fewer than 3 per cent of presidential appointments are women. "My gut feeling is that it's even worse in state government," she said. "I think any kind of improvement will be good."

Once the talent bank is turned over to the new governor Mrs. Shepherd said she hopes a way will be found to keep it alive.

"My goal is to have the bank turned over to the governor's woman's advocate for the state Commission on the Status of Women so it would be an ongoing thing," she said.

Zeidman, who was convicted May 7, 1975, for selling a German machine gun to a federal agent, claimed he disrupted and infiltrated anti-Vietnam groups and other radical organizations because he felt it was his "patriotic duty." Nixon and Liddy were named as defendants in the suit along with three other persons, including a Chicago police officer and a Chicago reporter. Zeidman claimed he worked for the Chicago Police Department's so-called "Red Squad," which he said received its orders directly from Liddy in the White House.

Lake water use estimates to be studied Sept. 15

Differing estimates of the future demand for water in the Northwest suburbs and throughout the six-county metropolitan area will be examined at a state hearing Sept. 15.

The conflicting estimates of suburban water needs relates directly to the allocation of Lake Michigan water expected before the end of he year.

Keifer and Associates, consulting engineers for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation's division of water resources, will prepare a table that shows two water-use projections prepared by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission as well as estimates by individual communities, a DOT spokesman said.

The estimates prepared by most Northwest suburban municipalities applying for a lake water allocation are significantly higher than "NIPC's projections.

FOR EXAMPLE, Schaumburg estimates it will need 10.6 million gallons of water a day by 1985, while NIPC puts the figure at 7.33 million gallons a day.

Differences in the figures are a concern to Northwest suburban officials because future demand will be considered by the DOT in allocating the limited amount of water Illinois is permitted to take out of Lake Michigan.

Keifer and Associates has recommended water allocations for the year 2010 that would meet the Northwest suburbs' water needs through 1985, but would be insufficient in several villages by 1990, according to community estimates.

Keifer and Associates will prepare a table that summarizes NIPC's original estimates made in March, "NIPC'S August revised estimates and the communities' estimates.

The Dept. of Transportation is concluding months of hearings on Lake Michigan water requests. Officials are expected to announce allocation of the water before the end of the year.

'Talent bank' of women formed by task force

by WANDALYN RICE

Whoever wins the governorship in Illinois is going to face the prospect of more than 1,000 appointments to state boards, commissions and agencies and a suburban-based task force has been set up to make sure women have a shot at many of these appointments.

The task force, billed as nonpartisan by its Democratic leader, University of Illinois Trustee Nina Shepherd, is developing a women's talent bank to provide the names of qualified women to the governor.

THE TASK force was first set up, Mrs. Shepherd said after she had a conversation with Democratic Gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett about the need to appoint more women to state posts.

Mrs. Shepherd said Howlett "commented that there were so many qualified women in the state if he could just find them when he made his appointments."

The result of the conversation was the formation of the task force, including Mrs. Shepherd and leaders of the League of Women Voters, the American Assn. of University Women, the Assn. of Business and Professional Women, Illinois Bar Assn. and Communication Workers Union. The task force is operating from informal headquarters at Mrs. Shepherd's home, 256 Scott Ln., Winnetka.

Mrs. Shepherd said she has contacted campaign officials with Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson and has received an enthusiastic response. The results of the task force work will be turned over to whoever is elected governor, she said.

TO COMPILE a "talent bank" with the resumes of qualified women, the task force has sent letters to state women's organizations, Mrs. Shepherd said.

"Our first emphasis is on the boards and commissions where women could serve. Because I'm realistic, I think that's a good place for women to transfer their skills they have gotten outside of government," she said.

The talent bank will contain the names of many women who have not been involved in politics in the past, she said. The bank is short of business women, especially those with backgrounds in banking and finance.

TASK FORCE members are trying not to "oversell" the talent bank to women who will be included in it. "We can't promise an appointment to anyone," Mrs. Shepherd said.

She said no one knows how many women are appointed by Illinois governors, but a recent federal study showed fewer than 3 per cent of presidential appointments are women. "My gut feeling is that it's even worse in state government," she said. "I think any kind of improvement will be good."

Once the talent bank is turned over to the new governor Mrs. Shepherd said she hopes a way will be found to keep it alive.

"My goal is to have the bank turned over to the governor's woman's advocate for the state Commission on the Status of Women so it would be an ongoing thing," she said.

Wicker adds style to small area

Your home

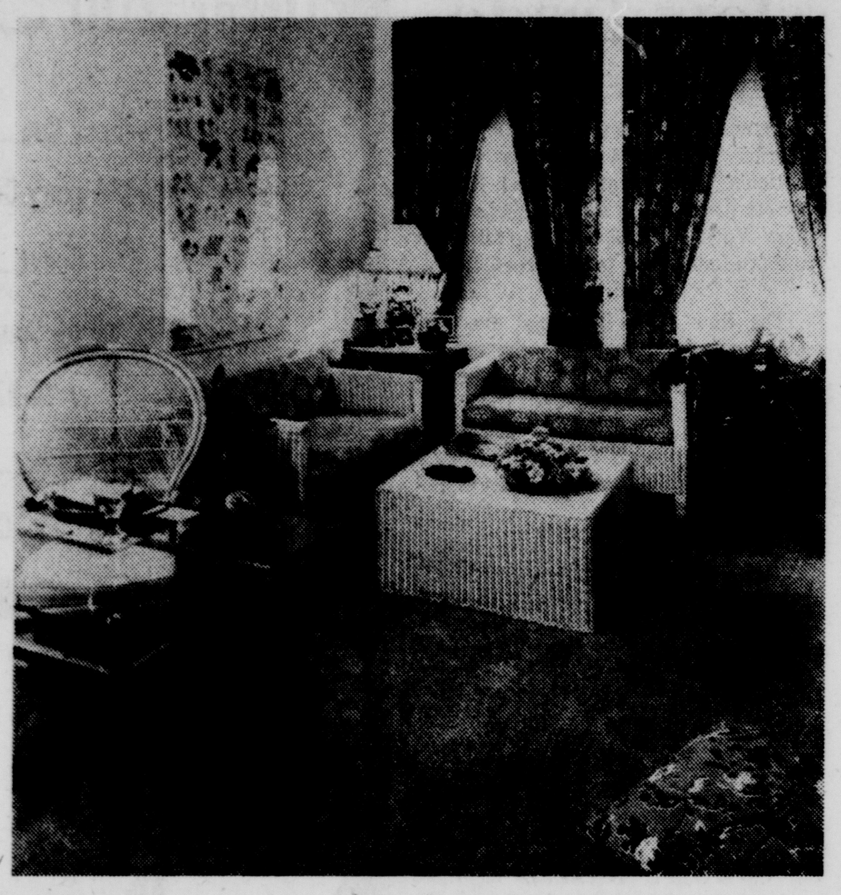
Since one-person living seemes to be on the increase, what kind of furniture to choose for the single life is an issue of significance — especially if that single life is merely a temporary phase. The room shown today offers a simple solution and one that makes the investment part of a future lifestyle.

For this living room in a city apartment, the owner chose small-scale wicker seating, but then fooled the eye by using a big blocky wicker coffee table. The thinking was that dinky little tables would give the seating area a flimsy, underfurnished look. And the bigger table had ample surface to support floor-sitting guests at informal dinner parties.

The wicker also seems less cumbersome in a tight space. It has clean lines, fashioned after the "Parsons" look, and the cushions have been covered in garden-fresh colors.

The carpeting was probably the most important investment and one that makes the biggest difference in a room. Here, a nubby freize style, Salem's Endura II, has been chosen in a light oatmeal texture. The fiber is Allied Chemical's soil-hiding Ansonylon that carries a five-year guarantee. It can outlive a few changes of residence and snap back in another environment. The see-through glass table is also a good traditional solution for a cramped space. This one provides desk surface for homework and check writing when it's not serving as the dining table for small, formal dining or solo breakfasts.The woven, high-back chair is another see-through device that keeps the eye moving.

The windows were small and badly placed. So an old stage and movie trick was used: a plywood frame that also acts as a valance for drapery hardware. The idea and fabrics used in this apartment were designed by Carleton Varney who also suggested a ceiling paint of soft green. This overhead touch of color keeps the summery quality flowing throughout the space.



LIVING AU NATUREL — Lightweight materials and natural textures, a soil-resistant Salem carpet and small-scale furniture mixed with standard sizes are the basics for one-person living. The Anso nylon carpeting comes with a five-year guarantee.

"Today the mailroom, tomorrow the presidency!"

Dow gains 4 pts. in slow trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, undaunted by a rise in the nation's jobless rate, rallied Friday for its fifth gain in six sessions on the New York Stock Exchange, although the pre-Labor Day trading was slow.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off about three points at the outset, rallied to gain 4.32 to 989.11. Despite Thursday's 1.16-point loss, the blue-chip average gained 25.18 points for the week, the best gain since it climbed 29.44 points the week ended Feb. 20.

The NYSE common stock index gained 0.20 to 55.65 and the average price of an NYSE common share increased 12 cents. Advances topped declines, 847 to 476, among the 1,812 issues crossing the tape.

(Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.38 to 104.30.)

VOLUME TOTALED 13,280,000 shares down sharply from the 18,920,000 traded Thursday. The slow trading indicated many investors left early for Labor Day. The market will be closed Monday for the holiday.

Analysts said some buying represented short covering — replacing borrowed shares sold earlier — prior to the holiday weekend. This is a traditional practice, they said.

Early selling was prompted by the Labor Department's report that the August unemployment rate rose 0.1 per cent to 7.9, the third consecutive increase in the rate. Labor Commissioner Jules Shiskin said the increase will make it tough for the Ford administration to meet its goal of 7 per cent by year end.

But Ford and his economic spokesman Alan Greenspan said 7 per cent remained a possibility by the end of the year. Democrat Jimmy Carter charged the administration has no plan to trim the jobless rate.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by one cent. Volume totaled 1,450,000 shares, compared with 1,660,000 traded Thursday.

Jobless rate over 7% in state, nation

The nation's unemployment rate edged up slightly in August to 7.9 per cent, its highest level this year, the government said Friday. Increased unemployment in the six-county Chicago area was cited Friday as one of the main reasons for a jump in Illinois' unemployment rate from 6.9 per cent in July to 7.2 in August, the Illinois Bureau of Employment Security reported.

Although last month's national unemployment increase was smaller than in the two previous months, the 0.1 per cent rise constituted the third consecutive month that the jobless rate has gone up, the Labor Dept. said. Unemployment went up 0.2 per cent in June and 0.3 per cent in July. The overall 7.9 per cent rate of 7.5 million jobless persons is the highest unemployment has been since last December, when it was 8.3 per cent. Those with jobs also increased slightly in August, rising from July's 87,907,000 to 87,981,000. Another 10,700 Chicagoans lost their jobs in August, bringing the total number of unemployed in the six-county Chicago area to 232,400. The unemployment rate in the Chicago metropolitan area is up from 7 per cent in July to 7.3 per cent in August.

Milk prices to rise 7c a gallon

Mile prices in the Chicago area are expected to jump from 7 to 10 cents a gallon by Monday, industry sources said. The retail increase will reflect a 60 cent per hundred-weight increase in the cost of raw milk which will be imposed by the Central Milk Producers Cooperative, a group of 17 milk cooperatives. The increase was blamed on the cost of raw milk, seasonal shortages and increased plant and operating expenses. Retail prices for a gallon of milk in the Chicago area have ranged from $1.29 to $1.61 in recent months.

'RealLemon' a monopoly: FTC

A Federal Trade Commission judge ruled Friday that Borden Inc., makers of "RealLemon," has a monopoly in the processed lemon juice business and should be forced to license its brand so competitors can use it. Administrative Law Judge Daniel H. Hanscom said RealLemon dominates up to 90 per cent of the market for lemon juice and the company, through various anticompetitive practices, has made it impossible for new brands to get in on the business.

Woodcock hopeful on pact talks

United Auto Workers Pres. Leonard Woodcock said Friday the tone of auto contract negotiations had improved since Tuesday when the union angrily rejected Ford Motor Company's initial wage offer to its 170,000 workers. In his first meeting with newsmen since he leveled a blast at the Ford offer, Woodcock said there still was enough time to reach agreement on a pattern-setting auto contract and avoid a nationwide strike at midnight Sep. 14.

'Matchbook' calculator by Casio

Casio, Inc. recently introduced a new electronic calculator about the size of a matchbook. Called the "Micro-Mini," the calculator is described by Casio as the world's smallest electronic calculator. It weighs 1.2 ounces including a battery. The Micro-Mini can add, subtract, multiply and divide, and it has a constant for multiplication and division. Casio has a facility in Schaumburg.

GM 'cruise control' vans recalled

General Motors Friday announced it is asking owners of about 16,000 Chevrolet and GMC 1976 G-Vans equipped with cruise control to return the vehicles to dealers for possible replacement of a fastener connecting the cruise control bracket to the carburetor accelerator lever. A GM spokesman said the incorrect type of nut could loosen, eventually fall off, and possibly lodge in the accelerator control linkage. He said this could cause the throttle linkage to be held in the open position and prevent the engine from returning to idle speed.

Washington ferry system strikes

The nation's largest ferry fleet was shut down by a wildcat strike Friday, only hours before 350,000 vacationers and 100,000 vehicles were expected to begin using the ferries over the Labor Day weekend, We'll go into court and get a restraining order to halt the strike unless we can get in touch with the union and they promise to return to work," said Lee Kramer, a spokesman for the Washington State Ferry System. The strike was not officially sanctioned by the Masters, Mates and Pilots Branch No. 6.

Jobless rate over 7% in state, nation

The nation's unemployment rate edged up slightly in August to 7.9 per cent, its highest level this year, the government said Friday. Increased unemployment in the six-county Chicago area was cited Friday as one of the main reasons for a jump in Illinois' unemployment rate from 6.9 per cent in July to 7.2 in August, the Illinois Bureau of Employment Security reported.

Although last month's national unemployment increase was smaller than in the two previous months, the 0.1 per cent rise constituted the third consecutive month that the jobless rate has gone up, the Labor Dept. said. Unemployment went up 0.2 per cent in June and 0.3 per cent in July. The overall 7.9 per cent rate of 7.5 million jobless persons is the highest unemployment has been since last December, when it was 8.3 per cent. Those with jobs also increased slightly in August, rising from July's 87,907,000 to 87,981,000. Another 10,700 Chicagoans lost their jobs in August, bringing the total number of unemployed in the six-county Chicago area to 232,400. The unemployment rate in the Chicago metropolitan area is up from 7 per cent in July to 7.3 per cent in August.

Milk prices to rise 7c a gallon

Mile prices in the Chicago area are expected to jump from 7 to 10 cents a gallon by Monday, industry sources said. The retail increase will reflect a 60 cent per hundred-weight increase in the cost of raw milk which will be imposed by the Central Milk Producers Cooperative, a group of 17 milk cooperatives. The increase was blamed on the cost of raw milk, seasonal shortages and increased plant and operating expenses. Retail prices for a gallon of milk in the Chicago area have ranged from $1.29 to $1.61 in recent months.

'RealLemon' a monopoly: FTC

A Federal Trade Commission judge ruled Friday that Borden Inc., makers of "RealLemon," has a monopoly in the processed lemon juice business and should be forced to license its brand so competitors can use it. Administrative Law Judge Daniel H. Hanscom said RealLemon dominates up to 90 per cent of the market for lemon juice and the company, through various anticompetitive practices, has made it impossible for new brands to get in on the business.

Woodcock hopeful on pact talks

United Auto Workers Pres. Leonard Woodcock said Friday the tone of auto contract negotiations had improved since Tuesday when the union angrily rejected Ford Motor Company's initial wage offer to its 170,000 workers. In his first meeting with newsmen since he leveled a blast at the Ford offer, Woodcock said there still was enough time to reach agreement on a pattern-setting auto contract and avoid a nationwide strike at midnight Sep. 14.

'Matchbook' calculator by Casio

Casio, Inc. recently introduced a new electronic calculator about the size of a matchbook. Called the "Micro-Mini," the calculator is described by Casio as the world's smallest electronic calculator. It weighs 1.2 ounces including a battery. The Micro-Mini can add, subtract, multiply and divide, and it has a constant for multiplication and division. Casio has a facility in Schaumburg.

GM 'cruise control' vans recalled

General Motors Friday announced it is asking owners of about 16,000 Chevrolet and GMC 1976 G-Vans equipped with cruise control to return the vehicles to dealers for possible replacement of a fastener connecting the cruise control bracket to the carburetor accelerator lever. A GM spokesman said the incorrect type of nut could loosen, eventually fall off, and possibly lodge in the accelerator control linkage. He said this could cause the throttle linkage to be held in the open position and prevent the engine from returning to idle speed.

Washington ferry system strikes

The nation's largest ferry fleet was shut down by a wildcat strike Friday, only hours before 350,000 vacationers and 100,000 vehicles were expected to begin using the ferries over the Labor Day weekend, We'll go into court and get a restraining order to halt the strike unless we can get in touch with the union and they promise to return to work," said Lee Kramer, a spokesman for the Washington State Ferry System. The strike was not officially sanctioned by the Masters, Mates and Pilots Branch No. 6.

Dow gains 4 pts. in slow trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, undaunted by a rise in the nation's jobless rate, rallied Friday for its fifth gain in six sessions on the New York Stock Exchange, although the pre-Labor Day trading was slow.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off about three points at the outset, rallied to gain 4.32 to 989.11. Despite Thursday's 1.16-point loss, the blue-chip average gained 25.18 points for the week, the best gain since it climbed 29.44 points the week ended Feb. 20.

The NYSE common stock index gained 0.20 to 55.65 and the average price of an NYSE common share increased 12 cents. Advances topped declines, 847 to 476, among the 1,812 issues crossing the tape.

(Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.38 to 104.30.)

VOLUME TOTALED 13,280,000 shares down sharply from the 18,920,000 traded Thursday. The slow trading indicated many investors left early for Labor Day. The market will be closed Monday for the holiday.

Analysts said some buying represented short covering — replacing borrowed shares sold earlier — prior to the holiday weekend. This is a traditional practice, they said.

Early selling was prompted by the Labor Department's report that the August unemployment rate rose 0.1 per cent to 7.9, the third consecutive increase in the rate. Labor Commissioner Jules Shiskin said the increase will make it tough for the Ford administration to meet its goal of 7 per cent by year end.

But Ford and his economic spokesman Alan Greenspan said 7 per cent remained a possibility by the end of the year. Democrat Jimmy Carter charged the administration has no plan to trim the jobless rate.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by one cent. Volume totaled 1,450,000 shares, compared with 1,660,000 traded Thursday.

Catholics, Lutherans share Holy Communion at meet

World of religion

by David E. Anderson

In a recent national meeting, Roman Catholic and Lutheran college students and campus ministers celebrated Holy Communion.

Already a great deal of unsanctioned, irregular intercommunion between members of the two faiths has occurred, and the frequency of such communion appears to be growing.

Dr. George Lindbeck, a member of the Lutheran team of theologians involved in the Bilateral doctorial discussions with the Roman Catholics, recently issued a warning about such unauthorized actions.

WRITING IN the spring issue of Temple University's Journal of Ecumenical Studies, (the whole issue has since been republished as "the Eucharist in Ecumenical Dialogue" by Paulist Press) Lindbeck said intercommunion "sometimes harms rather than helps eucharistic worship and the unity of the church."

According to Lindbeck, what the unity participants in the worship services intend to celebrate is not really eucharistic unity, but rather "a unity of shared sentiments — friendship and respect, or in common commitments to such cases as justice and peace and struggles against poverty or oppression.

Such celebrations, he contends, threaten "to become an expression of subjective attitudes of togetherness, rather than a efficacious sing of God's gift, and can lead to views of the church as evanascent fellowship of the like-minded, rather than as a universal and perduring community sustained by transcendent loyalties."

Yet, as the students and campus ministers made plain in their joint statement: Roman Catholics and Lutherans "recognize the validity of each others' ministry. We proclaim together the presence of Christ and the sacrament. We assert our sacrifice and thanksgiving in response to the one timeless sacrifice of Christ on the Cross. The foundation has been laid."

Catholics, Lutherans share Holy Communion at meet

World of religion

by David E. Anderson

In a recent national meeting, Roman Catholic and Lutheran college students and campus ministers celebrated Holy Communion.

Already a great deal of unsanctioned, irregular intercommunion between members of the two faiths has occurred, and the frequency of such communion appears to be growing.

Dr. George Lindbeck, a member of the Lutheran team of theologians involved in the Bilateral doctorial discussions with the Roman Catholics, recently issued a warning about such unauthorized actions.

WRITING IN the spring issue of Temple University's Journal of Ecumenical Studies, (the whole issue has since been republished as "the Eucharist in Ecumenical Dialogue" by Paulist Press) Lindbeck said intercommunion "sometimes harms rather than helps eucharistic worship and the unity of the church."

According to Lindbeck, what the unity participants in the worship services intend to celebrate is not really eucharistic unity, but rather "a unity of shared sentiments — friendship and respect, or in common commitments to such cases as justice and peace and struggles against poverty or oppression.

Such celebrations, he contends, threaten "to become an expression of subjective attitudes of togetherness, rather than a efficacious sing of God's gift, and can lead to views of the church as evanascent fellowship of the like-minded, rather than as a universal and perduring community sustained by transcendent loyalties."

Yet, as the students and campus ministers made plain in their joint statement: Roman Catholics and Lutherans "recognize the validity of each others' ministry. We proclaim together the presence of Christ and the sacrament. We assert our sacrifice and thanksgiving in response to the one timeless sacrifice of Christ on the Cross. The foundation has been laid."

Weddings

Nancy Sorenson—Joseph F. Reiss

An original piece of music, composed by E. Michael McLaughlin of Des Plaines and with the words written by the bride, "To Us With Love," was sung at the Aug. 7 wedding of Nancy Louise Sorensen and Joseph F. Reiss.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Sorensen, Mount Prospect, Nancy and Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Reiss, also of Mount Prospect, were married in St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Reiss

Nancy chose a Victorian gown of white organza trimmed in Cluny lace for the 5 p.m. service. A Camelot headpiece covered in lace held her fingertip veil, and she carried orchids with baby's breath and pale pink roses. Her "something old" was a ring that had belonged to her maternal grandmother.

Her sister, Karen Moskal, Clarkston, Ga., was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Mary Ann, and his cousin, Karen Posch, Chicago. Their gowns were in blue chiffon, and their flowers were white carnations and roses with blue-tipped carnations and baby's breath.

GREGORY KOZENY of Schiller Park was best man, and ushers were Michael Krupa, Chicago, and the bride's brother, Jeffrey.

A reception for 125 guests was held at the Camelot Restaurant.

The new Mrs. Reiss, a '73 graduate of Prospect High and a '75 graduate of Harper College, is employed at Van Driel's in Mount Prospect. The groom, a '72 graduate of Forest View High, was graduated from Loyola University in 1976 with a degree in physics.

The newlyweds are residing in a Palatine apartment.

Susan O'Brian—Andrew J. Arnold

A single white rose from the bride's bouquet to each mother was part of the ceremony when Susan Marie O'Brian, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William E. O'Brian of Prospect Heights married Andrew J. Arnold Aug. 7 in St. Alphonsus Liguori Church, Prospect Heights.

The bride wore a white jersey Alencon lace-trimmed gown with beaded bodice. Her cathedral veil was also trimmed in Alencon, and she carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, apricot roses, baby's breath and stephanotis.

An apricot-yellow color scheme was carried out in the gowns of the maid of honor, Susan's sister, Cathie; and the bridesmaids, Denise Beam of Des Plaines and the groom's sister, Pamela. Their Empire apricot gowns were topped with short jackets in an apricot and yellow floral pattern, and they wore white straw hats and carried fireside baskets of yellow mums, baby's breath and apricot roses.

THE GROOM, son of the Richard C. Arnolds of Lombard, chose Ted Dane of Wakefield, R.I., as best man, and Steve Willensky of Bayonne, N.J., and Doug Baran of Chicago as groomsmen. His brother, Don and the bride's brother, Ed, were ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Arnold

The new Mrs. Arnold is a Wheeling High School graduate and holds a degree from Illinois State University. Her husband has a degree from Brown University, Providence, R.I., and works at Johnson Controls in Lansing, Ill., where the couple now lives.

Madeleine Evans—Douglas Larsson

After their wedding and reception Aug. 7, Madeleine C. Evans and Douglas R. Larsson left on a two-week motorcycle tour of the East Coast. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Evans of Rolling Meadows, and the groom, son of Mrs. Robert Larsson of Palatine, exchanged vows at 10 a.m. in St. Colette Catholic Church and then greeted 75 guests at a luncheon at the Pickwick House.

Madeleine is a legal secretary in Mount Prospect. Douglas is with the Rolling Meadows Police Department. Both are local high school graduates, the bride from Fremd in '72 and the groom from Forest View in '69.

They are making their home in Schaumburg.

A RAINBOW setting was chosen for the double ring ceremony. Susan Lally of Hillside, matron of honor, was gowned in yellow jersey with a white lace bib and topped by a yellow picture hat. She carried apricot roses, green carnations, yellow daisies and baby's breath.

The two bridesmaids, Lynn Keating, Palatine, and Barbara Victor, Schaumburg, wore identical gowns, one in green and one in apricot, and both carried green carnations, yellow daisies and baby's breath.

The bride's gown was of white jersey trimmed at the neckline and sleeves with lace appliques. She made her lace headpiece and lace-edged waist-length veil. Her bouquet was of white roses with a single red rose in the center, and with it she carried a blue and white handkerchief belonging to her grandmother.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas R. Larsson

Ivan Lally, husband of the matron of honor, was best man and their son, Kelly, 4, served as ring bearer. Groomsmen were Douglas' brother, Brandon; Thomas Keating, Palatine; and Michael Victor, Schaumburg.

Among the special wedding guests were the couple's grandparents, the Fred Gaardbos and the Ray Evanses, all of Chicago.

Once-shunned Oriental ware now much desired

with Grace Carolyn

"Made in Japan" used to be synonymous with cheaply made or not very desirable in the collecting world, but this is no longer true. Oriental antiques of Japanese, Chinese or Korean origin are among the most desirable nowadays, even those which are b a c k-stamped "Nippon," "Made in Japan," "China," etc. Such markings usually mean the articles came into this country around or after the turn of the century.

Chinese export wares, made especially for a foreign market (things that would not have been deemed suitable for use in a Chinese home), have been brought to America since the 17th century. Although many of these are over-embellished and gaudy, some pieces are purely and simply beautiful, in the rally old Oriental style.

AN OLD CHINESE pattern, a favorite of grandma's china cupboard in the 1890s, is Rose Medallion or Rose Canton. (Some people make a distinction between the two — that the Medallion has figures of persons in the panels or "reserves," while the Canton is made up only of florals or other designs.) The main color is rosy pink, usually on a white or light green background, and the roses seem more like peonies.

Rose Medallion was originally made for the first Chinese export trade and is difficult to pinpoint as to exact date, since it is thought by some authors that the predecessor, called Mandarin or Medallion china, was brought to the United States as early as just after the War of 1812.

Most of what we see in shops now was imported after 1860, and if it has "Made in China" or "China" stamped on the back, it is, of course, post-1891, when the McKinley Act required all goods for export be marked with country of origin.

Most of this china is not marked with Oriental characters except a few with the markings of the Ch'ing dynasty or period. The Ch'ing period refers to about the middle 1600s to the late 1800s. Chinese historical divisions, beginning with our A.D. calendar are known as the Han, then the Period of Division, then the T'ang, Sung, Yuan, Ming and Ch'ing. From about 1900 to the present historians say the Republic Period.

THERE IS A VERY good book on the market, which I have recommended several times, "Oriental Antiques and Collectibles" by Arthur and Grace Chu, in which the majority of the collectibles pictured are actually available on the market, not unattainable museum pieces.

Through the Chus' own experiences at antiques shows, sales and flea markets, they have seen many poor offerings overpriced even by apparently honest dealers. On the othe hand, they have found treasures for a little Chinese song! Their experiences made good reading.

Fakes abound, they say, and one must develop an educated eye. "The best tools a collector can use are his knowledge, his discerning eyes, his sensitive fingers, and his logic, but not his ears." Don't believe everything you hear is what they mean, so give me an argument if you disagree with my word in these columns. I appreciate corrections and criticism. Sometimes I have to eat my words, a most unpalatable dish.

The Rose Medallion showsn in the picture is part of my own small collection, backstamped in orange-colored ink "China." It is not, of course, as valuable as earlier pieces would be, but was a good buy at the time. You may also buy quite attractive new Rose Medallion at gift and department stores. The color is brighter and the decorations more carelessly done than in the older pieces. My latest price guide shows a similar teapot at $75 and a similar platter at $85. I would consider both those prices high for such late china.

(If you have questions, please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Although many of these are over-embellished and gaudy, some pieces are purely and simply beautiful, in the rally old Oriental style.

AN OLD CHINESE pattern, a favorite of grandma's china cupboard in the 1890s, is Rose Medallion or Rose Canton. (Some people make a distinction between the two — that the Medallion has figures of persons in the panels or "reserves," while the Canton is made up only of florals or other designs.) The main color is rosy pink, usually on a white or light green background, and the roses seem more like peonies.

Rose Medallion was originally made for the first Chinese export trade and is difficult to pinpoint as to exact date, since it is thought by some authors that the predecessor, called Mandarin or Medallion china, was brought to the United States as early as just after the War of 1812.

Most of what we see in shops now was imported after 1860, and if it has "Made in China" or "China" stamped on the back, it is, of course, post-1891, when the McKinley Act required all goods for export be marked with country of origin.

Most of this china is not marked with Oriental characters except a few with the markings of the Ch'ing dynasty or period. The Ch'ing period refers to about the middle 1600s to the late 1800s. Chinese historical divisions, beginning with our A.D. calendar are known as the Han, then the Period of Division, then the T'ang, Sung, Yuan, Ming and Ch'ing. From about 1900 to the present historians say the Republic Period.

THERE IS A VERY good book on the market, which I have recommended several times, "Oriental Antiques and Collectibles" by Arthur and Grace Chu, in which the majority of the collectibles pictured are actually available on the market, not unattainable museum pieces.

Through the Chus' own experiences at antiques shows, sales and flea markets, they have seen many poor offerings overpriced even by apparently honest dealers. On the othe hand, they have found treasures for a little Chinese song! Their experiences made good reading.

Fakes abound, they say, and one must develop an educated eye. "The best tools a collector can use are his knowledge, his discerning eyes, his sensitive fingers, and his logic, but not his ears." Don't believe everything you hear is what they mean, so give me an argument if you disagree with my word in these columns. I appreciate corrections and criticism. Sometimes I have to eat my words, a most unpalatable dish.

The Rose Medallion showsn in the picture is part of my own small collection, backstamped in orange-colored ink "China." It is not, of course, as valuable as earlier pieces would be, but was a good buy at the time. You may also buy quite attractive new Rose Medallion at gift and department stores. The color is brighter and the decorations more carelessly done than in the older pieces. My latest price guide shows a similar teapot at $75 and a similar platter at $85. I would consider both those prices high for such late china.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Flu shots advised for most persons

My 10-year-old sister recovered from the 1918 flu. My other sister and I were exposed to it but did not get it. I am 69 years old. Would I be immune to the flu or should I accept the vaccine proposed by President Ford?

Since it is not definite that you had the flue, and it has been a long time ago, I think you should take the flu shots unless you have a medical condition that your doctor thinks should prohibit it.

In general, older people or those with heart, lung or other serious illnesses should take flu shots whenever any new flu epidemic is in the offing. I think all the debate over the advisability of the crash program for this year's epidemic has obscured the point that thousands of people died with the serious epidemic just last year.

Each time we have a flu epidemic, regardless of the type of flu, we still lose a large number of people. It is a dangerous disease even with our modern treatment methods. That being the case, I am in favor of all those with any decrease in resistance at all, and perhaps all persons, having the protection they need. A flu shot could save your life. So my advice to everyone who has no medical problem that would rule against it is to get your flu shots. I'm selfish and want to keep all my readers as long as possible.

To give you more information on these respiratory illnesses I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-1, The Cold, Flu group. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

A friend of mine is continually giving me homemade Italian sausage and telling me it is good for me. This sausage is made with uncooked pork, hot peppers, wine, vinegar, garlic and other ingredients and it is not cooked before eating. Apparently they have been eating it in Italy for centuries.

As I am aware that pork is not always a healthy meat when uncooked, please confirm whether or not the above spices make it safe to eat. It is not smoked sausage either.

The chief danger is in getting trichinosis, a worm-like infestation of the muscles of your body that results almost exclusively from eating improperly cooked infected pork.

Trichinosis was common in New York until recent years because a principle source of pork for the city was New Jersey, where pigs were fed untreated garbage. This practice has been curtailed and the incidence of trichinosis has decreased.

Nevertheless, this infection is still common and you find it in the United States, Canada and Europe. Sausages, wursts and hamburger are all common ways of spreading the disease. The hamburger sold in stores often has a little pork added or the same grinder used for sausage is used to make hamburger.

I don't think you should touch that sausage with a 10-foot pole. The only safe pork is that which has been frozen at minus 32 degrees C for several hours or that cooked to temperatures of 60 degrees C (140 degrees F) for 30 minutes for each pound of pork. These temperatures refer to the internal temperature of the meat.

Overuse of salt linked to high blood pressure

Dear Dorothy: I keep hearing and reading that we're all supposed to quit using salt. I'm not arguing — I'd just like to be told why.—Dorothy McMillan

The why simply is that overuse of salt has been proved to have a direct relationship to high blood pressure and its more serious stage, hypertension. The American Heart Assn. says the average person consumes four or five times as much as is needed each day. Dr. Jean Mayer says taking the salt shaker off the dinner table and cutting down on the salt in cooking is the one vital thing people can do for the health of their hearts. Dr. Keith Sehnert goes one step beyond. Take both the salt shaker and the sugar bowl off the table, he urges.

Dear Dorothy: Forgive me for loading this on you, but you seem to be the only one handling a wide range of queries. My car needs some new tires, but the mechanic said it also needs new shock absorbers. I thought these things lasted for years. Since the car is only 18 months old, I'm wondering if I'm being given one of those runarounds.—Grace Glanzman

You've probably been given the right information. Shock absorbers last something on the order of 20,000 miles, give or take the kind of roads you have to travel.

Dear Dorothy: Your column has mentioned ginger root several times. I'm curious as to how it's kept and handled.—Bess Thain

It can be refrigerated for up to a couple of weeks, as is. Some people peel and slice it and refrigerate it in a covered jar filled with dry sherry. Keeps this way for months.

Dear Dorothy: I remember you saying it wasn't necessary to buy sodium perborate at the drugstore, that you could buy it cheaper at the supermarket. I've looked at every bleach on the shelves and not one says it contains sodium perborate. What do you say about that?—Mrs. Henry Weiskopf

The manufacturer switched signals on me. The all-purpose bleach that used to contain those words now says it contains oxygen bleach. So if one wants pure sodium perborate, the only place to find it is the drugstore. However, this oxygen bleach is equal, if not almost identical, to it.

Dinner honors 'almost 50th'

Although the golden wedding anniversary party for Michael and Lillian Lanciloti of Arlington Heights was given seven months preceding their actual wedding date, it was planned that way so that all the grandchildren could attend. On Feb. 26, 1977, the couple's real anniversary day, most of the young people will be in colleges all over the country.

For the dinner party held at Corrado's on July 31, the Lancilotis' three children and 13 grandchildren were present, along with friends, making a total of 55 guests honoring the pair.

They have a daughter, June Lane, also of Arlington Heights; a son, William of West Newton, Mass.; and another daughter, LaVerne Weed of Austin, Tex.

Michael and Lillian were married in Chicago and started their family there, but have lived in Arlington Heights for the past 30 years. Michael had his own catering business until 1950, then went to work for U.S. Steel as a machinist. He retired in 1966.

The way we see it

Lincoln County needs planning

"Lincoln County," the recurring proposal to have the suburbs secede from Cook County, has provided entertainment to public and press alike over the past several years.

It's time to stop treating it as a joke.

The idea was first born in 1971 when a Palatine trustee suggested the six Northwest suburban townships withdraw from Cook County to form Lincoln County.

Since then the trustee who proposed the idea has moved away, but the proposal has been kept alive, primarily by Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones and State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

This week the proposal reappeared in a new form when Regner and Jones announced they were starting a petition drive to get a proposal to create Lincoln County out of all 30 suburban townships on the November election ballot.

Since the petitions will need as many as 500,000 signatures by Oct. 2, it seems apparent this petition drive, like earlier calls for the new county, is not really serious.

However, it is time for the proponents of Lincoln County to develop a little more respect for their own proposal. Instead of rushing off with frivolous petition drives, it is time to give serious consideration to the idea.

There are some crucial questions that must be answered before Lincoln County can become a serious issue. There will have to be studies of the real financial impact of creating a new county. Questions of dividing property between Cook and Lincoln counties will have to be explored. And, most important, a realistic political organization to press for the change will have to be mobilized.

These steps are needed for one very simple reason — Cook County's government has proved itself to be insensitive to suburban concerns and unless a remedy to that situation can be found soon, secession from the county may be the most attractive suburban alternative.

Key to the need to begin treating the prospect of a new county seriously is the fact that the suburbs have been effectively stripped of their voice on the Cook County board.

Although there are six suburban commissioners on the county board, the board's repeal last year of a provision requiring a two-third's majority to approve expenditures effectively stripped the suburban commissioners of their ability to wield real influence on the board.

Unless court efforts to restore the two-thirds rule are successful, it is probable that the lack of suburban influence over county decisions will become more pronounced as time passes.

If that is the case, Lincoln County's potential will go far beyond its present status as an interesting, and amusing public relations gimmick to be trotted out periodically when things get dull.

That potential will never be realized unless there is some serious planning.

Rabbi Baruch Korff

A Nixon follower still believes

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — When Rabbi Baruch Korff began his curious defense of Richard Nixon in 1973, one was reminded of Woodrow Wilson's advice regarding the proper response to zealots: the wise thing to do is to encourage them to hire a hall and talk to the people, for "nothing chills nonsense like exposure to air."

Three years later the rabbi's campaign has indeed become frozen irrelevance, tiresome in its repetition and noteworthy only for its value as a semi-arrogant remnant of what so soon seems an impossible past. Yet his campaign continues. It is an effort now beyond the public sympathy, now permanently relegated to the fringes of decorum — yet it goes on. In a way, the rabbi's endless promotion of the former President has given a bad name to compassion.

Korff surfaced again at the Republican National Convention. He was there to advise anyone who listened that Richard Nixon was "The greatest president of the 20th century." He admonished the Republicans for omitting the name Nixon from all but private conversation. He said they would be sorry. A judgment day is coming. "I believe the American people will forgive the sins of Watergate."

It is increasingly painful to hear him. It is worse to view his performance. A short and pompous man, full of himself, he is a living memorial to his champion, hence convinced of the need for personal stature and regal wisdom. He dresses in black, rarely smiles, and when speaking to the subject he forms sentences with the expectation they are being recorded for all time. "The architects of Watergate," he intones solemnly, "were the Democratic hierarchy."

Nobody is listening now, of course. But it is not hard to recall when they were. In the last months of 1973 and throughout 1974 the rabbi was something of a folkhero patriot. Richard Nixon could not get the Republican committee to work on his behalf, and even the White House was unable to muster visible public appreciation. Then came Korff, a Ukranian Jew with proclivity for fighting lost causes. Embracing Nixon, he became an instant celebrity, and he loved it — every interview, every appearance, every glint of the Kleig lights.

Nixon loved it also, of course. Korff held gala gatherings of support for the Watergater. Jerry Ford showed up at one to say he believed "Richard Nixon's place in history already stands secure." Cabinet members and military generals packed affairs Korff sponsored. Millionaires and media haters were there. And everyone urged the President of the United States to fight the laws and statutes he was sworn to uphold.

Nixon did not attend the affairs. But on one occasion he called in by phone to address the adulators. Korff treated the moment with supreme reverence. Had anyone present sneezed they'd have been sent to the rack. Nixon said he would not quit, and that "we are going to continue until we win." Then a band began playing, and the cheers of the audience followed. At length, after the tumult had ended, Korff put his mouth against the phone receiver and said: "We love you dearly."

Korff's love has since become a crushing thing. One suspects even Nixon has tired of it. It cannot do the former President's shredded image any good to have somebody going about reminding the world of the days of shame. Many of Nixon's old friends agree. They view Korff as an opportunist, stuffy as hell, and as much concerned with his own reputation as that of the 37th president.

Hot dogs to boneyard

The next time you're at the ball park and a call goes out — Hey, red hots, get your red hots — pause and think.

Think about the aroma and the taste of mustard, catsup and relish on a steaming hot dog wrapped in a warm bun. Then add the latest proposed garnishing to the American tube steak — BONES. Yes, bones in your hot dogs.

U.S. Agriculture Department officials are trying to pass a regulation that would allow "mechanically deboned meat" in hot dogs and other foods. The bone is crushed with the meat to rescue food which would be lost in traditional hand deboning methods.

Consumer groups, meanwhile, have taken up the cause of the hot dog and are fighting agriculture officials in the courts.

And while that battle rages thoughts continue to run through people's heads about the so-called "pure" beef wiener.

One major problem is there are no old wives tales about how to treat a hot dog "deboned bone" when it lodges in your throat.

And that is to say nothing about the poor dogs in this world, who, when given a left-over wiener by their masters, will not know if they should eat it or bury it.

And then there's always Little Oscar . . .

Kids get gift of love

American television viewers will tune in by the millions Sunday and Monday to the annual Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon.

The program will be aired locally on Channel 44 and is called by Lewis "a labor of love."

But, while Lewis and his unbelievable agenda of stars are out pitching for pledges from viewers, there is another group which also has been working for Muscular Dystrophy. The children of the Northwest suburbs have been sponsoring backyard carnivals throughout the summer to help Lewis and "his kids," as he calls them.

Last year the telethon raised $18.8 million nationally, with $753,000 coming from the Chicago Area.

It is difficult to determine how much of this year's total will come from our suburbs, but the amount doesn't really matter. The contributions of the kids, like that of Lewis, came from a "labor of love."

Mikva criticized for clouding the issues

Congressman Abner Mikva's voting record on federal election reform makes a mockery of his "sunshine in government" slogan. It also shows Mikva's greatest deficiency in representing our district: he is a puppet of the big labor bosses.

Let us look at the evidence for these conclusions. The Federal Election Law, as Mikva voted for it, states: "communications by a corporation to its stockholders and their families or by a labor organization to its members and their families on any subject" are not a prohibited campaign contribution. In practical effect, this loophole has meant that union bosses have used members' dues to support Mikva and other candidates beholden to them. Dues paying members have no say in how their money is being used.

This loophole allows the union bosses to use their members' dues to: send letters urging union members to support or oppose a political candidate; set up phone banks to get the vote out on election day; conduct voter registration drives in selected "pro-union" areas; and send union "volunteers" to go door-to-door for their preferred candidates.

Although corporations are included in this loophole it is an acknowledged fact that there is no comparable corporate electioneering in these areas.

Last year the New Hampshire senate race illustrated the "pro-union" bias of the loophole. If one looks at the campaign expenditure, it appears that the Republican was running against two candidates: Democrat John Durkin and the labor bosses. For Durkin reported campaign expenditures of $100,000, and the labor bosses expended over $150,000 in unreported union dues on Durkin's behalf.

If we are going to allow this huge "pro-union" loophole, should we not at least let a little sun shine in and make these expenditures public? Do not the public and union members themselves have a right to know the extent to which the union bosses influence our political process? Republican Congressman Wiggins introduced an amendment to do just that. His small reform would merely require corporations and unions to report the amount of money spent on the above activities. It would not prohibit union bosses from flexing their political muscles. But, it would let the public view their real strength.

There is only one explanation why Mikva voted to kill this reform: Mikva desires to hide from his constituents the extent to which he is beholden to the union bosses.

Abner, don't you think you should let the sun shine in before the sun sets on you?

Teichert's letter was misinterpreted

Perhaps some of you are misinterpreting what Mt. Prospect's Mayor Robert Teichert wrote in his Fence Post letter about parent responsibility.

Teichert certainly doesn't disagree that the Bible contains the truths to know how to be a good parent. But none of you can disagree with the fact that not one of us is sinless and perfect. Therefore, we will all make mistakes in the rearing of our children.

Have you considered the parents who do not believe in the Bible? Have you considered the parents who can't be bothered to get involved in their children's lives? Have you considered the parents who often make it a practice to buy their children out of trouble rather than be embarrassed by having it made known to others?

If a child misbehaves in school, does the teacher ask the parent to pay a fine? Or does that teacher have the child stay after school so that the child can learn? If your child took something belonging to a neighbor, would you pay a fine to that neighbor? Or would you have your child return the article so he could learn from the experience?

If a child commits some act of vandalism, why then should a parent be fined, when it is the child who should learn from his mistakes?

Mayor Teichert is not saying parents shouldn't be responsible for their children. He is saying that too often parents refuse that responsibility. Fining those parents will not force them to accept that responsibility for their children. What about those children? Will they just be back to commit that act of vandalism again? Or will someone be concerned enough to teach that child when the parents can't or won't? Couldn't I.C.E. House be beneficial to them? Then why not use it?

Should I fail in some way to teach my children respect for others and their property, then I would be grateful if someone else would be compassionate enough to help them learn a valuable lesson in life.

The way we see it

Lincoln County needs planning

"Lincoln County," the recurring proposal to have the suburbs secede from Cook County, has provided entertainment to public and press alike over the past several years.

It's time to stop treating it as a joke.

The idea was first born in 1971 when a Palatine trustee suggested the six Northwest suburban townships withdraw from Cook County to form Lincoln County.

Since then the trustee who proposed the idea has moved away, but the proposal has been kept alive, primarily by Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones and State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

This week the proposal reappeared in a new form when Regner and Jones announced they were starting a petition drive to get a proposal to create Lincoln County out of all 30 suburban townships on the November election ballot.

Since the petitions will need as many as 500,000 signatures by Oct. 2, it seems apparent this petition drive, like earlier calls for the new county, is not really serious.

However, it is time for the proponents of Lincoln County to develop a little more respect for their own proposal. Instead of rushing off with frivolous petition drives, it is time to give serious consideration to the idea.

There are some crucial questions that must be answered before Lincoln County can become a serious issue. There will have to be studies of the real financial impact of creating a new county. Questions of dividing property between Cook and Lincoln counties will have to be explored. And, most important, a realistic political organization to press for the change will have to be mobilized.

These steps are needed for one very simple reason — Cook County's government has proved itself to be insensitive to suburban concerns and unless a remedy to that situation can be found soon, secession from the county may be the most attractive suburban alternative.

Key to the need to begin treating the prospect of a new county seriously is the fact that the suburbs have been effectively stripped of their voice on the Cook County board.

Although there are six suburban commissioners on the county board, the board's repeal last year of a provision requiring a two-third's majority to approve expenditures effectively stripped the suburban commissioners of their ability to wield real influence on the board.

If that is the case, Lincoln County's potential will go far beyond its present status as an interesting, and amusing public relations gimmick to be trotted out periodically when things get dull.

Puts damper on contributions

Election enthusiasm hurt by law

by Clark Mollenhoff

WASHINGTON, D.C. — New federal election laws have put a heavy damper on the enthusiasm with which the campaign organizations of President Ford and Jimmy Carter greet new ideas and offers of financial support from even the best intentioned supporters.

It isn't that either the Ford-Dole or Carter-Mondale organizations do not need all the ideas and supplemental financial support they can get in what is shaping up as a very tight race.

Highest officials in both campaigns simply do not want to risk criminal prosecution or an unplanned restriction on campaign spending at some crucial point late in the campaign.

The result is that a good many enthusiastic supporters — eager to spend a few thousand dollars for their favorite — have been angered by the brusque rejection of offers to finance independent political projects.

STRICT ORDERS have gone out from Douglas Huron, counsel for the Carter for President organization, that subordinates are to have no extended discussions with those seeking advice or encouragement on a political project they will finance.

"All inquiries are to be directed to the counsel's office with as little discussion as possible," Huron said.

"When we talk to them we tell them precisely what the law is, tell them we don't want to hear about their project, and try to avoid anything that might be regarded as a wink or hint that we think the project is suitable," Huron said.

It is the intention of the Carter campaign to avoid angering a potential supporter, but it is inevitable that some subordinates will be too brusque, Huron said.

"IF WE ARE TO ERR, I would rather it be on the side of being too abrupt in rejecting an offer, than to permit something that might be interpreted as encouragement," Huron said.

Huron's view is essentially the same as that of Robert Visser, counsel for the Ford-Dole campaign organization.

Visser said supporters, often bubbling with enthusiasm, have a pet project they will fund independently and "only want assurance that it had the President's approval and that he knows I'm working for him."

"It is done innocently with no understanding that when the presidential candidates accepted $22.8 million in federal funds they pledged they would neither solicit nor spend money raised independently," Visser explains.

He said that the $22.8 million is far below the 1972 expenditures by either Senator George McGovern (more than $32 million) or President Nixon more than $60 million) and that both candidates will need careful financial planning to remain within that legal limit.

"THE LAW IS VERY STRICT on criminal or civil penalties if there are any unlawful collections or expenditures," Visser said.

"If it is unintentional acceptance of independent campaign money or services, the candidates themselves and the top officers are responsible for triple the amount," Visser said. "If it is willful or due to gross carelessness, those responsible, including the candidates, can be subject to a year in jail."

Both Visser and Huron say they have no problem in getting the seriousness across to subordinates and lawyers in the various state organizations in the aftermath of Watergate and the prison terms served by Republicans and Democrats.

Those convictions were under the old federal election laws that for years were virtually disregarded by Democratic and Republican administrations when there was no federal funding of presidential elections, and the parties and candidates were left to scramble for money with no lack of loopholes on spending and contribution limits set in the law.

There are virtually no loopholes in the new election law and the rules of the Federal Election Commission that supplement the law.

THE REPUBLICAN National Committee and the Democratic National Committee each have a limit of $3.8 million on the amount of money they can raise and spend on behalf of the national ticket, but this money must be raised from individuals and organizations.

City, county and state political organizations can each contribute $1,000 to the campaign of President Ford or Carter, but there can be no pooling of these amounts for putting together a statewide or areawide campaign.

Although the Supreme Court has ruled that there can be no limit on how much any individual spends to elect or defeat a candidate for political office, the Federal Election Committee has established strict rules that bar the presidential political organizations from any encouragement or coordination on the manner in which these individuals or organizations collect or expend money.

Both Huron, for Carter, and Visser, for President Ford, are conducting a series of seminars for lawyers to warn them in the most serious terms of the need to comply with the law.

THEY ARE STRESSING the problem of an uninformed but enthusiastic political booster giving encouragement to an independent project that might result in the Federal Election Commission ruling that it was "an illegal contribution" or that it must be counted against the $22.8-million limit.

In either case, there would be the possibility of embarrassment to the presidential campaign as a result of stories of the "illegal" contributions, and the possibility of either civil or criminal action against those responsible. Huron said that even more devastating to presidential campaign planning would be the sudden discovery in late October that the Federal Election Commission had credited the cost of several "individual political projects" against the $22.8-million limit.

"It is a small enough amount without running the risk of it being subject to further restriction in the last days of the campaign," Huron said.

Lawyers for the Ford and Carter campaign are hopeful that the bruised feelings of the ardent well-heeled supporters will heal with the passage of time and with understanding of the operations of the new law.

"The operation of the new law flies in the face of traditional political operations where those who made a contribution expected some assurance that it was helpful and a measure of enthusiasm for the cause," Visser commented.

"While it has some drawbacks, and may even be unconstitutional, I think that the whole emphasis is in the right direction in closing the loophles," Visser said.

Dorothy Meyer's column

Tricky clothes sizes— there oughta be a law

If Ralph Nader and Presidential candidates and unions that protect my civil liberties ever run out of things to shout about, I have a suggestion. Two-and-a-half suggestions, actually.

I think there ought to be a law against trick mirrors in dress shop fitting rooms. And another law against shoes that change sizes between the time I buy them and when I want to wear them for real.

And either of the above laws could carry an amendment stating that scarves must tie as well in the home as they do in the store.

If you think that I have been on a clothes-buying binge recently, you are partly right. It wasn't exactly a binge, just a desperate effort to avoid going to work in my night shirt.

BUT AFTER WEARING my purchases of last week this week, I can hardly wait for Halloween so I can go to work in my nightshirt again.

There is, for instance, the dress I bought Monday evening that made me look so sleek when I surveyed myself in the dress shop three-way mirror that even the rear view was good. So I bought the thing — the dress, I mean, and I think I should have bought the mirror instead. When I wore it (the dress) Tuesday morning and took a look in the mirror at home, there suddenly were lumps where just yesterday there had been nice slinky curves.

There also were flat places that had not been flat the day before, and nobody can convince me that my shape changed that much overnight. Therefore, dress shops should not be permitted to get their mirrors from a carnival fun house.

Note: Men's clothing stores also use trick mirrors. My son just popped in wearing an outfit that caused me to say, "Ye gods, where'd you get that?" He answered, "It looked OK when I tried it on. What happened?"

He was walking funny, too, and I said, "What's the matter? You got your shoes on the wrong feet again?" He moaned, "They felt so good when I tried them on. What happened?"

I WOULD TURN the kid in for a smarter model except the same thing happens to me. So there ought to be another law against new shoes shrinking on the way home.

Apparently scarves also are fickle because my son was turning blue besides walking funny.

"Son," I said, "You are turning blue. Why don't you loosen that rope around your neck?"

"That is not a rope," he gasped. "It is a fashionable scarf which looked tres, tres chic when I left the store. What happened?"

I would have told the kid, but I don't know the answer because that same thing happens to me.

However, I am not totally distraught. I've been noting the new fall and winter fashions and my nightshirt looks better and better.

Wiping a slate clean

The end of a two-year 'education'

Education today

by Dorothy Oliver

September signals a beginning of the education world as school starts and the slate, wiped clean during the summer, fills again.

For me, this is an ending of sorts, and it is with mixed emotions that I write a last column, clean out my files and move to a desk on the other side of the newsroom for new responsibilities as Leisure magazine editor.

It's been two years since I was named education editor and began the task of seting up the education desk. In that time, I've learnged a great deal about education in the Northwest suburbs, our districts, our boards, our administrators, our teachers and our children.

Possibly the most interesting part of my job has been watching the 17 local districts operate, seeing how they are similar and how they differ.

WHEN IT COMES to education, they all have a driving desire to provide "quality education" for their students. They all are looking at better books, better supplementary materials and better instruction methods.

But that's where the similarity ends.

Board procedure is one area in which districts vary greatly. For example, some districts like Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 and River Trails Dist. 26 open their board meetings to the public.

All three districts, and there are more, conduct their business in a relatively informal atmosphere. If in the middle of a Dist. 26 meeting, someone in the audience has a question, they actually are allowed to speak.

At times the informality prolongs meetings or results in confrontation. (Ask any Dist. 54 board member what things have been like during the district's current controversies over their lunch program and providing busing.) But, in the long run, the districts have promoted an openness that should be appreciated by resident.

THE MAJORITY of our boards prefer to stick to Roberts Rules of Order and would no more recognize a member of the public than burn down a school.

After watching both, I think the more orderly board loses out. It tends to build a barrier between themselves and their taxpayers. When a sensitive issue comes up, antagonism grows. When elections come up, board members sometimes are voted out.

Another major difference, and I've written this one into the ground, is the amount of information a district will release. Some will tell you everything. Others have a difficult time releasing their meeting dates.

Another difference is the atmosphere in the schools. I first became aware of this when I wrote a story on "affective education" — educating children to like themselves, to relate to other people and to live in this complex world.

Affective education is something, not enough districts are paying attention to. As schools continue to assume a role greater than "provider of academics," this is a key area of education for them to develop.

BEFORE I FINISH this swan song, let's look into the future a bit. The next year is going to be a rugged one in many districts. You can expect more school closings, more boundary changes, more teacher layoffs, more program cuts — more things to get parents up in arms.

Tough decisions will have to be made, and there is not a school board member in the Northwest suburbs who will make those decisions flippantly.

Should you, as a parent, have the urge to go to a board meeting and vent your anger concerning a decision that's in the offing, do it — but be reasonable.

Know your facts, keep your tone civil and listen to what's being said. Now that I'm finally turning in my title and returning to the ranks of plain old parent, I will try to do the same.

Puts damper on contributions

Election enthusiasm hurt by law

by Clark Mollenhoff

WASHINGTON, D.C. — New federal election laws have put a heavy damper on the enthusiasm with which the campaign organizations of President Ford and Jimmy Carter greet new ideas and offers of financial support from even the best intentioned supporters.

It isn't that either the Ford-Dole or Carter-Mondale organizations do not need all the ideas and supplemental financial support they can get in what is shaping up as a very tight race.

Highest officials in both campaigns simply do not want to risk criminal prosecution or an unplanned restriction on campaign spending at some crucial point late in the campaign.

The result is that a good many enthusiastic supporters — eager to spend a few thousand dollars for their favorite — have been angered by the brusque rejection of offers to finance independent political projects.

STRICT ORDERS have gone out from Douglas Huron, counsel for the Carter for President organization, that subordinates are to have no extended discussions with those seeking advice or encouragement on a political project they will finance.

"All inquiries are to be directed to the counsel's office with as little discussion as possible," Huron said.

"When we talk to them we tell them precisely what the law is, tell them we don't want to hear about their project, and try to avoid anything that might be regarded as a wink or hint that we think the project is suitable," Huron said.

It is the intention of the Carter campaign to avoid angering a potential supporter, but it is inevitable that some subordinates will be too brusque, Huron said.

"IF WE ARE TO ERR, I would rather it be on the side of being too abrupt in rejecting an offer, than to permit something that might be interpreted as encouragement," Huron said.

Huron's view is essentially the same as that of Robert Visser, counsel for the Ford-Dole campaign organization.

Visser said supporters, often bubbling with enthusiasm, have a pet project they will fund independently and "only want assurance that it had the President's approval and that he knows I'm working for him."

"It is done innocently with no understanding that when the presidential candidates accepted $22.8 million in federal funds they pledged they would neither solicit nor spend money raised independently," Visser explains.

He said that the $22.8 million is far below the 1972 expenditures by either Senator George McGovern (more than $32 million) or President Nixon more than $60 million) and that both candidates will need careful financial planning to remain within that legal limit.

"THE LAW IS VERY STRICT on criminal or civil penalties if there are any unlawful collections or expenditures," Visser said.

"If it is unintentional acceptance of independent campaign money or services, the candidates themselves and the top officers are responsible for triple the amount," Visser said. "If it is willful or due to gross carelessness, those responsible, including the candidates, can be subject to a year in jail."

Both Visser and Huron say they have no problem in getting the seriousness across to subordinates and lawyers in the various state organizations in the aftermath of Watergate and the prison terms served by Republicans and Democrats.

Those convictions were under the old federal election laws that for years were virtually disregarded by Democratic and Republican administrations when there was no federal funding of presidential elections, and the parties and candidates were left to scramble for money with no lack of loopholes on spending and contribution limits set in the law.

There are virtually no loopholes in the new election law and the rules of the Federal Election Commission that supplement the law.

THE REPUBLICAN National Committee and the Democratic National Committee each have a limit of $3.8 million on the amount of money they can raise and spend on behalf of the national ticket, but this money must be raised from individuals and organizations.

City, county and state political organizations can each contribute $1,000 to the campaign of President Ford or Carter, but there can be no pooling of these amounts for putting together a statewide or areawide campaign.

Although the Supreme Court has ruled that there can be no limit on how much any individual spends to elect or defeat a candidate for political office, the Federal Election Committee has established strict rules that bar the presidential political organizations from any encouragement or coordination on the manner in which these individuals or organizations collect or expend money.

Both Huron, for Carter, and Visser, for President Ford, are conducting a series of seminars for lawyers to warn them in the most serious terms of the need to comply with the law.

THEY ARE STRESSING the problem of an uninformed but enthusiastic political booster giving encouragement to an independent project that might result in the Federal Election Commission ruling that it was "an illegal contribution" or that it must be counted against the $22.8-million limit.

In either case, there would be the possibility of embarrassment to the presidential campaign as a result of stories of the "illegal" contributions, and the possibility of either civil or criminal action against those responsible. Huron said that even more devastating to presidential campaign planning would be the sudden discovery in late October that the Federal Election Commission had credited the cost of several "individual political projects" against the $22.8-million limit.

"It is a small enough amount without running the risk of it being subject to further restriction in the last days of the campaign," Huron said.

Lawyers for the Ford and Carter campaign are hopeful that the bruised feelings of the ardent well-heeled supporters will heal with the passage of time and with understanding of the operations of the new law.

"The operation of the new law flies in the face of traditional political operations where those who made a contribution expected some assurance that it was helpful and a measure of enthusiasm for the cause," Visser commented.

"While it has some drawbacks, and may even be unconstitutional, I think that the whole emphasis is in the right direction in closing the loophles," Visser said.

Tricky clothes sizes— there oughta be a law

If Ralph Nader and Presidential candidates and unions that protect my civil liberties ever run out of things to shout about, I have a suggestion. Two-and-a-half suggestions, actually.

I think there ought to be a law against trick mirrors in dress shop fitting rooms. And another law against shoes that change sizes between the time I buy them and when I want to wear them for real.

And either of the above laws could carry an amendment stating that scarves must tie as well in the home as they do in the store.

If you think that I have been on a clothes-buying binge recently, you are partly right. It wasn't exactly a binge, just a desperate effort to avoid going to work in my night shirt.

BUT AFTER WEARING my purchases of last week this week, I can hardly wait for Halloween so I can go to work in my nightshirt again.

There is, for instance, the dress I bought Monday evening that made me look so sleek when I surveyed myself in the dress shop three-way mirror that even the rear view was good. So I bought the thing — the dress, I mean, and I think I should have bought the mirror instead. When I wore it (the dress) Tuesday morning and took a look in the mirror at home, there suddenly were lumps where just yesterday there had been nice slinky curves.

There also were flat places that had not been flat the day before, and nobody can convince me that my shape changed that much overnight. Therefore, dress shops should not be permitted to get their mirrors from a carnival fun house.

Note: Men's clothing stores also use trick mirrors. My son just popped in wearing an outfit that caused me to say, "Ye gods, where'd you get that?" He answered, "It looked OK when I tried it on. What happened?"

He was walking funny, too, and I said, "What's the matter? You got your shoes on the wrong feet again?" He moaned, "They felt so good when I tried them on. What happened?"

I WOULD TURN the kid in for a smarter model except the same thing happens to me. So there ought to be another law against new shoes shrinking on the way home.

Apparently scarves also are fickle because my son was turning blue besides walking funny.

"Son," I said, "You are turning blue. Why don't you loosen that rope around your neck?"

"That is not a rope," he gasped. "It is a fashionable scarf which looked tres, tres chic when I left the store. What happened?"

I would have told the kid, but I don't know the answer because that same thing happens to me.

However, I am not totally distraught. I've been noting the new fall and winter fashions and my nightshirt looks better and better.

Wiping a slate clean

The end of a two-year 'education'

Education today

by Dorothy Oliver

September signals a beginning of the education world as school starts and the slate, wiped clean during the summer, fills again.

For me, this is an ending of sorts, and it is with mixed emotions that I write a last column, clean out my files and move to a desk on the other side of the newsroom for new responsibilities as Leisure magazine editor.

It's been two years since I was named education editor and began the task of seting up the education desk. In that time, I've learnged a great deal about education in the Northwest suburbs, our districts, our boards, our administrators, our teachers and our children.

Possibly the most interesting part of my job has been watching the 17 local districts operate, seeing how they are similar and how they differ.

WHEN IT COMES to education, they all have a driving desire to provide "quality education" for their students. They all are looking at better books, better supplementary materials and better instruction methods.

But that's where the similarity ends.

Board procedure is one area in which districts vary greatly. For example, some districts like Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 and River Trails Dist. 26 open their board meetings to the public.

All three districts, and there are more, conduct their business in a relatively informal atmosphere. If in the middle of a Dist. 26 meeting, someone in the audience has a question, they actually are allowed to speak.

But, in the long run, the districts have promoted an openness that should be appreciated by resident.

After watching both, I think the more orderly board loses out. It tends to build a barrier between themselves and their taxpayers. When a sensitive issue comes up, antagonism grows. When elections come up, board members sometimes are voted out.

Doubles play in those six divisions will be at 1 p.m. today at the same locations.

Mixed doubles will begin at 1 p.m. at Arlington and senior men's doubles will be at 2 p.m. at Arlington. Junior vets men's singles (10 a.m.) and doubles (1 p.m.) will be at Arlington today, and junior vets women's singles and doubles will be played at the same times at Prospect.

The vets men's singles (noon) and doubles (1 p.m.) will be contested at Arlington, and the vets women's doubles will be played at 2 p.m. at Prospect.

"We just want a good Saturday," said Timmons, who has seen rain for each of the last five Paddock Tourneys. "If we have a nice day Saturday we'll be okay."

Timmons is working with a smaller entry list this year with 866 names on the draw sheets. Last year's record total was in excess of 1,200.

"The number is workable," said Timmons. "It's large enough to make it interesting but small enough to make it manageable."

Timmons is excited about the mixed doubles division, revived after five years. The list of entries there includes Jack and Edie Deshida, Lance and Donna Laverty, and Larry and Ann Brown — all of them finalists in other divisions in past years.

"The mixed doubles is going to be lots of fun," said Timmons. "And it's really going to be competitive. You can look at the draw sheet and just see how tennis has become a family sport."

In men's singles, neither the defending champ nor the runnerup will return, but the finalists from 1974 are back. Paul Wei and Jon LeBon, who played under the name Jon Paczkowski when he won the title in 1974, are the top two seeds.

Other top-ranked players in men's singles are Bob Laser and Simon Norris, a native of Scotland.

Among last year's finalists who will be trying to blast their way into the finals again are Orson Faynor and Gary Wright in boys 16-18 doubles and Danny and Robbie Weiss in boys 15-and-under singles and doubles.

The two finalists in vets men's singles, Jack Laffey and John Clark, will return.

The Arlington Heights Boosters will provide refreshments.

Arlington wins, ousts defending champ

Special to The Herald

MANCHESTER, N.H. — There will be a new national champion in American Legion baseball!

Arlington Heights (Des Plaines Post 36) made sure of that here Friday afternoon and kept its own hopes alive with an impressive 8-1 conquest of Yakima, Wash.

Yakima won the 1975 title in South Dakota but lost two straight in New Hampshire at the '76 finals and packed its bags Friday night with a 64-24 season record. Arlington now stands 49-10.

Arlington, sponsored by Bill Cook Buick, returns to action today at 12:05 p.m. in another of those pressure-packed win-or-leave situations. The game will be broadcast live on WWMM-FM (92.7) with Bob Houghton at the microphone.

Dennis Drolet will get the call today and will face the losing team in Friday night's game between Santa Monica, Calif. and Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Faced with victory or elimination after a frustrating 6-2 loss to Warwick, R.I. Thursday evening, Coach Lloyd Meyer's outfit finally shook off a batting slump, pounded out 11 hits and drove touted Yakima pitcher Jamie Bell from the hill in a four-run fifth.

Pitcher Kevin McBride, the Prospect High School product who now is 12-0 on the Legion mound this summer, was tough in the clutch Friday and was able to keep the leadoff man off base in eight of the nine frames. He yielded five hits, striking out nine and walking seven.

"Every game we say we'll find out how good Kevin is," Meyer beamed after the triumph. "Hey, the kid is good! He won another big one for us. He can come back with two days rest."

Meyer, who felt the club was pressing too much in the opener against Rhode Island, was pleased with the resurgence of the bats. Tom Barnard and Tony Spinelle had three hits each, and Spinelle ripped a couple shots to deep center field.

"We're not a big-hitting club," Meyer said. "We try to make contact, stay back on the ball. That's why I have to keep on the kids. They did the job though.

"We just played a bad game Thursday night. Today, we got to run the bases a little bit, and we made them throw the ball away. Our speed forced it. That's our game."

Meyer hinted that John Mertins, the Arlington High ace who has been plagued with arm problems, might be available for a few innings in the tournament. Mertins did warm up on the sidelines Friday.

"It's tough coming back from the loser's bracket," Meyer said, "but Yakima did it last year. They lost their first game and won it all. We can do it."

Arlington cashed for its first run against Yakima and Allen in the third inning. Paul Marsillo walked leading off and stole second. Guy Tenuta, on a 3-2 count, bounced one to second that was thrown wildly at first, Marsillo scoring.

Post 36 made it 2-0 in the fourth when John Vukovich bounced one through the hole and Spinelle shot one to right on the hit-and-run. Brett Frase drove a sacrifice fly to center for the run.

Yakima's Allen, a .400 hitter and the 10th pick in the nation in the major league player draft, found it wasn't his day on the mound in the fifth as Heights pushed over four more runs for a 6-0 lead.

Marsillo walked, Tenuta worked another perfect hit-and-run, and Jerry DeSimone walked to load the bases. Dave Murillo came on in relief for Yakima, but the lefty yielded singles to Barnard and Mike Mayerck for three more runs.

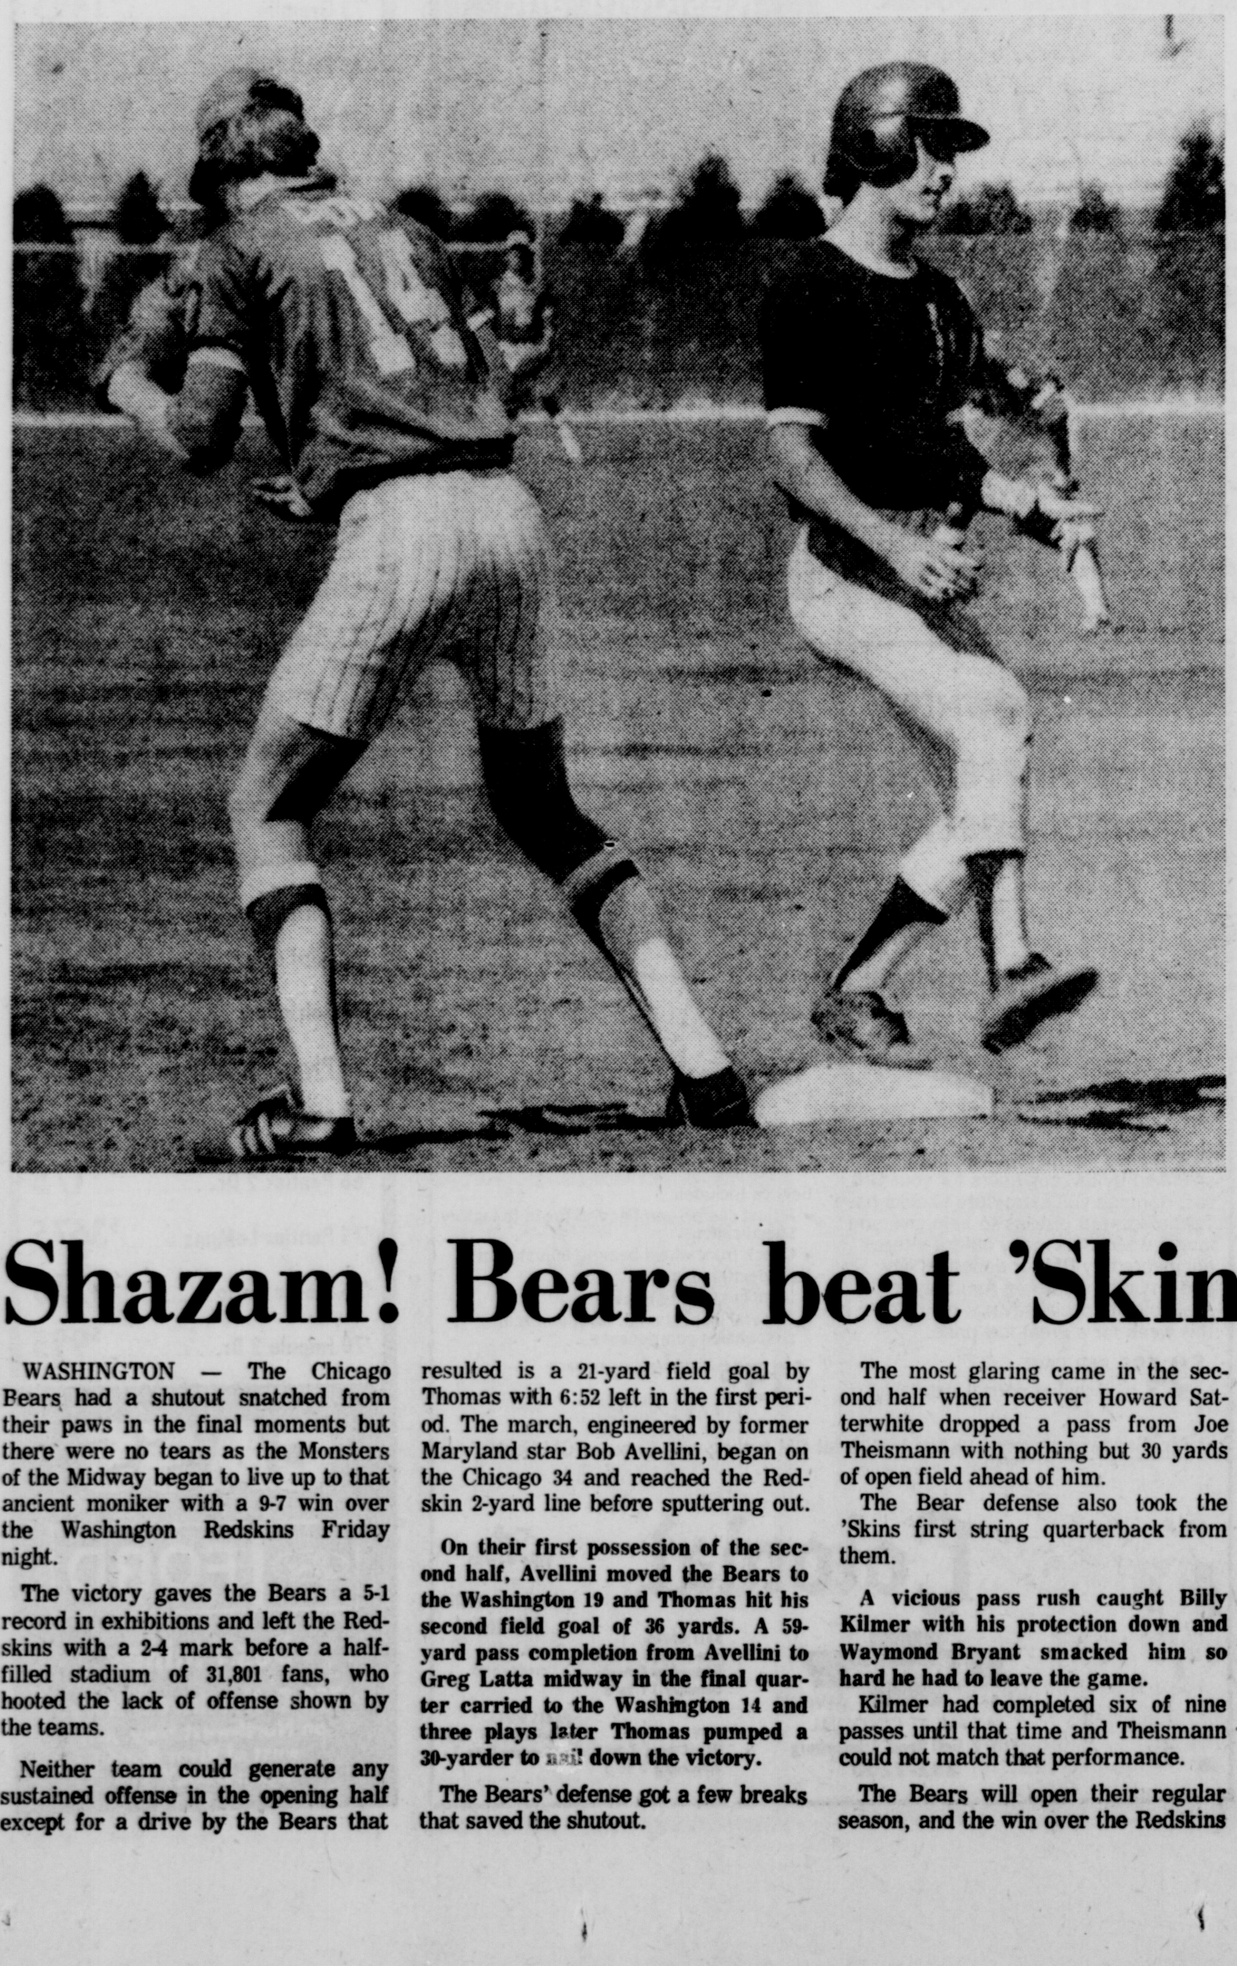
Vukovich bunted into a fielder's choice, but Spinelle drove one off the fence 368 feet away and Mayerck scored the sixth run.

Tenuta, who walked and stole second with one out in the sixth, scored the seventh run when Yakima threw the ball away on an infield grounder.

Arlington kept the pressure on in the seventh when Spinelle crashed a long double off the fence in center, Brett Frase walked, and an error followed a fielder's choice.

"We were all upset after that loss Thursday," Meyer said. "I sure didn't want to lose two in a row and come right back home. I was nervous. It was a tough night.

"Now I can relax a little anyway tonight. I won't start getting nervous until Saturday morning."



GUY TENUTA foiled this pickoff attempt and Arlington Heights bounced Yakima, Wash. from the National Tournament Friday 8-1.

Never count out Hersey in football title talk

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Joe Gliwa is a reasonable man and if he says he is looking forward to defending the Mid-Suburban League North Division title (his Hersey Huskies have won the past five), then the Boys of Orange and Brown should not be trifled with.

"Buffalo Grove would havs to be the favorite," Gliwa said, "and Palatine and Arlington are always tough. But we have the desire to accomplish that goal again and represent the North Division in the playoffs."

Gliwa's primary task was finding a quarterback to replace Scott Topczewski, a two-year starter who took 873 yards and eight touchdowns with him to the University of Evansville.

Gliwa is confident junior Dan Vucovich (5-10, 160) is the man.

"Dan is a sharp, intelligent kid,"

Joe Gliwa

Gliwa observed. "We want to pass again and Dan has shown he is able to throw the ball."

Vucovich will have two returning starters behind him in the backfield, Wally Hommerding (6-0, 170) and Tony Becker (6-1, 185).

Hommerding, the most explosive player back from last year's 10-1 team, scored seven touchdowns, rushed for 518 yards and caught 17 passes for 285 yards.

When he isn't dumping the ball off to Hommerding or Becker, Vucovich will have junior Dino Caposso (5-11, 160), sophomore Jamie Spiel (6-0, 165) and senior Brian Robertson (6-0, 165) to pick from when they run patterns from the end position.

Tom Kreusch, a 5-10, 155-pound running back, will also see action in the backfield.

Gliwa is concerned about the depth and size of his squad, saying, "We'd like to be three deep at every position but maybe nobody is that deep. And we aren't a big team, or as big as we've been in the past."

Hersey's depth was hurt earlier when they lost Mike Nirva (dislocated kneecap), Dan Meyo (shoulder separation) and Steve Johnson (mono).

Johnson, a 5-11, 185 pound end, may be the hardest to replace.

The biggest Huskie will be senior Bob Kapusinski (6-1, 215) a tackle.

Other mainstays in the trenches will be Steve Marsh (6-0, 205), Mark Bassie (5-8, 155), Jeff Jordan (6-0, 175), Dandy Dameron (5-11, 190) and Bobby Schachner (5-9, 195) who also scored 35 points last year as the Hersey kicker.

"Defense figures to be our strong suit again," Gliwa said. "We have quick kids who like to hit and after a couple games, after we get some maturity, we should be even better."

Several of Hersey's offensive linemen will stay on the field to play defense. Bassie will be a nose guard and Marsh will hold down one side of the line as a tackle.

Brian Peterson (6-3, 175) will play defensive end and his 4.9 clocking in the 40-yard dash is the fastest on the team.

Hersey has veteran linebackers in Bobby Hart (5-10, 170) and Mark Schall (5-10, 170).

Joe Pusatera (5-8, 145), who developed a talent for backpedaling on defense as a guard with the Hersey basketball team, will shine in the defensive backfield.

"This team has a good attitude," Gliwa said. "They know they've got a task at hand. We have two strong runners, an adequate passer and a defense that is ahead of the offense right now.

"I think we have a decent chance of defending the title but we're definitely rebuilding."

The Huskies will meet up with Richard Hersey in their opener with Elgin Friday, Sept. 10. Hersey stung the Huskies with a 91-yard touchdown run last year.

But after Elgin, the Huskies will be through with Hersey for the year while the rest of the North Division will have to contend with them week after week.

Shazam! Bears beat 'Skins, 9-7

WASHINGTON — The Chicago Bears had a shutout snatched from their paws in the final moments but there were no tears as the Monsters of the Midway began to live up to that ancient moniker with a 9-7 win over the Washington Redskins Friday night.

The victory gaves the Bears a 5-1 record in exhibitions and left the Redskins with a 2-4 mark before a half-filled stadium of 31,801 fans, who hooted the lack of offense shown by the teams.

Neither team could generate any sustained offense in the opening half except for a drive by the Bears that resulted is a 21-yard field goal by Thomas with 6:52 left in the first period. The march, engineered by former Maryland star Bob Avellini, began on the Chicago 34 and reached the Redskin 2-yard line before sputtering out.

On their first possession of the second half, Avellini moved the Bears to the Washington 19 and Thomas hit his second field goal of 36 yards. A 59-yard pass completion from Avellini to Greg Latta midway in the final quarter carried to the Washington 14 and three plays later Thomas pumped a 30-yarder to nail down the victory.

The Bears' defense got a few breaks that saved the shutout.

The most glaring came in the second half when receiver Howard Satterwhite dropped a pass from Joe Theismann with nothing but 30 yards of open field ahead of him.

The Bear defense also took the 'Skins first string quarterback from them.

A vicious pass rush caught Billy Kilmer with his protection down and Waymond Bryant smacked him so hard he had to leave the game.

Kilmer had completed six of nine passes until that time and Theismann could not match that performance.

The Bears will open their regular season, and the win over the Redskins should raise their fans' hopes to an all-time high, against the Detroit Lions Sept. 12.

The Bears strengthened their act for that opener Friday by acquiring running back Larry Schreiber from the San Francisco 49ers for an undisclosed draft choice.

The 29-year old Schreiber, a 6-0, 205-pounder, rushed for 1,736 yards in 502 attempts for the 49ers since coming off their taxi squad in 1971.

His best year was in 1974, when he rushed for 634 yards.

Schreiber brings the number of running backs in the Bear camp to seven, but only Roland Harper has enjoyed an injury free training camp.

Nastase's tantrum mars U.S. Open play

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Young Bill Scanlon and veteran pro Jan Kodes provided the upsets at the U.S. Open tennis championships Friday but it was Ilie Nastase, in one of his foulest and most abusive moods, who nearly came to blows with West Germany's Hans-Jurgen Pohmann after eliminating him in three sets.

Nastase, the most gifted shotmaker in the tournament, went through his full, disagreeable act and at one stage in the third set a fight broke out in the pro-Pohmann standing room only crowd of 12,553 which at times resembled a fight audience.

Nastase won, 7-6, 4-6, 7-6, in a match which lasted just short of three hours.

It was one of the most disagreeable performances in the history of the old West Side Tennis Club and it was all down to Nastase and English umpire George Armstrong of Eastbourne, Sussex, who let things get out of control.

Nastase screamed abuse across the net at Pohmann when he clinched the match with a winning volley and the German refused to shake hands. The Romanian then screamed at anyone in sight after swinging his racket at Armstrong as he came down from the umpre's chair.

Nastase was completely out of control, so much that his wife, Dominique, and business adviser, Mitch Oprea, left the stadium before he clinched his victory.

Scanlon, the 19-year-old reigning NCAA champion, eliminated Adriano Panatta, the Italian and French Open champion and fourth seed here, 6-3, 7-6, while Kodes dumped Ashe, the '75 Wimbledon champ and seventh seed, 6-1, 6-2.

Green's 65 takes Series lead

AKRON, Ohio — Hubert Green unleashed some new-found power, one-putted an amazing 10 times, knocked four strokes off his career best here with a five-under par 65, and took a one stroke second round lead Friday in the $300,000 World Series of Golf.

"This course has always been too long for me in the past," said Green, who failed even to survive the 36-hole cut in three of four previous tournament appearances on the demanding South course at Firestone Country Club.

"But this week I'm driving the ball better — and about 15 yards further than I was. That makes a difference."

That, plus his incredible putting, enabled Green, a winner of three straight tournaments on the PGA tour earlier this year, to complete 36 holes at four-under 136.

Dave Hill, one of the first round co-leaders, three-putted the 17th green for a bogey that gave him a 70 Friday and dropped him into second place at 37, three under par.

Ray Floyd, the Masters champion, and Jack Nicklaus were next at 138. Floyd had his second straight 69 Friday and Nicklaus had a 70. Nicklaus' round included a double bogey at the 180-yard 12th hole where he bunkered his tee shot and three-putted from 25 feet, but he fought back with birdies at 15 and 16.

Tukashi Murakami, whose 67 shared the first round lead with Hill, had 72 Friday and was at 139.

Johnson gets Seattle helm

SEATTLE — Darrell Johnson, deposed as Boston manager earlier this season after guiding the Red Sox to the American League pennant a year ago, was named today to manage the new Seattle Mariners.

Speculation on who would manage major league baseball's Seattle expansion team had centered on Johnson and former Cleveland Indian pitching star Bob Lemon, until today's announcement by Lester Smith, managing general partner of the Mariners.

18 horses ready for 'Hambo'

DU QUOIN, Ill. — Seventeen colts and a filly were hale and hearty and "hot to trot" Friday on the eve of the 51st Hambletonian, "the Kentucky Derby of Harness Racing."

Good weather was expected for today's classic at the fast DuQuoin State Fair one-mile track where the first heat will go at 12:30 p.m. CDT and where Hambo time records have tumbled with regularity.

The evenly matched field will have the 3-1 race favorite, Pershing, a bay colt owned by Joseph Mendelson, Palos Verdes, Calif., and driven by Bill Herman, moving out from the No. 4 slot in the first tier. Ten entries will race abreast in the first tier with the the other eight trailing.

Marchibroda gets Irsay backing

BALTIMORE — Baltimore Colts' owner Robert Irsay said Friday Ted Marchibroda will remain the team's head coach despite a flare-up Thursday night during which Marchibroda said he might be forced to resign.

"I have the utmost confidence in Ted Marchibroda," Irsay said in a two-sentence statement through a club spokesman. "He is our coach and will continue to be our coach."

The Baltimore News American, in a copyrighted story, reported that Irsay gave the tean and Marchibroda a severe tongue-lashing after the Colts' dismal 24-9 defeat to the Detroit Lions. The loss, the fourth in a row for the 1975 AFC Eastern Division champions, left them with a 2-4 preseason record.

During a heated, 40-minute locker room dispute behind closed doors at Pontiac Stadium, Irsay indicated he might hire an additional coach to help Marchibroda, who won NFL Coach of the Year honors when he led the Colts to a 10-4 season in 1975.

Defending Amateur champ ousted

LOS ANGELES — Jim Mason of Kirwood, Mo., ousted defending champion Fred Ridley on the 20th hole of the 76th U.S. Amateur Golf Championship Friday.

Down by two strokes at one point on the par-70, 6,507-yard Bel Air Country Club course, Ridley had managed to square the fourth-round match after 18 holes.

They halved the 19th, a short par five, but Mason triumphed when he hit the par four second hole in two strokes and two-putted, while Ridley went into a trap with his second shot and took bogey five.

Redskins lose Taylor for year

WASHINGTON — A ruling tied to the National Football League's adoption of a 43-player roster limit for the coming season will definitely put the NFL's all-time leading receiver, the Washington Redskins' Charley Taylor, out for the year...

NFL owners, meeting in New York on Wednesday, voted for a 43-man roster with no taxi squad but an unlimited injured reserve list. However, any player placed on injured reserve is automatically lost for the season.

Taylor, who fractured his shoulder in the Redskins' opening exhibition game July 31, was placed on the injured reserve list. At the time, the Redkins thought he could be reactivated later in the season if he called no-recall waivers.

Dolphins activate Earl Morrall

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins activated veteran backup quarterback Earl Morrall Friday in time for him to catch the plane to New Orleans where the Dolphins close out their National Football League exhibition schedule against the Saints Saturday night.

The 42-year-old Morrall, starting his 21st NFL season, has seen little pre-season game action because of a nagging hamstring muscle pull suffered in practice. Coach Don Shula has had him on inactive reserve for several weeks but left little doubt that Morrall still is the No. 2 Dolphins' quarterback behind Bob Griese.

Cubs win, 8-5; Monday hits pair

A pinch hit single by Wayne Tyrone drove home Joe Wallis from 3rd base in the 8th inning to touch off a three-run rally and lift the Cubs to an 8-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday.

Earlier, Rick Monday had hit two homers for the Cubs, giving him a career high of 27 for the year.

With the score tied at 5-5, Wallis opened the eighth with an infield single and went to third on Jerry Morales' single to center. Both hits came off reliever Eddie Solomon, who lost his first game.

Manny Trillo popped to short for the first out, but Tyrone followed with his winning hit off Al Hrabosky. After a second out, Mick Kelleher singled to drive in Morales and pinch-runner Dave Rosello also scored on the play on a throwing error by right fielder Willie Crawford.

Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez homered for the Cardinals, Hernandez' coming with a man on base in the sixth inning to tie the score at 5-5.

Bruce Sutter, who worked the final two innings, gained credit for his fourth victory against three defeats.

Twins crush Sox, 11-1

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Lyman Bostock doubled in two runs in the third inning to break a 1-1 tie Friday night and the Minnesota Twins went on to rout the Chicago Whit Sox, 11-1.

Ralph Garr singled in the first inning, stole second and scored on Jim Spencer's single off winner Pete Redfern, 4-7. Rod Carew singled in Minnesota's first run in the Twins' half of the inning to tie the game.

Bostock slapped his double off starter and loser Rich Gossage, 8-14, after Roy Smalley singled and Carew walked. Butch Wynegar doubled to leadoff the Twins' three-run fourth. He scored on Mike Cubbage's triple and Tony Oliva singled in Cubbage. Smalley knocked in the third run of the inning with a single and later drove in another run with his third hit of the game.

Nastase's tantrum mars U.S. Open play

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Young Bill Scanlon and veteran pro Jan Kodes provided the upsets at the U.S. Open tennis championships Friday but it was Ilie Nastase, in one of his foulest and most abusive moods, who nearly came to blows with West Germany's Hans-Jurgen Pohmann after eliminating him in three sets.

Nastase, the most gifted shotmaker in the tournament, went through his full, disagreeable act and at one stage in the third set a fight broke out in the pro-Pohmann standing room only crowd of 12,553 which at times resembled a fight audience.

Nastase won, 7-6, 4-6, 7-6, in a match which lasted just short of three hours.

It was one of the most disagreeable performances in the history of the old West Side Tennis Club and it was all down to Nastase and English umpire George Armstrong of Eastbourne, Sussex, who let things get out of control.

Nastase screamed abuse across the net at Pohmann when he clinched the match with a winning volley and the German refused to shake hands. The Romanian then screamed at anyone in sight after swinging his racket at Armstrong as he came down from the umpre's chair.

Nastase was completely out of control, so much that his wife, Dominique, and business adviser, Mitch Oprea, left the stadium before he clinched his victory.

Scanlon, the 19-year-old reigning NCAA champion, eliminated Adriano Panatta, the Italian and French Open champion and fourth seed here, 6-3, 7-6, while Kodes dumped Ashe, the '75 Wimbledon champ and seventh seed, 6-1, 6-2.

Green's 65 takes Series lead

AKRON, Ohio — Hubert Green unleashed some new-found power, one-putted an amazing 10 times, knocked four strokes off his career best here with a five-under par 65, and took a one stroke second round lead Friday in the $300,000 World Series of Golf.

"This course has always been too long for me in the past," said Green, who failed even to survive the 36-hole cut in three of four previous tournament appearances on the demanding South course at Firestone Country Club.

"But this week I'm driving the ball better — and about 15 yards further than I was. That makes a difference."

That, plus his incredible putting, enabled Green, a winner of three straight tournaments on the PGA tour earlier this year, to complete 36 holes at four-under 136.

Dave Hill, one of the first round co-leaders, three-putted the 17th green for a bogey that gave him a 70 Friday and dropped him into second place at 37, three under par.

Ray Floyd, the Masters champion, and Jack Nicklaus were next at 138. Floyd had his second straight 69 Friday and Nicklaus had a 70. Nicklaus' round included a double bogey at the 180-yard 12th hole where he bunkered his tee shot and three-putted from 25 feet, but he fought back with birdies at 15 and 16.

Tukashi Murakami, whose 67 shared the first round lead with Hill, had 72 Friday and was at 139.

Johnson gets Seattle helm

SEATTLE — Darrell Johnson, deposed as Boston manager earlier this season after guiding the Red Sox to the American League pennant a year ago, was named today to manage the new Seattle Mariners.

Speculation on who would manage major league baseball's Seattle expansion team had centered on Johnson and former Cleveland Indian pitching star Bob Lemon, until today's announcement by Lester Smith, managing general partner of the Mariners.

18 horses ready for 'Hambo'

DU QUOIN, Ill. — Seventeen colts and a filly were hale and hearty and "hot to trot" Friday on the eve of the 51st Hambletonian, "the Kentucky Derby of Harness Racing."

Good weather was expected for today's classic at the fast DuQuoin State Fair one-mile track where the first heat will go at 12:30 p.m. CDT and where Hambo time records have tumbled with regularity.

The evenly matched field will have the 3-1 race favorite, Pershing, a bay colt owned by Joseph Mendelson, Palos Verdes, Calif., and driven by Bill Herman, moving out from the No. 4 slot in the first tier. Ten entries will race abreast in the first tier with the other eight trailing.

Marchibroda gets Irsay backing

BALTIMORE — Baltimore Colts' owner Robert Irsay said Friday Ted Marchibroda will remain the team's head coach despite a flare-up Thursday night during which Marchibroda said he might be forced to resign.

"I have the utmost confidence in Ted Marchibroda," Irsay said in a two-sentence statement through a club spokesman. "He is our coach and will continue to be our coach."

The Baltimore News American, in a copyrighted story, reported that Irsay gave the tean and Marchibroda a severe tongue-lashing after the Colts' dismal 24-9 defeat to the Detroit Lions. The loss, the fourth in a row for the 1975 AFC Eastern Division champions, left them with a 2-4 preseason record.

During a heated, 40-minute locker room dispute behind closed doors at Pontiac Stadium, Irsay indicated he might hire an additional coach to help Marchibroda, who won NFL Coach of the Year honors when he led the Colts to a 10-4 season in 1975.

Defending Amateur champ ousted

LOS ANGELES — Jim Mason of Kirwood, Mo., ousted defending champion Fred Ridley on the 20th hole of the 76th U.S. Amateur Golf Championship Friday.

Down by two strokes at one point on the par-70, 6,507-yard Bel Air Country Club course, Ridley had managed to square the fourth-round match after 18 holes.

They halved the 19th, a short par five, but Mason triumphed when he hit the par four second hole in two strokes and two-putted, while Ridley went into a trap with his second shot and took bogey five.

Redskins lose Taylor for year

WASHINGTON — A ruling tied to the National Football League's adoption of a 43-player roster limit for the coming season will definitely put the NFL's all-time leading receiver, the Washington Redskins' Charley Taylor, out for the year...

NFL owners, meeting in New York on Wednesday, voted for a 43-man roster with no taxi squad but an unlimited injured reserve list. However, any player placed on injured reserve is automatically lost for the season.

Taylor, who fractured his shoulder in the Redskins' opening exhibition game July 31, was placed on the injured reserve list. At the time, the Redkins thought he could be reactivated later in the season if he called no-recall waivers.

Dolphins activate Earl Morrall

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins activated veteran backup quarterback Earl Morrall Friday in time for him to catch the plane to New Orleans where the Dolphins close out their National Football League exhibition schedule against the Saints Saturday night.

The 42-year-old Morrall, starting his 21st NFL season, has seen little pre-season game action because of a nagging hamstring muscle pull suffered in practice. Coach Don Shula has had him on inactive reserve for several weeks but left little doubt that Morrall still is the No. 2 Dolphins' quarterback behind Bob Griese.

Cubs win, 8-5; Monday hits pair

A pinch hit single by Wayne Tyrone drove home Joe Wallis from 3rd base in the 8th inning to touch off a three-run rally and lift the Cubs to an 8-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday.

Earlier, Rick Monday had hit two homers for the Cubs, giving him a career high of 27 for the year.

With the score tied at 5-5, Wallis opened the eighth with an infield single and went to third on Jerry Morales' single to center. Both hits came off reliever Eddie Solomon, who lost his first game.

Manny Trillo popped to short for the first out, but Tyrone followed with his winning hit off Al Hrabosky. After a second out, Mick Kelleher singled to drive in Morales and pinch-runner Dave Rosello also scored on the play on a throwing error by right fielder Willie Crawford.

Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez homered for the Cardinals, Hernandez' coming with a man on base in the sixth inning to tie the score at 5-5.

Bruce Sutter, who worked the final two innings, gained credit for his fourth victory against three defeats.

Twins crush Sox, 11-1

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Lyman Bostock doubled in two runs in the third inning to break a 1-1 tie Friday night and the Minnesota Twins went on to rout the Chicago Whit Sox, 11-1.

Ralph Garr singled in the first inning, stole second and scored on Jim Spencer's single off winner Pete Redfern, 4-7. Rod Carew singled in Minnesota's first run in the Twins' half of the inning to tie the game.

Bostock slapped his double off starter and loser Rich Gossage, 8-14, after Roy Smalley singled and Carew walked. Butch Wynegar doubled to leadoff the Twins' three-run fourth. He scored on Mike Cubbage's triple and Tony Oliva singled in Cubbage. Smalley knocked in the third run of the inning with a single and later drove in another run with his third hit of the game.

Arlington Heights hooks fishing museum

Illinois will never be considered an outdoor paradise, but it may be the home of the nation's most intelligent sportsmen.

The American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Assn. (AFTMA) has announced plans to construct an International Sport Fishing Museum on a seven-acre site in Arlington Heights.

Ground-breaking is scheduled for next spring with a tentative completion date targeted for Oct. 1, 1977.

The purchase of land, a tract situated at the northeast corner of the Northwest Tollway and Arlington Heights Rd. between Algonquin and the tollroad, has been consumated.

"The museum will be a combination of things," AFTMA executive vice president Thomas R. Schedler said. "The major facets will be a research library, an educational center where courses will be offered to the public and a one-acre pond where clinics will be scheduled to instruct people in this sport."

Considered Ameica's No. 1 sport and enjoyed by 64 million anglers, fishing is in vogue particularly during the summer vacation season.

"We think our location will give travelers and vacationers an opportunity to stop and visit the museum and enhance their knowledge of the sport," Schedler continued.

"Acquainting people with fishing — its rewards and relaxtion values — is the purpose of the museum. The thrust is two-fold. We hope to show the evolution of fishing equipment by inviting 400 members of AFTMA to display their line of tackle.

"Secondly, we will mount various species of fish, both fresh and saltwater, to help the public learn to identify exactly what they catch.

"The pond will put emphasis on kids' participation. Our goal will be to get them interested and started in the fundamentals of fishing. We can show them how to cast, get the fish off the hook and other basic things."

The $1 million project will include a combination 1-2 story split-level building that will permit expansion, if necessary, at a later date.

The idea is not a unique one. There are several museum-type sportfishing displays from coast to coast, including the National Fresh Water Fishing Hall of Fame and Museum in Hayward, Wis.

"We're certainly not trying to provide competition for some of these other museums," Schedler said. "But after talking to various manufacturers, writers and consumers, it was agreed to centralize our efforts.

"Instead of scattering the displays, we decided on a focal point that is easily accessible by automobile or plane and Arlington Heights gives us both with the tollway and O'Hare Airport.

The international flavor of the museum will be provided by such countries as Japan, Sweden and Canada — some of the largest manufacturers of fishing tackle in the world.

They will also be contributing many of the more exotic fresh and saltwater gamefish.

Schedler said immediate plans call for free admission to the facilities, but hinted that AFTMA would take a wait-and-see attitude to check costs of operation and maintenance.

The project certainly has merit and will be a welcomed addition to the northern Illinois outdoor recreation lineup.

In fact, Arlington Heights may soon be the land of the armchair angler.

Duck season runs 50 days

The more things change, the more they remain the same. Illinois waterfowl hunters, except for a few minor adjustments, will have another 50-day duck season that runs from Saturday, Oct. 23 through Saturday, Dec. 11.

The sdason on geese will also begin Oct. 23 and extend through Dec. 31 for a 70-day run in all counties except the four quota-zone.

Shooting in Union, Alexander, Jackson and Williamson counties begins Nov. 22 and runs to Jan. 20 or until 22,000 birds have been harvested. Shooting for both the duck and goose season begins one-half hour before sunrise to sunset, the same as last year. The exception is the quota zone where hunting is conducted from sunrise to 3 p.m. daily.

The point system will again be in effect with the daily bag limit consisting of the last duck that equals or surpasses 100 points.

The best news for waterfowl gunners is that mallard drakes, 35-point birds last year, have been reduced to 25 points, making it possible for a hunter to bag four drakes for his limit.

Canvasbacks were protected statewide last year, but will only be protected along the Mississippi River from Alton north to the Wisconsin border. Elsewhere, the Can is worth 100 points.

Redheads, hen mallards, wood ducks, black ducks and hooded mergansers carry a 70-point tag. Last year redheads were valued at 100 points.

Ten-point ducks are pintails, blue wing, green wing and cinnamon teal, gadwall, shoveler, scaup and other mergansers.

All other species of ducks join the mallard drakes with a 25-point value.

Canada geese carry the same restrictions of a two-bird daily bag limit and protection where flocks of giant Canadas have been established.

A special nine-day teal season will be held Sept. 11 through Sept. 19 with blue-winged, green-winged and cinnamon teal legal targets between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m. daily. The bag limit is four per day.

Every hunter, not exempt by law, must have both a state and federal migratory waterfowl stamp in addition to a valid hunting license.

The state's permit office will begin accepting applications to hunt in the special waterfowl areas of Union and Horseshoe Lake and Rice Lake on Sept. 20. Applications for permits to hunt pheasants on public areas will also be received by the state on that date.

Striped bass added to stringer

Some 23,000 striped bass fingerlings have been stocked in two Southern Illinois lakes last month as the first installment of what promises to be better days ahead for anglers.

The project was helped along by the experimental raising of fingerlings in fiberglass tanks instead of ponds.

The Southern Illinois University-Carbondale Cooperative Fisheries Research Laboratory last week released 3,000 striped bass fingerlings, 3 to 4 inches long, in Kinkaid Lake near Murphysboro.

Another 20,000 were deposited in Crab Orchard Lake between Carbondale and Marion.

William M. Lewis, director of the SIU fisheries unit, says the striped bass usually are found in ocean waters instead of lakes and reservoirs and will become a source of trophy-sized fish, reaching length of 36 inches and a weight of 20 to 25 pounds in five to six years.

They are hearty eaters of gizzard shad and their consumption of the shad will give other gamefish more room to grow and make it easier for them to feed on the remaining smaller shad.

Lewis says few freshwater lakes have proper conditions for the striped bass to spawn naturally and this means they will have to be restocked periodically to maintain their population level.

However, he thinks the university will be able to continue the stocking of the two lakes and perhaps expand it to others.

A $240,000 three-year research study supported by Consolidated Edison Co. of New York resulted in the SIU-Carbondale fisheries research unit raising stockable sized striped bass in a series of six-foot fiberglass tanks instead of transferring the young fish from tanks to an intermediate holding pond.

"Our method is probably the only one that has been demonstrated to go all the way without pond rearing," said Lewis.

Lewis said other breakthroughs in taking eggs from female bass for hatching at its research unit near Gorham will permit the fish laboratory to supply Illinois striped bass need "for some years to come."

Cooperation of the Illinis Department of Conservation and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service were essential in setting up the pilot stocking programs, Lewis said.

Arlington Heights hooks fishing museum

Illinois will never be considered an outdoor paradise, but it may be the home of the nation's most intelligent sportsmen.

The American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Assn. (AFTMA) has announced plans to construct an International Sport Fishing Museum on a seven-acre site in Arlington Heights.

Ground-breaking is scheduled for next spring with a tentative completion date targeted for Oct. 1, 1977.

The purchase of land, a tract situated at the northeast corner of the Northwest Tollway and Arlington Heights Rd. between Algonquin and the tollroad, has been consumated.

"The museum will be a combination of things," AFTMA executive vice president Thomas R. Schedler said. "The major facets will be a research library, an educational center where courses will be offered to the public and a one-acre pond where clinics will be scheduled to instruct people in this sport."

Considered Ameica's No. 1 sport and enjoyed by 64 million anglers, fishing is in vogue particularly during the summer vacation season.

"We think our location will give travelers and vacationers an opportunity to stop and visit the museum and enhance their knowledge of the sport," Schedler continued.

"Acquainting people with fishing — its rewards and relaxtion values — is the purpose of the museum. The thrust is two-fold. We hope to show the evolution of fishing equipment by inviting 400 members of AFTMA to display their line of tackle.

"Secondly, we will mount various species of fish, both fresh and saltwater, to help the public learn to identify exactly what they catch.

"The pond will put emphasis on kids' participation. Our goal will be to get them interested and started in the fundamentals of fishing. We can show them how to cast, get the fish off the hook and other basic things."

The $1 million project will include a combination 1-2 story split-level building that will permit expansion, if necessary, at a later date.

The idea is not a unique one. There are several museum-type sportfishing displays from coast to coast, including the National Fresh Water Fishing Hall of Fame and Museum in Hayward, Wis.

"We're certainly not trying to provide competition for some of these other museums," Schedler said. "But after talking to various manufacturers, writers and consumers, it was agreed to centralize our efforts.

"Instead of scattering the displays, we decided on a focal point that is easily accessible by automobile or plane and Arlington Heights gives us both with the tollway and O'Hare Airport.

The international flavor of the museum will be provided by such countries as Japan, Sweden and Canada — some of the largest manufacturers of fishing tackle in the world.

They will also be contributing many of the more exotic fresh and saltwater gamefish.

Schedler said immediate plans call for free admission to the facilities, but hinted that AFTMA would take a wait-and-see attitude to check costs of operation and maintenance.

The project certainly has merit and will be a welcomed addition to the northern Illinois outdoor recreation lineup.

In fact, Arlington Heights may soon be the land of the armchair angler.

Duck season runs 50 days

The more things change, the more they remain the same. Illinois waterfowl hunters, except for a few minor adjustments, will have another 50-day duck season that runs from Saturday, Oct. 23 through Saturday, Dec. 11.

The sdason on geese will also begin Oct. 23 and extend through Dec. 31 for a 70-day run in all counties except the four quota-zone.

Shooting in Union, Alexander, Jackson and Williamson counties begins Nov. 22 and runs to Jan. 20 or until 22,000 birds have been harvested. Shooting for both the duck and goose season begins one-half hour before sunrise to sunset, the same as last year. The exception is the quota zone where hunting is conducted from sunrise to 3 p.m. daily.

The point system will again be in effect with the daily bag limit consisting of the last duck that equals or surpasses 100 points.

The best news for waterfowl gunners is that mallard drakes, 35-point birds last year, have been reduced to 25 points, making it possible for a hunter to bag four drakes for his limit.

Canvasbacks were protected statewide last year, but will only be protected along the Mississippi River from Alton north to the Wisconsin border. Elsewhere, the Can is worth 100 points.

Redheads, hen mallards, wood ducks, black ducks and hooded mergansers carry a 70-point tag. Last year redheads were valued at 100 points.

Ten-point ducks are pintails, blue wing, green wing and cinnamon teal, gadwall, shoveler, scaup and other mergansers.

All other species of ducks join the mallard drakes with a 25-point value.

Canada geese carry the same restrictions of a two-bird daily bag limit and protection where flocks of giant Canadas have been established.

A special nine-day teal season will be held Sept. 11 through Sept. 19 with blue-winged, green-winged and cinnamon teal legal targets between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m. daily. The bag limit is four per day.

Every hunter, not exempt by law, must have both a state and federal migratory waterfowl stamp in addition to a valid hunting license.

The state's permit office will begin accepting applications to hunt in the special waterfowl areas of Union and Horseshoe Lake and Rice Lake on Sept. 20. Applications for permits to hunt pheasants on public areas will also be received by the state on that date.

Striped bass added to stringer

Some 23,000 striped bass fingerlings have been stocked in two Southern Illinois lakes last month as the first installment of what promises to be better days ahead for anglers.

The project was helped along by the experimental raising of fingerlings in fiberglass tanks instead of ponds.

The Southern Illinois University-Carbondale Cooperative Fisheries Research Laboratory last week released 3,000 striped bass fingerlings, 3 to 4 inches long, in Kinkaid Lake near Murphysboro.

Another 20,000 were deposited in Crab Orchard Lake between Carbondale and Marion.

William M. Lewis, director of the SIU fisheries unit, says the striped bass usually are found in ocean waters instead of lakes and reservoirs and will become a source of trophy-sized fish, reaching length of 36 inches and a weight of 20 to 25 pounds in five to six years.

They are hearty eaters of gizzard shad and their consumption of the shad will give other gamefish more room to grow and make it easier for them to feed on the remaining smaller shad.

Lewis says few freshwater lakes have proper conditions for the striped bass to spawn naturally and this means they will have to be restocked periodically to maintain their population level.

However, he thinks the university will be able to continue the stocking of the two lakes and perhaps expand it to others.

A $240,000 three-year research study supported by Consolidated Edison Co. of New York resulted in the SIU-Carbondale fisheries research unit raising stockable sized striped bass in a series of six-foot fiberglass tanks instead of transferring the young fish from tanks to an intermediate holding pond.

"Our method is probably the only one that has been demonstrated to go all the way without pond rearing," said Lewis.

Lewis said other breakthroughs in taking eggs from female bass for hatching at its research unit near Gorham will permit the fish laboratory to supply Illinois striped bass need "for some years to come."

Cooperation of the Illinis Department of Conservation and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service were essential in setting up the pilot stocking programs, Lewis said.

Ask Andy

Moon's gravity causes high tides

HOW DOES THE MOON AFFECT THE TIDES?

We know that the moon, at about 240,000 miles away, is our closest neighbor in the heavens. In fact, the moon is Earth's only natural satellite, orbiting Earth once every 27-1/3 days. The moon, about 2,160 miles in diameter, is much smaller than the earth. If you watched the astronauts on the moon, you remember how easily they moved.

One step was an effortless leap, and the 125-pound pack on their backs was a mere trifle. This buoyancy occurred because the moon's gravitational force is only one-sixth as strong as the earth's.

The earth and the moon pull on each other as they orbit the sun, and although the moon's pull is weaker, it is strong enough to pull the water in the oceans ever so slightly. The level of the earth's waters changes right on schedule — reaching a high level twice each day and a low level twice each day.

These changes are known as tides, and they are caused by the difference in the moon's gravitational attraction for different parts of the earth. Thus, there tends to be a bulge in the water under the moon and another bulge in the water on the side of the earth opposite the moon. These two bulges cause the two high tides that occur each day.

The sun also causes tides, but of less magnitude than those of the moon. Spring tides occur when the sun and the moon work together, and their range can be much greater than normal. They occur twice each month, at new moon and at full moon. When the moon is at its first-quarter and last-quarter phases, the tidal range is less than normal, and these are called neap tides.

Tides are also affected by the varying distance between the earth and the moon. When the moon's orbit is closest to the earth, at perigee, the tides are greater — higher high tides and lower low tides. When the moon is farthest from the earth, at apogee, the tides are less than normal.

DOES MY AGE STUMP YOU?

Next time you go hiking in the woods, take along a soft lead pencil, a few thumb tacks, and a sheet of thin white paper. Find an old tree stump. One with a fairly smooth top will work best.

Tack the paper so it covers the stump from the center to the outer edge. With the pencil, rub over the paper. Soon some curved lines will appear. Count these rings to find out how old the tree was when it was cut. (Each year a new ring is added. A wide ring means a year with lots of rain.)

Ask Andy

Moon's gravity causes high tides

HOW DOES THE MOON AFFECT THE TIDES?

We know that the moon, at about 240,000 miles away, is our closest neighbor in the heavens. In fact, the moon is Earth's only natural satellite, orbiting Earth once every 27-1/3 days. The moon, about 2,160 miles in diameter, is much smaller than the earth. If you watched the astronauts on the moon, you remember how easily they moved.

One step was an effortless leap, and the 125-pound pack on their backs was a mere trifle. This buoyancy occurred because the moon's gravitational force is only one-sixth as strong as the earth's.

The earth and the moon pull on each other as they orbit the sun, and although the moon's pull is weaker, it is strong enough to pull the water in the oceans ever so slightly. The level of the earth's waters changes right on schedule — reaching a high level twice each day and a low level twice each day.

These changes are known as tides, and they are caused by the difference in the moon's gravitational attraction for different parts of the earth. Thus, there tends to be a bulge in the water under the moon and another bulge in the water on the side of the earth opposite the moon. These two bulges cause the two high tides that occur each day.

The sun also causes tides, but of less magnitude than those of the moon. Spring tides occur when the sun and the moon work together, and their range can be much greater than normal. They occur twice each month, at new moon and at full moon. When the moon is at its first-quarter and last-quarter phases, the tidal range is less than normal, and these are called neap tides.

Tides are also affected by the varying distance between the earth and the moon. When the moon's orbit is closest to the earth, at perigee, the tides are greater — higher high tides and lower low tides. When the moon is farthest from the earth, at apogee, the tides are less than normal.

DOES MY AGE STUMP YOU?

Next time you go hiking in the woods, take along a soft lead pencil, a few thumb tacks, and a sheet of thin white paper. Find an old tree stump. One with a fairly smooth top will work best.

Tack the paper so it covers the stump from the center to the outer edge. With the pencil, rub over the paper. Soon some curved lines will appear. Count these rings to find out how old the tree was when it was cut. (Each year a new ring is added. A wide ring means a year with lots of rain.)

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

'Mr. HEAA' had an ax to pound

The common single blade ax must be recognized as one of homo sapiens' favorite tools. Men have used the single blade ax to advance many noble causes.

Some men have conquered large trees and used the wood to construct fine houses. Other men have swung the ax to separate heads from bodies, thereby saving fine empires from uncompromising insurgents.

But when Carlo "Chic" Erpito carried an ax into the Hoffman Estates Boys Club last Saturday morning, he might have set himself up to be cooked at the stake.

Erpito, who also carried a ladder, walked into the Boys Club and climbed stairs that lead to the gymnasium. Once upstairs, Erpito began to assault two walls that he had helped to construct four years ago, according o police reports.

"IT WASN'T as bad as it sounded," Erpito said. In all, he said he removed just two wood moldings. Much of the noise that was heard downstairs had been caused by Erpito striking his wooden ladder with the ax.

When a Hoffman Estates police officer arrived, Erpito insisted that he be placed under arrest, even though the Boys Club would not press charges.

But Erpito was adamant. He finally was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. He might have been charged with criminal trespassing or damage to village property.

The complaint against Erpito was signed by village officials. The Boys Club leases space from Hoffman Estates in a barn on Illinois Boulevard just across from the previous village hall.

Erpito is to appear in Hoffman Estates Court next Friday. If found guilty, Erpito could be fined between $10 and $500. No jail sentence would be applicable.

YOU MIGHT wonder what caused Erpito to act in such a seemingly irrational manner.

That's right, sports for kids, run by parents.

It also was Erpito's public relations goal to expose the present Hoffman Estates Boys Club football group as a group that exploits young boys.

Erpito sides with the older and larger Hoffman Estates Athletic Assn. He has no official duties but claimed, "They call me Mr. HEAA."

Some persons have suggested that "The Godfather" might be a more accurate description for Erpito's role.

It happened this summer that Danny Pellegrino, a Hoffman Estates youth, wanted to switch from the Boys Club Lancers to Athletic Assn. Raiders.

Robert Pellegrino, the boy's father, petitioned the Boys Club board of directors for a release, so that Danny could join the HEAA Raiders.

THAT RELEASE was denied, for reasons that remain unclear. Pellegrino went to "extensive length" to work for Danny's release, said David Norris, the new Boys Club executive director who assumed his duties last month.

The elder Pellegrino even contacted Boys Club of America regional and national offices, according to both Erpito and Norris. Pellegrino was unavailable for comment Firday.

Erpito, who claims that he had not previously known the Pellegrino family, heard about Danny's plight at the Aug. 10 HEAA board meeting.

Today

Mike Klein's people

The HEAA people were astounded that their Boys Club counterparts would not release Danny. "We have it in our by-laws that if a kid asks us for a release he gets it automatically," Erpito said.

Telephone calls between the HEAA and Boys Club football people clogged the lines for a couple weeks. The HEAA was furious. Erpito was furious. The Boys Club apparently could not reach a decision on Danny Pellegrino.

THEY PROMISED that they would reconsider. But as of last Saturday morning, Danny remained a Boys Club Lancer, or he was nobody's football player.

That's when Chic Erpito, "disgusted, frustrated and tired of waiting," marched into the Boys Club gymnasium, removed two moldings, struck his ladder to make noise and insisted upon his arrest.

"I wasn't acting wild," Erpito said. "I just made noise. Like the cop said, it sounded like 15 people up there. I was trying to bring out an issue."

Erpito wanted newspaper reporters to perch before him and then print all the treacherous truths about Boys Club football people.

Of its own volition, the Boys Club chose to release Danny Pellegrino on Sunday.

Why this change in thinking? "To protect our building," Norris said.

For the record, Norris doesn't believe that the Boys Club should have a football involvement. He wants to see the grid program and Club divorced before next year.

ERPITO SAT in his family room one evening this week to discuss the issue. He did not seem overly concerned about the disorderly conduct charges that have been lodged against him. He does not plan to have legal representation in court.

The village is not so complacent. Village Mgr. George Longmeyer was asked whether Hoffman Estates might attempt to soothe some egos by dropping its charges.

"No," Longmeyer said.

"He insisted on being arrested, so we arrested him. We could have filed more serious charges. If he wants to pay the consequences," Longmeyer said, "then he will.

NO LESS upset is Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter, a personal friend of the Erpito family. She accused Erpito of "prejudicing his case" and attempting to get back at "innocent parties."

"The whole thing can be seen as a farce," Mrs. Hayter said. "I think that everyone will come out looking, if not stupid, then immature.

"Condoning that kind of behavior is bad. It shows youngsters that you can become so enraged that you can take the law into your own hands.

Meeting on energy-saving plans

by LEA TONKIN

An opportunity to learn about energy conservation from the experts is coming up Sept. 11-12 at Starved Rock State Park.

John McGuire, Illinois Conservation Dept. director said the second annual Alternate Energy Symposium will feature exhibits and discussions of solar, wind and methane resources. Energy-conscious architecture, conservation and recreational activities utilizing the environment with the minimum use of non-renewable resources will be discussed.

Among the demonstrations featured at the show will be television sets and watches powered by solar cells, meal preparation with methane produced from animal wastes, solar heat collectors, energy-efficient insulation materials and home design.

The free symposium is open to the public. Camping facilities and accommodations at Starved Rock Lodge are available.

SIERRA CLUB members in the Chicago area will gather Sept. 12 at Morton Arboretum for a picnic and a walk sponsored by the West Suburban Committee on freeways. The Arboretum walk will dramatize the plight of the Morton Arboretum, which will be affected by construction of a nearby supplemental freeway planned by the state.

THE RECENT botulism occurrence affecting birds at Lake O'Hare on the O'Hare Airport grounds is not uncommon late in the summer when water levels are low because of drought, reported the Illinois Department of Conservation. Botulism has been confirmed as the cause of death for an estimated 1,000 birds at the lake. John McGuire, conservation department director, said low water levels result in rotting organic matter which provides a fertile breeding ground for bacteria which causes botulism. The water is further contaminated by the bodies of poisoning victims.

THE NEXT general meeting of the Des Plaines Valley chapter of the Sierra Club is Sept. 29 at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library. A film on flood plaines is included in the program.

MOTOR RACING noise regulations will be discussed at a Sept. 8 hearing slated by the Illinois Pollution Control Board. The meeting will be at 10 a.m. at the University of Illinois Circle Campus, 750 S. Halsted St., Chicago.

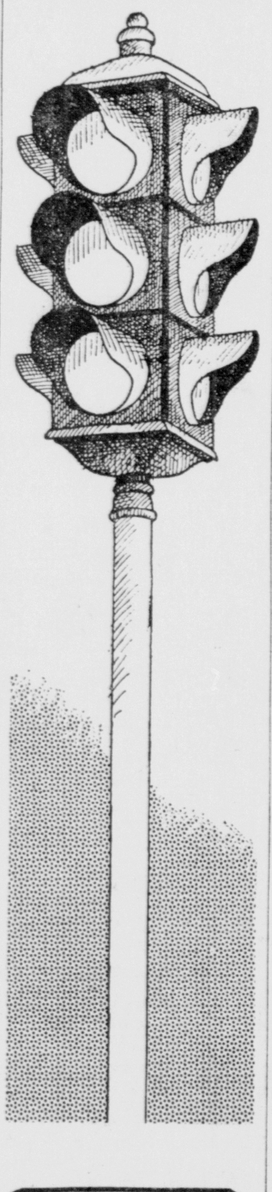
HERALD WANT ADS ARE REAL STOPPERS!



'Mr. HEAA' had an ax to pound

The common single blade ax must be recognized as one of homo sapiens' favorite tools. Men have used the single blade ax to advance many noble causes.

Some men have conquered large trees and used the wood to construct fine houses. Other men have swung the ax to separate heads from bodies, thereby saving fine empires from uncompromising insurgents.

But when Carlo "Chic" Erpito carried an ax into the Hoffman Estates Boys Club last Saturday morning, he might have set himself up to be cooked at the stake.

Erpito, who also carried a ladder, walked into the Boys Club and climbed stairs that lead to the gymnasium. Once upstairs, Erpito began to assault two walls that he had helped to construct four years ago, according o police reports.

"IT WASN'T as bad as it sounded," Erpito said. In all, he said he removed just two wood moldings. Much of the noise that was heard downstairs had been caused by Erpito striking his wooden ladder with the ax.

When a Hoffman Estates police officer arrived, Erpito insisted that he be placed under arrest, even though the Boys Club would not press charges.

But Erpito was adamant. He finally was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. He might have been charged with criminal trespassing or damage to village property.

The complaint against Erpito was signed by village officials. The Boys Club leases space from Hoffman Estates in a barn on Illinois Boulevard just across from the previous village hall.

Erpito is to appear in Hoffman Estates Court next Friday. If found guilty, Erpito could be fined between $10 and $500. No jail sentence would be applicable.

YOU MIGHT wonder what caused Erpito to act in such a seemingly irrational manner.

It was boys football.

That's right, sports for kids, run by parents.

It also was Erpito's public relations goal to expose the present Hoffman Estates Boys Club football group as a group that exploits young boys.

Erpito sides with the older and larger Hoffman Estates Athletic Assn. He has no official duties but claimed, "They call me Mr. HEAA."

Some persons have suggested that "The Godfather" might be a more accurate description for Erpito's role.

It happened this summer that Danny Pellegrino, a Hoffman Estates youth, wanted to switch from the Boys Club Lancers to Athletic Assn. Raiders.

Robert Pellegrino, the boy's father, petitioned the Boys Club board of directors for a release, so that Danny could join the HEAA Raiders.

THAT RELEASE was denied, for reasons that remain unclear. Pellegrino went to "extensive length" to work for Danny's release, said David Norris, the new Boys Club executive director who assumed his duties last month.

The elder Pellegrino even contacted Boys Club of America regional and national offices, according to both Erpito and Norris. Pellegrino was unavailable for comment Firday.

Erpito, who claims that he had not previously known the Pellegrino family, heard about Danny's plight at the Aug. 10 HEAA board meeting.

Today

Mike Klein's people

The HEAA people were astounded that their Boys Club counterparts would not release Danny. "We have it in our by-laws that if a kid asks us for a release he gets it automatically," Erpito said.

Telephone calls between the HEAA and Boys Club football people clogged the lines for a couple weeks. The HEAA was furious. Erpito was furious. The Boys Club apparently could not reach a decision on Danny Pellegrino.

THEY PROMISED that they would reconsider. But as of last Saturday morning, Danny remained a Boys Club Lancer, or he was nobody's football player.

That's when Chic Erpito, "disgusted, frustrated and tired of waiting," marched into the Boys Club gymnasium, removed two moldings, struck his ladder to make noise and insisted upon his arrest.

"I wasn't acting wild," Erpito said. "I just made noise. Like the cop said, it sounded like 15 people up there. I was trying to bring out an issue."

Erpito wanted newspaper reporters to perch before him and then print all the treacherous truths about Boys Club football people.

Of its own volition, the Boys Club chose to release Danny Pellegrino on Sunday.

Why this change in thinking? "To protect our building," Norris said.

For the record, Norris doesn't believe that the Boys Club should have a football involvement. He wants to see the grid program and Club divorced before next year.

ERPITO SAT in his family room one evening this week to discuss the issue. He did not seem overly concerned about the disorderly conduct charges that have been lodged against him. He does not plan to have legal representation in court.

The village is not so complacent. Village Mgr. George Longmeyer was asked whether Hoffman Estates might attempt to soothe some egos by dropping its charges.

"No," Longmeyer said.

"He insisted on being arrested, so we arrested him. We could have filed more serious charges. If he wants to pay the consequences," Longmeyer said, "then he will.

"What Mr. Erpito did was not very mature. I've got enough problems running this village without getting into internal athletic things."

NO LESS upset is Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter, a personal friend of the Erpito family. She accused Erpito of "prejudicing his case" and attempting to get back at "innocent parties."

"The whole thing can be seen as a farce," Mrs. Hayter said. "I think that everyone will come out looking, if not stupid, then immature.

"Condoning that kind of behavior is bad. It shows youngsters that you can become so enraged that you can take the law into your own hands.

"If everybody in the world decided to right one wrong each day," she said, "I think we'd all be like Atilla the Hun."

Meeting on energy-saving plans

by LEA TONKIN

An opportunity to learn about energy conservation from the experts is coming up Sept. 11-12 at Starved Rock State Park.

John McGuire, Illinois Conservation Dept. director said the second annual Alternate Energy Symposium will feature exhibits and discussions of solar, wind and methane resources. Energy-conscious architecture, conservation and recreational activities utilizing the environment with the minimum use of non-renewable resources will be discussed.

Among the demonstrations featured at the show will be television sets and watches powered by solar cells, meal preparation with methane produced from animal wastes, solar heat collectors, energy-efficient insulation materials and home design.

The free symposium is open to the public. Camping facilities and accommodations at Starved Rock Lodge are available.

SIERRA CLUB members in the Chicago area will gather Sept. 12 at Morton Arboretum for a picnic and a walk sponsored by the West Suburban Committee on freeways. The Arboretum walk will dramatize the plight of the Morton Arboretum, which will be affected by construction of a nearby supplemental freeway planned by the state.

THE RECENT botulism occurrence affecting birds at Lake O'Hare on the O'Hare Airport grounds is not uncommon late in the summer when water levels are low because of drought, reported the Illinois Department of Conservation. Botulism has been confirmed as the cause of death for an estimated 1,000 birds at the lake. John McGuire, conservation department director, said low water levels result in rotting organic matter which provides a fertile breeding ground for bacteria which causes botulism. The water is further contaminated by the bodies of poisoning victims.

THE NEXT general meeting of the Des Plaines Valley chapter of the Sierra Club is Sept. 29 at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library. A film on flood plaines is included in the program.

MOTOR RACING noise regulations will be discussed at a Sept. 8 hearing slated by the Illinois Pollution Control Board. The meeting will be at 10 a.m. at the University of Illinois Circle Campus, 750 S. Halsted St., Chicago.

Flea Marketing In the Suburbs

A discount store under a Sunday afternoon sky offering everything from antiques to new tires, tents to garage doors, Christmas trees to dogs. It is the life of the fast buck artists and bargain hunters who are all out enjoying the sun for fun and profit.

by Lea Tonkin

Such a deal!

How could anyone who came to the flea market pass by a genuine imported, antique brass bell cast in ornate design, suspended from the long, fiery breath of a serpentine creature and suitable for hanging on the wall? Since it was 60 years old and only $25, the dealer said, it was a steal.

This was it. My first chance to haggle with the flea market pros. As many others discover when they visit this hodgepodge of people and paraphernalia, my first flea market experience was the clincher.

"I really can't spend $25 for a bell and a dragon," I said regretfully.

"Well, the bell might be just 50 years old," the dealer said. "To you, it's $22.50."

I decided to think it over and promised to return. After I pawed through reams of old post cards and admired a set of prized Irish china, I made my way back to the brass bell and told the dealer in a disinterested tone of voice that $8 seemed a fair price for an old brass bell.

"I'll go down to $20, but it is at least 35 years old," the dealer said.

"Are you sure?" I asked. "I don't see any date on it. I'll give you $10."

"Absolutely not."

Still later, I made a final visit to the now familiar dealer and noted that it was near closing time. Since nobody wanted an old

"Absolutely not."

Still later, I made a final visit to the now familiar dealer and noted that it was near closing time. Since nobody wanted an old dusty bell and matching dragon, I said, $11 was a price that could hardly be refused. "Besides," I asked, "How do I know this bell isn't brand new? Maybe it just looks antique."

"But it's imported!" the dealer said. "Sure, it's possible it's not too old, but it's worth at least $14."

"I'll give you $13."

"Sold!"

Congratulating myself on a successful deal, I joined my husband in time to negotiate for a pair of brass auto horns. We wangled a satisfactory price, convinced that flea markets put some of the fun back into shopping.

Ask anyone who's a flea market devotee. There's something for everyone. Some people just come to browse and socialize. Others look for inexpensive furnishings. Collectors of most anything from beer cans to antiques seek out new finds.

Although there are dealers who refuse to haggle price, the fine art of dickering is one of the most notable pleasures at the flea market.

The rules are simple. A would-be buyer scans the seller's wares spread out on tables or a station wagon tailgate. Finding an antique train set, for example, the buyer checks the price and asks whether it's final. If the dealer is agreeable, and the seller is willing to pay a price considered fair by the dealer, a bargain can be struck.

Cash is generally required. Some dealers accept credit cards, however.

Some dealers say they can't decide whether flea market browsers or sellers have more fun. "I get a kick out of it. I love it. I love talking with people and the dealers," said Marilyn Sugarman, co-manager with her husband, Don, at the Wheaton Antique and Collectables Market in Wheaton.

"It's really for every age," Mrs. Sugarman said. "It's interesting to note that some dealers are not professionals. They're doctors, lawyers, students, retired people."

Serendipity adds to the flea market's appeal. Shoppers never know what they'll come across, Mrs. Sugarman said.

"We have some people who are compulsive antique buyers," she said. "They're preserving Americana." For those willing buyers, anything from a butter churn to an old doll is worth an offer.

The collector who specializes in Depression glass or countrystore furnishings mingles with first-time greenhorns scouting for a chest of drawers and investors. Dealers also shop the flea markets in search of collectables.

It's a good idea to bone up on prices and other information before considerable investment is made at the flea market. Collectors will find that many dealers are knowledgeable and talkative.

Comparison shopping at area antique stores and an investment in specialized books for the collector are important sources of information.

The fledgling flea market shopper will encounter many honest pitchmen as well as the occasional flimflam operator. Once a buyer has been taken in on the purchase of the key to a sixteenth century Irish castle, and the same key seems to turn up at other flea markets, the reason for caution becomes clear.

"And you'll find that once you've read all the books on things you're interested in that some dealers don't even know the value of what they have," said Helen Dycus, manager of flea markets in Des Plaines and Elmhurst.

She said there are still bargains to be found at the flea market, no matter how many dealers and collectors compete for merchandise.

Although memorabilia and genuine antiques are popular flea market offerings, dusty bell and matching dragon, I said, $11 was a price that could hardly be refused. "Besides," I asked, "How do I know this bell isn't brand new? Maybe it just looks antique."

"But it's imported!" the dealer said. "Sure, it's possible it's not too old, but it's worth at least $14."

"I'll give you $13."

"Sold!"

Congratulating myself on a successful deal, I joined my husband in time to negotiate for a pair of brass auto horns. We wangled a satisfactory price, convinced that flea markets put some of the fun back into shopping.

Ask anyone who's a flea market devotee. There's something for everyone. Some people just come to browse and socialize. Others look for inexpensive furnishings. Collectors of most anything from beer cans to antiques seek out new finds.

Although there are dealers who refuse to haggle price, the fine art of dickering is one of the most notable pleasures at the flea market.

The rules are simple. A would-be buyer scans the seller's wares spread out on tables or a station wagon tailgate. Finding an antique train set, for example, the buyer checks the price and asks whether it's final. If the dealer is agreeable, and the seller is willing to pay a price considered fair by the dealer, a bargain can be struck.

Cash is generally required. Some dealers accept credit cards, however.

Some dealers say they can't decide whether flea market browsers or sellers have more fun. "I get a kick out of it. I love it. I love talking with people and the dealers," said Marilyn Sugarman, co-manager with her husband, Don, at the Wheaton Antique and Collectables Market in Wheaton.

"It's really for every age," Mrs. Sugarman said. "It's interesting to note that some dealers are not professionals. They're doctors, lawyers, students, retired people."

Serendipity adds to the flea market's appeal. Shoppers never know what they'll come across, Mrs. Sugarman said.

"We have some people who are compulsive antique buyers," she said. "They're preserving Americana." For those willing buyers, anything from a butter churn to an old doll is worth an offer.

The collector who specializes in Depression glass or countrystore furnishings mingles with first-time greenhorns scouting for a chest of drawers and investors. Dealers also shop the flea markets in search of collectables.

It's a good idea to bone up on prices and other information before considerable investment is made at the flea market. Collectors will find that many dealers are knowledgeable and talkative.

Comparison shopping at area antique stores and an investment in specialized books for the collector are important sources of information.

The fledgling flea market shopper will encounter many honest pitchmen as well as the occasional flimflam operator. Once a buyer has been taken in on the purchase of the key to a sixteenth century Irish castle, and the same key seems to turn up at other flea markets, the reason for caution becomes clear.

"And you'll find that once you've read all the books on things you're interested in that some dealers don't even know the value of what they have," said Helen Dycus, manager of flea markets in Des Plaines and Elmhurst.

She said there are still bargains to be found at the flea market, no matter how many dealers and collectors compete for merchandise.

Although memorabilia and genuine antiques are popular flea market offerings,

movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"The Bingo Long Traveling All-Stars and Motor Kings" — The adventures of a team of black baseball players barnstorming their way across the midwest in 1939 have been shaped into a joyful, exuberant and thoroughly involving entertainment. A great script and a fine cast led by Billy Dee Williams and James Earl Jones. (PG).

"Obsession" — A masterfully concocted romantic suspense drama, themed to a guilt-ridden New Orleans businessman who meets up with an exact double of his late wife 16 years after she and his daughter ostensibly perished during a kidnap caper after he botched their ransom. Stars Cliff Robertson and Genevieve Bujold. (PG).

"Logan's Run" — Great special effects work at odds with a banal and derivative storyline in a lavishly mounted futuristic scie-fi entry about a handsome young couple (Michael York and Jenny Agutter) who escape from a 23rd century civilization which sets the human life span at 30 years. (PG).

"Harry and Walter Go to New York" — James Caan and Elliott Gould play a pair of broadly bumbling vaudevillians who finally make the grade as safecrackers at the turn-of-the-century. An unabashedly silly, but rather likeable farce for easy summer laughter. (PG).

"Hawmps" — "F. Troop" on camels, from the producer of "Benji." For an Army experiment a cavalry unit in the American Southwest reluctantly rides camels instead of horses. A witless parody of westerns, that nevertheless, should appeal to kids. (G).

"Murder By Death" — The legendary fictional exploits of every major detective hero receive a merciless ribbing from Neil Simon as they join forces on what must be the silliest case on record. The inspired idea never fulfills its initial promise and the momentum soon drags, but a first-rate cast injects Simon's one-liners with a great deal of style and genuine fun. Cast: Truman Capote, James Coco, Peter Falk, Alec Guiness, David Niven, Peter Sellers, Maggie Smith and Nancy Walker. (PG).

"Silent Movie" — Mum's the word for Mel Brooks in this big-budget contemporary silent movie that unleashes a cascade of sight gags, pratfalls and broadly comic set pieces, linked to the connecting story of a minor studio's last-ditch efforts to avoid bankruptcy. Stars Mel Brooks, Marty Feldman and Dom Deluise. (PG).

ARLINGTON — Arlington Heights — 255-2125 — "Survive" (R).

CATLOW — Barrington — 381-0777 — "Jaws" (PG).

MOUNT PROSPECT CINEMA — Mount Prospect — 392-7070 — Theater 1: "Pom Pom Girls" (R); Theater 2: "Midway" (PG).

DES PLAINES — 824-5253 — "Drive-In" (PG) plus "Shadow of the Hawk" (PG).

GOLF MILL — Niles — 296-4500 — Theater 1: "Harry and Walter Go to New York" (PG); Theater 2: "Obsession" (PG); Theater 3: "Silent Movie" (PG).

PROSPECT — Mount Prospect — 253-7435 — "Murder By Death" (PG).

RANDHURST CINEMA — Mount Prospect — 392-9393 — "Harry and Walter Go to New York" (PG).

WILLOW CREEK — Palatine — 358-1155 — "Logan's Run" (PG).

PALWAUKEE MOVIES — Prospect Heights — 541-7530 — "Jaws" (PG).

Flea Markets:

the bargain-hunter will also discover new merchandise and junk for sale. Dealers can set up shop with a table full of discount-priced lamps and used household items, for example.

Flea market managers say they try to weed out any disreputable dealers. One shopper who came upon her monogrammed luggage, stolen earlier when her car was parked at a motel, caused a startled dealer to pack up and leave when she announced her discovery.

Flea market shopping sometimes boils down to a matter of expertise and trust. The more a shopper learns about collectables and dealers the better, said Bea Coe, who with her husband, Bob, manages shows at Randhurst in Mount Prospect and Countryside center in Palatine.

"You don't have to be 50 years old," Mrs. Coe said. "We have a lot more young people coming out. They're furnishing their homes with antiques."

It's usually a good idea to come early if a search for specific collectables is planned. Even the casual shopper who has no definite plans can spend the day at the larger shows, taking time out for a country breakfast or lunch served nearby. Both open air and indoor markets are located in the Chicago area.

For a sampling of nearby flea markets, shoppers may start with several locations:

• Countryside Mall, U.S. Rte. 14 and Baldwin Road, Palatine. It's held the second Sunday of every month. There is no admission for the noon to 5 p.m. show.

• Randhurst shopping center, Rand Road and Ill. Rte. 83, Mount Prospect. A 50 cent admission fee is charged for the 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. show held the fourth Sunday of each month.

• Des Plaines VFW hall, 2067 Miner St., Des Plaines. The 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. show is held the third Sunday of each month. Admission is 50 cents.

• American Legion Hall, 310 W. Butterfield Rd., Elmhurst, the second Sunday of each month. It's open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. A 50 cent admission fee is charged.

• Swap-O-Rama Flea Market, Twin Drive-In Theatre, 1010 Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, open every Saturday and Sunday from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for senior citizens and children Saturdays; 50 cents and 25 cents, respectively on Sundays.

• Swap-O-Rama Flea Market, 53 Drive-In Theatre, U.S. Rte. 12 at Hicks Road, Palatine. It's open every Sunday from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for senior citizens and children.

• Swap-O-Rama, Dundale Drive-In, Ill. Rte. 72 and 25 in East Dundee. Open every Sunday from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m., the show costs 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for senior citizens and children.

• Swap-O-Rama Flea Market, Maywood Park Race Track, 8600 W. North Ave., Maywood. On Sundays it's open 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. The entry fee is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for senior citizens and children.

• Swap-O-Rama, Double Drive-In, 2800 Columbus Ave., Chicago. The Saturday and Sunday markets are held each weekend from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for senior citizens and children.

• Wheaton Antique and Collectables Market, DuPage County Fairgrounds, Manchester Road off County Farm Road, Wheaton. There are generally some 170 dealers at the shows, slated each season. Sept. 12 and Oct. 10 shows are planned, and a market is planned the third Sunday each month November through June. Show hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Country breakfasts and hot lunches are available. Admission is 50 cents for adults, but there's no charge for children age 11 and younger.

• Lake County Fairgrounds, U.S. Rte. 45, Grayslake. Shows are planned Sept. 12, Sept. 26, Oct. 10, Oct. 31, Nov. 14, Nov. 28 and Dec. 12. The markets, held each month except July, are open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is 50 cents.

• Kane County Flea Market, held the first Sunday every month except August at the Kane County fairgrounds, Randall Road south of Ill. Rte. 64. Shows are held preceding Saturdays in October and December. The 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. show costs $1 for adults and there is no charge for children. Exhibits are set up inside and outdoors. Country breakfasts and hot lunches are served at the show which attracts several thousand visitors.

Flea Markets:

the bargain-hunter will also discover new merchandise and junk for sale. Dealers can set up shop with a table full of discount-priced lamps and used household items, for example.

Flea market managers say they try to weed out any disreputable dealers. One shopper who came upon her monogrammed luggage, stolen earlier when her car was parked at a motel, caused a startled dealer to pack up and leave when she announced her discovery.

Flea market shopping sometimes boils down to a matter of expertise and trust. The more a shopper learns about collectables and dealers the better, said Bea Coe, who with her husband, Bob, manages shows at Randhurst in Mount Prospect and Countryside center in Palatine.

"You don't have to be 50 years old," Mrs. Coe said. "We have a lot more young people coming out. They're furnishing their homes with antiques."

It's usually a good idea to come early if a search for specific collectables is planned. Even the casual shopper who has no definite plans can spend the day at the larger shows, taking time out for a country breakfast or lunch served nearby. Both open air and indoor markets are located in the Chicago area.

For a sampling of nearby flea markets, shoppers may start with several locations:

• Countryside Mall, U.S. Rte. 14 and Baldwin Road, Palatine. It's held the second Sunday of every month. There is no admission for the noon to 5 p.m. show.

Illinois Civil War prison camps:

Only the graves remain

by Joe Swickard

History can be a telescope through which events and places can suddenly loom large or else fade almost from sight and memory.

Rock Island and Camp Douglas are two such places that have undergone the transformation from notoriety to obscurity.

The barracks and buildings are gone with just a few signs to mark the sites. But the 6,415 graves remain to recall Illinois' two prison camps of the Civil War.

Visitors to the Rock Island Arsenal or Chicago's Oak Woods Cemetery can be taken aback when they encounter the monuments and neatly rowed headstones of the Confederate prisoners that died in the North.

Camp Douglas was established with a dual role on Chicago's South Side. Erected partially on the estate of Sen. Stephan A. Douglas, the camp was to be a mustering point for Union troops and a stockade for Southern prisoners.

During the camp's existence, more than 30,000 captured Rebels were interned at the prison, which stretched from the present day 31st to 33rd Streets between Cottage Grove and Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Drive.

Although established in September of 1861 as a prison, it wasn't even fenced in when the first great influx of captured arrived in February, 1862, after the Union victory at Fort Donelson, Tenn. Two months later the number swelled again with the defeated Rebels from the Battle of Shiloh.

Henry Stanley was among those brought to Chicago after Shiloh.

Stanley later recalled his stay at Camp Douglas: "Left to ourselves with absolutely nothing to do but brood over our positions, bewail our lots, catch the taint of disease from each other and passively abide in our prison-pen, we were soon in a fair state of rotting while yet still alive."

After two months, Stanley swore allegiance to the Federal cause, and joined the Union forces. Still ill from his brief stay at Camp Douglas, he was soon discharged and left for England to regain his health.

Stanley later returned to the North and enlisted in the Navy. After the war he gained fame as an African explorer and the man who "found" Dr. Livingstone.

As more prisoners took advantage of the Union's amnesty program, the number of doctors in the prison declined and disease, especially scurvy, smallpox and fevers increased.

The camp site, originally swampy, soon became a perfect breeding ground for illness for men not used to the harsh Chicago climate. Poorly housed and fed, they fared poorly.

Henry M. Bellows, then president of Chicago's Sanitary Commission, minced no words on what he found at the camp after an inspection tour.

"Soil reeking with miasmatic accretions, of rotting bones and the emptying of camp kettles is enough to drive a sanitarian to despair," Bellows wrote.

Another report recommended that $5,000 to $8,000 be allocated for the construction of sewer and water lines. The official reply was that the federal government had better uses for its funds during a time of war.

In March, 1863, Major General A. E. Burnside reported that the camp's medical director suggested moving the entire prison to Des Plaines.

Yet, despite these reports and urgings, October found more prisoners than ever crammed into the camp. Prisoners were being housed in kitchens and other out buildings. The prison population was being served at this time by only three water hydrants.

The camp's location on the edge of Chicago provided both entertainment and fear for the residents.

Chicagoans' Sunday outings often included a street car or buggy ride to Camp Douglas. Some toured the compound with passes while those without the tickets could still climb an observation tower and survey the scene for a dime.

In 1864, the Democrats, many of them antiwar Copperheads, held their presidential convention in the city. A conspiracy of sorts was hatched to set up a North West Confederacy with the help of an uprising by inmates.

were made, it is uncertain just how serious the plans were.

Life for prisoners was brightened somewhat by mail and packages from home allowed by the authorities. But trade with civilian merchants was halted because of the smuggling operations that accompanied it.

Rations, none too luxurious to begin with, were cut back in May, 1864 in an economy move. At the same time issues of candles were stopped because they were being used to light escape tunnels.

Prisoners were punished for their infractions through such diverse methods as wearing boards strapped to their backs or having ball and chains, weighing up to 64 pounds, fastened to their legs.

Others were ordered to ride "Morgan's Horse" — a tall sawhorse which the unfortunates straddled with just their toes touching the ground. Sometimes weights were fastened to the legs making the "ride" on the narrow cross beam almost unbearable.

By August, 1865, the last of the prisoners was gone. But the swampy camp, smallpox and other fevers claimed one prisoner in eight that had been kept there.

Today, those 4,454 dead rest in Oak Woods Cemetery, Cottage Grove at 71st Street, under a monument raised by Confederate veterans groups.

As Grant's army swept from the west, it soon became obvious that a camp was needed to house the prisoners taken in the battles moving toward Richmond.

Rock Island, already the site of a military camp first suggested by past Sec. of War Jefferson Davis, was chosen as the western-most Union prison camp.

On Dec. 3, 1863, 5,593 defeated Rebels were brought to the island in the Mississippi River. With them were 94 cases of small pox.

The Confederates taken in the battles of Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge, were ill-equipped to handle the winters of the Midwest. The temperature dropped to minus 32 degrees the day they arrived.

The Southerners were housed in 84 wooden barracks, measuring 100 by 22 feet. The entire complex was surrounded by a 12-foot wooden fence with sentry towers every 100 feet.

The camp authorities were unable to cope with the smallpox that came with the first prisoners. The first month saw 94 die. Illness claimed 231 more in January, 1864 and 346 in February.

Improved health care, including a "pest house," a contagious disease hospital, cut the deaths to 283 in March and by April the illness was starting to be brought under control.

Those prisoners that wanted to were able to take advantage of Lincoln's amnesty. The rebels were given the choice of going home with the promise not to take up arms again or else enlisting in the Union forces to be stationed in the far west or along the Canadian border away from the fighting.

Many jumped at the opportunity to get our of prison, but bureaucratic foul-ups were as common then as today. At one time 1,797 joined the Union but weren't removed from the compound. Because they were no longer prisoners of war, they could not be given prison rations and because they weren't yet official troops, that source of food was cut off.

While many forsook the Confederacy, 1,300 signed a petition for Jefferson Davis saying they were ready to continue the fight for the South.

By the end of 1864, Rock Island's reputation was reaching the depths of the infamous Andersonville. Illinois newspapers began carrying accounts of maltreatment of prisoners. The New York press picked up the tales and was soon publishing stories under such headlines as "Starving Prisoners of War," and "Prisoners At Rock Island — Inhuman Treatment — They're Fed on Dogs and Rats."

Today the arsenal's historian, Elaine Pospishil, is quick to correct the image of the "Andersonville of the North."

The tales were exaggerated then, she said, and points to the more than 9,000 men who took part in amnesty and enlistment programs in the prison's 20 month existence.

The prison site is now covered by the arsenal's golf course with the only marker a green metal sign designating where the hospital once stood.

On the far side of the island are four Confederate cannons with an inscription from Gen. T. J. Jackson, "Let us cross the river and rest in the shade of the trees."

Beyond the cannons are the graves — 1,960 uniform headstones.

Far from home, they died and remained: J. W. Evert, of the Knoxville Guard; T. H. Hays, Co. C, Phillip's Legion of Georgia Volunteers; Seth Brown, Co. F of the 50th Alabama Regiment; Virgil Looker of Co. B of the 38th Alabama; 1st Lt. L. M. Lindsy of Crawford's Arkansas Calvary.

Lafayette Rogan was interned at the camp from its opening till the war ended. Rogan kept a diary, still preserved, in which he recorded the emotions, daily events and the minor triumphs and defeats of himself and his fellow Southerners.

" All quiet today externally but the internal commotion is great," Rogan wrote on Feb. 8, 1864. "My heart aches for liberty to give my wife a full expose of what weighs on my mind and troubles my heart. Oh, that I could once more have her society and that of my precious boy and breathe Southern air."

Mrs. Pospishil said there is very little momentum for more monuments to the prison.

"Prisons are something most people would just as soon forget," she said.

The U.S. Postal Service will release a 13-cent commemorative stamp honoring Adolph S. Ochs on Sept. 18. Ochs was publisher of the New York Times from 1896 until his death in 1935. The Times is observing its 125th anniversary this year.

Bradbury Thompson of Riverside, Connecticut designed the stamp from a portrait of the publisher by S. J. Woolf, a noted freelance artist and writer known for his technique of combining portraits with interviews.

The adhesive is jumbo size and will be printed 32 stamps to a pane with one plate number on the multi-color intaglio press.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "Ochs Stamp, Postmaster, New York, N.Y., 10001" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed. Your remittance must be by personal check, money order, cashier's check or certified check.

Stamp notes

by Bernadine M. Rechner

The Philatelic Journalist is offering a specially cacheted commemorative cover honoring Ochs and the 125th anniversary of the New York Times.

The Postal Service has reported that a new lightweight paper was used by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to print the Clara Maass commemorative stamps.

The lightweight paper has a thinner surface finish which provides an improved printing surface in comparison to the regular gravure paper. Its base weight is 45 lbs. compared to 55 lbs. for the regular gravure stock and it measures 3.5 to 4.0 mils instead of 4.5 to 5.0 mils.

The strength and elongation properties of the thin paper are comparable to the present paper.

Annual Jerry Lewis Telethon to air on Channel 44 Sunday and Monday

The annual Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon to raise funds for muscular dystrophy will be aired locally Sunday and Monday on WSNS-TV (Channel 44).

Volunteers and celebrities will man telephones to take pledges for the telethon, which will be televised nationally. Last year the effort raised $18.8 million nationally and $753,000 in the Chicago area.

"It is no accident that the nationwide telethon falls on Labor Day," said Lewis, national chairman of the Muscular Dystrophy Assn. Locally, representatives of labor will be honored on the telethon.

The telethon was first broadcast in 1966 by one television station. It has grown, becoming the first telethon to raise more than $1 million, the first to be broadcast on a network of stations, the first to be seen outside the continental United States and, in 1974, the first telethon to raise more than $16 million.

Jerry Lewis for his kids.

The U.S. Postal Service will release a 13-cent commemorative stamp honoring Adolph S. Ochs on Sept. 18. Ochs was publisher of the New York Times from 1896 until his death in 1935. The Times is observing its 125th anniversary this year.

Bradbury Thompson of Riverside, Connecticut designed the stamp from a portrait of the publisher by S. J. Woolf, a noted freelance artist and writer known for his technique of combining portraits with interviews.

The adhesive is jumbo size and will be printed 32 stamps to a pane with one plate number on the multi-color intaglio press.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "Ochs Stamp, Postmaster, New York, N.Y., 10001" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed. Your remittance must be by personal check, money order, cashier's check or certified check.

Stamp notes

by Bernadine M. Rechner

The Philatelic Journalist is offering a specially cacheted commemorative cover honoring Ochs and the 125th anniversary of the New York Times.

Covers will be franked with the new 13-cent Ochs stamp and cancelled First Day of Issue at New York, New York.

They are available for $1 each (or six for $5) plus a self-addressed, stamped, long envelope from "The Philatelic Journalist, P.O. Box 150-AO, Clinton Corners, NY 12514."

In conjunction with the 50 State Flags stamp sheet issued last February, the Postal Service made special machine cancellations available in each state capital. Reports received by the Post Service indicate that a total of 2,680,797 covers were cancelled in state capitals.

First day cancellation totals for the two international air-mail stamps issued last January in Honolulu are:

25-cent international air-mail	192,538
31-cent international air-mail	180,539

The Postal Service has reported that a new lightweight paper was used by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to print the Clara Maass commemorative stamps.

The lightweight paper has a thinner surface finish which provides an improved printing surface in comparison to the regular gravure paper. Its base weight is 45 lbs. compared to 55 lbs. for the regular gravure stock and it measures 3.5 to 4.0 mils instead of 4.5 to 5.0 mils.

The strength and elongation properties of the thin paper are comparable to the present paper.

Annual Jerry Lewis Telethon to air on Channel 44 Sunday and Monday

The annual Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon to raise funds for muscular dystrophy will be aired locally Sunday and Monday on WSNS-TV (Channel 44).

Volunteers and celebrities will man telephones to take pledges for the telethon, which will be televised nationally. Last year the effort raised $18.8 million nationally and $753,000 in the Chicago area.

"It is no accident that the nationwide telethon falls on Labor Day," said Lewis, national chairman of the Muscular Dystrophy Assn. Locally, representatives of labor will be honored on the telethon.

The telethon was first broadcast in 1966 by one television station. It has grown, becoming the first telethon to raise more than $1 million, the first to be broadcast on a network of stations, the first to be seen outside the continental United States and, in 1974, the first telethon to raise more than $16 million.

Proceeds from the telethon will fund research and patient services programs for victims of chronic muscular disorders.

Jerry Lewis for his kids.

Q. Is Peter Marshall, the host of the "Hollywood Squares," the father of Chicago Cub player Pete LaCock? C.E.

A. He is indeed, and he travels to beautiful Wrigley Field to watch young Peter whenever the opportunity presents itself. He is a more frequent visitor to Dodger Stadium when the Cubs travel to Los Angeles.

Q. I heard Abe Vigoda, who plays "Fish" on "Barney Miller" was going to get a series of his own. What happened? A.T.

A. The big talk about it was last winter when ABC was reaching round for ideas for January replacements. It's still a possibility, but meanwhile Vigoda will continue on "Barney" with a new contract more befitting his popularity.

A. Comedians like Berle never retire. He still does every bit of work he can get, but the big dates seem to slip by Uncle Miltie.

Robert Conrad changes video image and style

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) – Robert Conrad, who still is seen in reruns of the old "Wild, Wild West" show, shifts gears this new television season to star in "Baa Baa Black Sheep," a series based on the exploits of World War II flying ace Pappy Boyington.

Conrad has changed his personal life style along with his video image.

During his years in the "Wild, Wild West" series – and making a dozen movies – Conrad played the macho hero off-screen, attempting to match his make-believe adventures on screen.

He took great pride in doing his own stunts. He worked out in the boxing ring almost every day and entertained thoughts of turning professional.

The actor was ringside at all the fights. There were physical confrontations in nightclubs and bars.

His garage was full of high-priced, souped up imported cars.

He was a party guy, a swinger, a ladies man of no small repute. He had a retinue of hangers-on and lived it up as he thought stars were supposed to do.

In 1972 he moved to Bear Valley, a ski resort in Northern California, to escape the pressures of living in Hollywood. He also spent a year and a half in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., where he filmed "Murf the Surf."

Another six months was spent in the Philippine Islands starring in "Sudden Death," a violent movie that has yet to be seen in this country.

For his own reasons Conrad's private life is secretive. His biography at NBC makes no reference to his marital status. He refuses to discuss whether he is married, divorced or in between.

But Robert Conrad is happy to say that he's turned his life around.

"The old macho days are over," he says. "I've sold all the expensive cars and drive a 1972 Volkswagen. There's no more entourage.

"I'm avoiding the trouble spots now. I'm leaving the fast life to younger actors who want to be men about town.

"And believe it or not, I've taken to reading the Bible."

Conrad lives in an apartment in the San Fernando Valley. Only close friends are invited in. He shuns parties now and hasn't been to a prizefight in months.

When he must attend a function promoted by the network, he is accompanied by one of his three daughters, Christy, 8, Nancy, 22, or Joan, 23. The girls live with their mother. They visit their father frequently.

Curiously, Conrad credits his change of life style to his appearance this spring in the stage musical, "1776."

"I'm 41 years old now," Conrad says, "and for some reason working in that musical changed my mind about a lot of things. Now I'm getting interested in the theater."

Conrad is taking vocal and dance lessons. He's studying music and reading books on the theater.

He's up every morning at 6 o'clock and is seldom in bed before midnight. "Baa Baa Black Sheep" requires him to report to Camp Pendleton Marine Base by 8 a.m. two or three times a week. Most of the show's exterior scenes are shot there. Interiors are filmed at Universal Studios.

During the lunch break Conrad does isometrics, situps and pushups to stay in shape.

On weekends he dons jeans and sweat shirt to study his scripts. He plans to begin flying lessons in order to lend more credibility to his role as a hotshot pilot in the new show.

Conrad refuses to discuss his romantic life and his matrimonial plans, if any, for the future.

Shelby Lyman on chess

BEGINNER'S CORNER — hint and explanation: Only black's knight prevents checkmate!

Those Americans I meet, who know chess mainly from the Fischer-Spassky match, frequently ask the same question, i.e. "How is Boris Spassky doing?"

Unfortunately, as I reported recently in this column, Boris is not doing too well. His 12th place finish in the Manila Interzonal Tournament reflected a general listlessness in his play-despite a victory over tournament winner Henrique Mecking.

Yet Boris still has his many supporters, including World Champion Anatoly Karpov who attributes Spassky's poor interzonal result to a lack of practice. According to Tass, Karpov "expressed confidence that Spassky would still stage a comeback."

Luckily for Spassky there probably will be an unfilled place (designated for the reluctant Bobby Fischer) in the upcoming Candidates Matches (which will determine the 1978 Challenger to Karpov). Spassky will have a better than 50 per cent chance to fill that spot because of his performance in the 1975 Candidates Matches.

His participation would be welcomed by the millions who admire his great ability and inspiring sportsmanship.

The following game was the sensation of the Manila Interzonal Tournament. U.S. Champion Walter Browne was taken by surprise in one of his favorite opening variations.

In SOLVE-IT, the talented young Soviet player Tseschkovsky played the piece sacrifice 14.NxKP!! and won a smashing victory.

An asking bid is an artificial bid that asks partner for specialized information about his holding in a specific suit. First thought of by Ely Culbertson around 1935 these bids turned out to be too advanced for that early day, but have been revived for modern use. Each expert has his own set that he trots out at the proper time.

The great weakness of these bids is that the need to use one seldom occurs and even when it does come up it isn't perfect.

As an example, in a recent team match each South player had a method of asking for partner's diamond holding after receiving a positive two-spade response to the artificial two-club opening.

Each South player also decided to make the unscientific bid of six hearts.

Why did they do this? For two reasons. The first was that they did not want to telegraph the opening lead so that even if the defenders held ace and king of diamonds they might not find that lead.

The second was that even if North could show both ace and king of diamonds, there would be no way to ask for the important queen of spades.

Finally, if North happened to hold two aces he might have gone on to seven after that jump to six.
